First Baptist, Good Shepherd

2 churches reported victims of 1969-'70 payoffs squeeze

by LYNN ASINOF

The First Baptist Church of Wheeling, Elmhurst Road and Edward Street, was pressured for a payoff in 1970 by a Wheeling village official, according to church sources.

In a similar incident, a contractor working on the main nave of the Lutheran Church of the Good Shepherd, 1111 N. Elmhurst Rd., Prospect Heights, reportedly was shaken down by a county building inspector in 1969.

The payoff was made without the knowledge of Good Shepherd church officials, The Herald has learned.

INFORMATION ON the two incidents, uncovered as part of a continuing Herald investigation of village government in Wheeling, was turned over to federal investigators. A federal grand jury probe of shakedowns of builders and developers in Wheeling has been under way for almost a year. Indictments in the case are imminent.

The First Baptist Church reportedly was approached for a payoff during its building program that began in 1970. According to church sources, a key village official implied that he could speed up the issuance of a building permit if under-the-table payments were made.

Two Chicagoans linked to shooting

Two Chicago men have been charged with aggravated assault after an alleged shooting incident last week at the Allstate Insurance Co., 1600 S. Wolf Rd., Wheeling.

Wheeling police, who withheld details of the Jan. 14 incident for a week, said yesterday that Cleary Asby, 28, of Chicago allegedly fired a gun at William Harris, 20, of Chicago, during a scuffle in the building's receiving area. Police said Asby allegedly pulled out the gun during the fight and it then discharged.

Also charged with aggravated assault was Cecil Ware of Chicago, police said. Both men are to appear Feb. 19 in Arlington Heights branch of Cook County Circuit Court.

3 suburban gas stations ordered: roll back prices

by JOE FRANZ

Three gasoline stations in the Northwest suburbs are among 17 in the Chicago area that have been ordered by the Internal Revenue Service to refund overcharges to customers by rolling back prices.

The stations are Dan's Ranch Mart Mobil, Dundee and Buffalo Grove roads in Buffalo Grove; Wheeling 400 Car Wash, 400 N. Milwaukee Ave., Wheeling; and Bob's Marathon, Roselle Road and Weathersfield Way, Schaumburg.

"The stations were found to be overcharging and they voluntarily agreed to return to prices that will make up the amount they had overcharged their customers," an IRS spokesman said yesterday. "After the overcharges are made up they can reestablish their prices at the proper level."

ALL 17 OF THE gas stations have been ordered to cut prices by varying amounts to make up the overcharges, which the IRS estimates at $25,000. Most of the gas stations have rolled back prices several cents.

Spokesmen for the Wheeling 400 Car Wash and Bob's Marathon refused comment yesterday on the recent IRS order. However, Dan Rutkowski, owner of the Mobil station in Buffalo Grove said he was ordered to cut prices to make up for $2,500 in overcharges.

Church officials let the offer to "fix things" go by without comment. One source termed the offer an "implied suggestion" rather than overt pressure but said it was clear a payoff was being sought.

"That's the last thing we'd ever do," one church official said of the payoff bid.

IN BOTH INSTANCES, church sources talked to a Herald reporter on the condition that they remain anonymous.

When asked about the matter, Wheeling Building Director William Bieber said, "You've got to be putting me on. I don't know anything about it."

Bieber acknowledged that the First Baptist Church did run into some delays over the setback of the church. He said an addition built in 1963 was set back only 50 feet from the Center of Edward Street. In 1964, the village passed an ordinance requiring a 65-foot setback.

According to Bieber, this made the church a non-conforming building, thus requiring a zoning variation before a building permit could be issued.

CHURCH SOURCES indicated that the village official involved offered to ignore the need for a zoning variation in exchange for a payoff.

"The worst problem with this job is that you have to update plans to meet the codes," Bieber said. "When you do that, you're automatically picking on them."

Bieber said there were no unreasonable delays in the issuing of the building permit. The application for building permit, however, was not dated. The first dated correspondence in the village file was from the structural engineer, who requested a meeting with the church representatives in October, 1970.

The building permit was issued Dec. 1, 1970, about two weeks after the zoning board recommended approval of the setback variation.

After the payoff request, church officials said, they experienced "obstinacy problems" in dealing with the village building department. "You're treated like you're something other than a person," one said.

THE PAYOFF involving the Lutheran Church of the Good Shepherd was reported ed to the Internal Revenue Service when church officials became aware of the situation.

"We handled the matter directly with the IRS," said one church official involved in the matter. "We didn't let this go by."

Members of the church congregation were told of the payoff by former Pastor Dennis A. Anderson, who delivered a sermon on the subject. No names were mentioned from the pulpit, but the sermon was directed to the fact that payoffs are considered a generally accepted practice in the community.

Several sources said a county building inspector was paid several hundred dollars to approve foundation work at the church by Four M Concrete Inc., of Glen Ellyn, a subcontractor.

MARIS MUZNIEKS, president of Four M, said he had no knowledge of any payoff.

"As far as I know I was not involved in that," he said. "We don't normally practice anything like that. I do not say we have not been approached."

Muznieks said the Four M employee responsible for the church work is no longer with his company. "He's not even in town," he said. He declined to release the employee's name.

The Herald has been unable to determine what action if any the IRS took as a result of the information supplied by the church. Federal sources confirmed that the agency was made aware of the payoff but no record of federal criminal charges against the county building inspector reportedly involved could be found.

Milwaukee, Hintz work to start in April

Area drivers can expect construction to begin at the intersection of Hintz Road and Milwaukee Avenue in April.

The Illinois Department of Transportation is planning to widen the intersection, install a median strip on Milwaukee Avenue and provide a left-turn bay for northbound Milwaukee Avenue traffic. New traffic signals also will be installed.

Steve Kolar, project engineer, said the biggest problem for local drivers will be the slowdown of traffic going through the intersection. He said cars will be limited to one lane in each direction during construction.

"Probably the biggest inconvenience will be just getting through the intersection," he said. Kolar said there will be no detours needed for the work, and noted that the road equipment will be cleared from the site after each day's work.

WORK ON THE intersection will be done by Milburn Brothers, Inc., Mount Prospect, for a cost of $186,227.70. Construction is scheduled to start on April 15, and the contractor has 30 working days to complete the intersection.

Kolar estimated that improvements to the intersection should be completed by August first. He said problems in obtaining traffic signal equipment might delay that part of the project slightly.

The state is cautioning drivers to be alert to barricades, warning signs and lights when construction begins this spring.

Planners to consider request for zoning

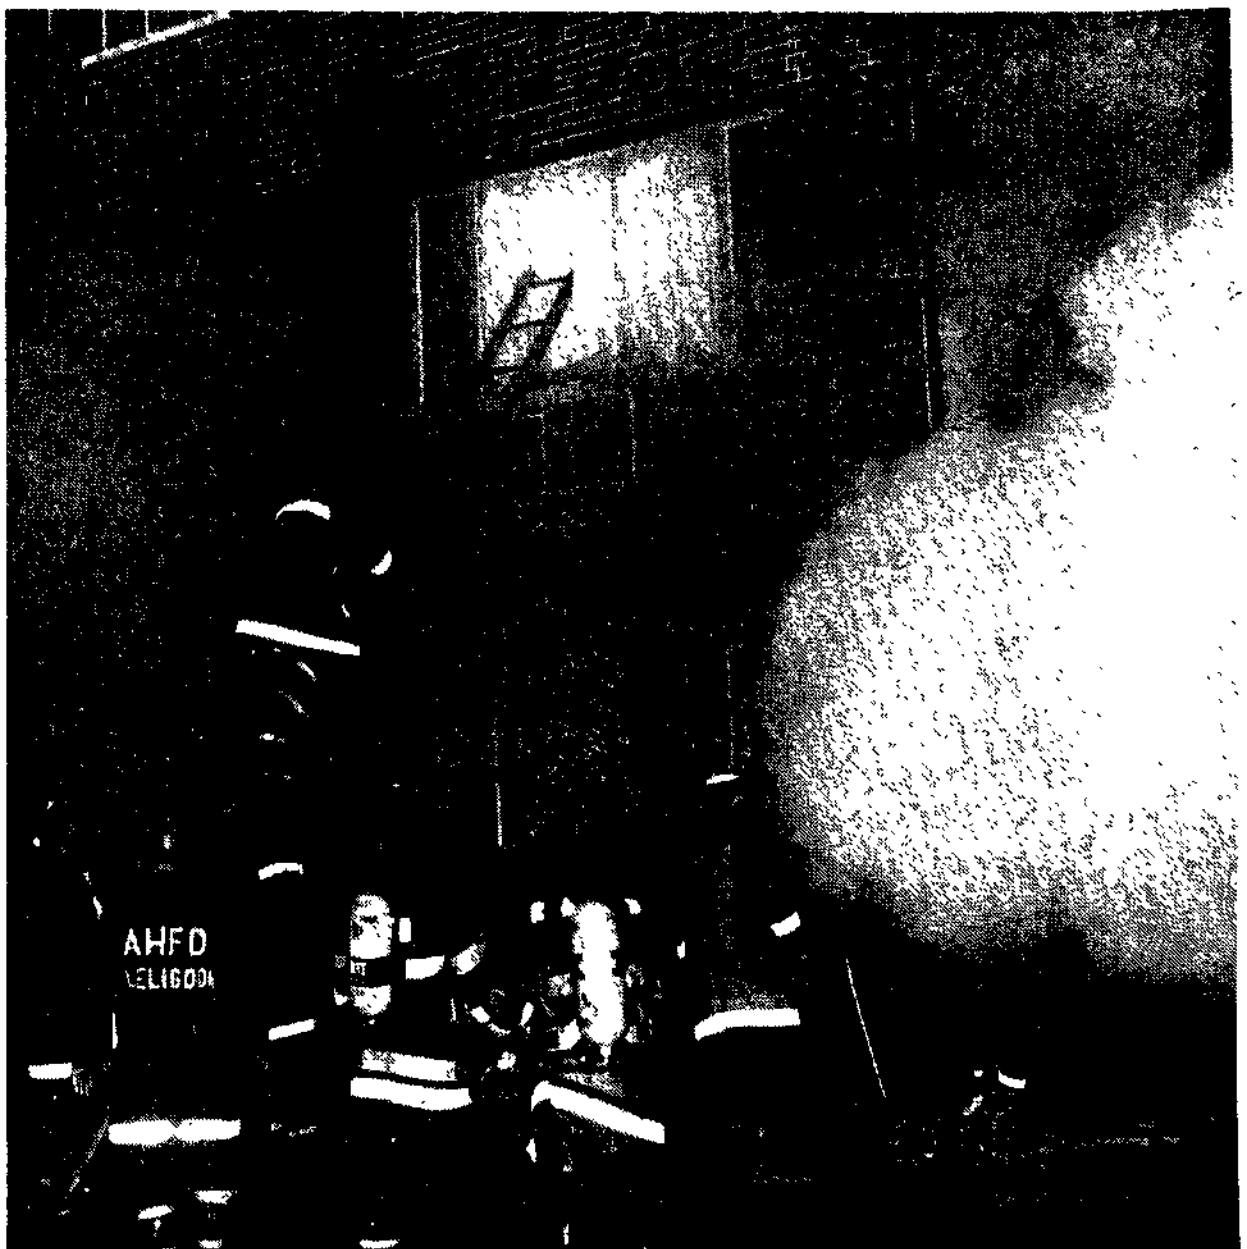

The Wheeling Zoning Board tonight will consider a request for planned development zoning on property located at the southeast corner of Wolf Road and Manchester Drive.

The property, recently annexed to the village, is owned by Theodore and Marion Melzer, and is zoned residential.

The zoning board is also scheduled to review a request for zoning that would allow a car wash operation on the north side of Dundee Road west of the Wheeling Drainage Ditch.

A sign variation requested by the owners of Foremost Liquors, 787 W. Dundee Rd., is scheduled for consideration. The owners are seeking the variation to erect a pole sign on their property.

The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. at the village hall, 255 W. Dundee Rd.

Fire Chief suspects arson

by DOUG RAY

Fire swept through an apartment building at the Dryden Apartments in Arlington Heights last night totally destroying several of the units on the first floor and leaving 24 families homeless.

The fire apparently began in the basement storage area of the 3-story apartment building across from the Arlington Market Shopping Center. Firemen with masks and oxygen units on their backs went into the basement but were forced out when the floor of a first floor apartment collapsed, according to one of the firemen who fought the blaze. The fire began at about 7:30 p.m. and firemen from a half dozen communities were attempting to contain it two hours later.

Fire Chief John Hayden said "definitely we suspect arson." He confirmed the fire began in the basement and ran up the walls "just like the last time." He estimated the damage to the building itself at $25,000.

Last night's blaze struck while most of the families were having dinner, and although all persons were removed, the flames spread rapidly. After about an hour of fighting the fire, fire officials were forced back by a small explosion.

Firemen said a "three-box alarm" was called and dozens of firemen responded, including those from Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Palatine, Prospect Heights, and Rolling Meadows.

Red Cross officials at the scene said two elderly persons were taken from the burning building, one who fell trying to leave the darkened building.

FIREMEN USED chain saws to break through the roof as flames shot out of the first floor apartments.

The apartment residents were warned of the fire and evacuated their homes when a person began running down the hallways knocking on the doors.

None of the residents could remove their belongings.

"We couldn't do anything except get ourselves out," said Mrs. Bill Doty, one of the first floor residents.

Residents said firemen responded to several calls at the complex over the weekend. They said two mailboxes were set afire and a wicker basket on a child's bicycle in the hallway. A fire in a trash container outside was reported on Sunday.

Last May, fire hit another apartment building in the complex. All families in that fire were relocated and fire officials estimated the damage at $100,000. Fire officials suspected arson in that fire.

Smoke damage was extensive in the blaze.

Suburban digest

3 gas stations told to roll back prices

Three Northwest suburban gasoline dealers were ordered to roll back prices by the Internal Revenue Service. An IRS spokesman said the stations were among 17 in the Chicago area found to be overcharging. Lower prices will continue until the total overcharges are refunded. Dan Rutkowski, owner of a Mobil station in Buffalo Grove, accused of $2,500 in overcharges, said the improper prices were unintentional. The other two Northwest suburban stations are in Wheeling and Schaumburg.

Church pressured to make payoff

The First Baptist Church of Wheeling was pressured by a key village official to make a payoff to speed up issuance of a 1970 building permit, church sources told The Herald. The church ignored the come-on and eventually got its permit anyway, they said. In a similar incident, a Cook County building inspector reportedly shook down a subcontractor for several hundred dollars to allow foundation work in 1969 at Lutheran Church of the Good Shepherd in Prospect Heights, it was learned.

Bus crackdown strands students

Several hundred Maine North High School students were temporarily stranded at school yesterday afternoon when Illinois State Police arrested five United Motor Coach Co. drivers for using unsafe equipment and allowing overcrowded bus conditions. The students eventually were taken home by other buses. As part of their current crackdown on bus safety violations, state police last Friday charged two Cook County Bus Co. drivers with minor violations at Forest View High School.

Use of federal funds questioned

Palatine Township officials tonight will discuss their controversial decision to provide $5,000 in federal revenue sharing funds to a local clinic that treats venereal disease and dispenses contraceptives to teen-agers with parental consent. Petitions reportedly signed by 3,000 persons will be submitted in opposition to the township decision to fund the agency, known as the Crossroads Clinic.

April start for trade center

The Chicago-O'Hare International Trade Center, a massive 65-acre project planned for the southeast corner of Arlington Heights Road and the Northwest Tollway, will begin construction in mid-April, said promoter Anthony Pinocchio. The property, owned by the estate of the late Carl Kiehm, has been the subject of a dispute between Elk Grove Village and Arlington Heights. It apparently will be annexed by Arlington, which may spark a suit by Elk Grove Village.

'Operation Yes! RTA'

5 mayors unite to back mass transit

Mayor Herbert Behrel of Des Plaines and four other suburban Cook County mayors have been named to a committee to carry the appeal of a Regional Transit Authority throughout their areas.

The mayors were named yesterday by Operation Yes! RTA, sponsored by the Council of Governments of Cook County. Their objectives will be to enlist support from mayors of neighboring communities and to expand a volunteer force to make phone calls and spread information on RTA before the March 19 referendum.

Behrel said yesterday he is offering support because "I feel very strongly about the fact that some people are trying to defeat this thing when we need it so badly."

"It's the best we can expect at the moment," he said, "and nobody's going to come me that they're going to vote this bill down and go back to Springfield and draft another one."

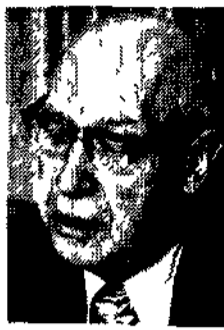

HE SAID THE RTA bill is valuable to Des Plaines because the city wants to preserve its bus service from United Motor Coach Co. "The good parts are better than the bad parts," Behrel said of the referendum.

Operation Yes! RTA is the second group to begin large-scale telephone canvassing to inform voters about RTA and make sure they know they do not have to declare their party to get an RTA ballot in the primary election. The other group is RTA Citizens Committee for Better Transportation, headed by George Ranney Jr.

The two committees will cooperate with each other, according to former COG chairman Edgar Vanneman, mayor of Evanston. An Operation Yes! RTA office has already been opened in Niles by Norman Dachman, director of the group.

The major push of Operation Yes! RTA is in the Cook County suburbs, and Vanneman was asked if that area would be the key to a successful RTA referendum. He agreed that a heavy turnout in Cook County would greatly help pass the referendum.

VANNEMAN WAS critical of Mount Prospect Mayor Robert Teichert, whose village board is opposed to RTA on the basis that the RTA Board will be appointed and not responsive to the people it will serve. Vanneman said Teichert evidently had some wrong information, because he had in the past supported development of an RTA.

The RTA Board is set up on a one-man, one-vote principal, Vanneman said, and there is a built-in balance on major issues such as the budget, which will require a two-thirds vote for passage. He added that funding appears to be adequate and public hearings will result in action beneficial to the entire six-county area.

Smaller Illinois House sought

Arguments for reduction of the size of the Illinois House of Representatives and elimination of the cumulative voting system will be heard tomorrow night at a joint meeting of the American Assn. of University Women and the Des Plaines League of Women Voters in Des Plaines.

The meeting is scheduled for 8 p.m. at the Des Plaines City Hall, Graceland and Miner streets.

Speaking will be Robert W. Bergstrom, chairman of the Committee for Legislative Reform, which is seeking to place the question of reorganizing the General Assembly on a referendum ballot in the November general election.

The CLR is seeking the aid of the two women's organizations in gathering some 600,000 signatures on petitions required to bring the question to a referendum.

The CLR proposal would divide Illinois' 59 legislative districts into 118 districts for purposes of electing representatives, with one representative to be elected in each. Presently, three representatives are elected in each of 59 districts. The CLR plan would reduce the size of the House from 177 to 118 members.

The proposal would also eliminate cumulative voting, by which voters may cast three votes for one candidate, or divide them between two or three candidates.

In response to a comment that a two-thirds vote of the board could be obtained with Chicago and suburban Cook County votes, Vanneman said the suburbs would more likely side with board members from the outside counties, not the city.

State Rep. Bernard Wolfe, D-Chicago, who is organizing state legislators in favor of RTA, said yesterday that the General Assembly can amend the RTA bill anytime between now and 1975, when the RTA is expected to begin operating, if changes become necessary.

Doremus, Volkman benefit concert co-hosts

Two famous names in Chicago broadcasting will be in Arlington Heights Saturday night to serve as co-hosts of "Say It With Music," a benefit concert featuring the renowned University of Tulsa Modern Choir.

The hosts — radio personality John Doremus and NBC weatherman Harry Volkman — are alumni of the university choir and sang under director Arthur Hestwood, who is retiring this year after more than 20 years at Tulsa.

The Modern Choir concludes its current tour of eastern states with the Arlington Heights concert at 8 p.m. in St. Viator High School Theater, 1213 E. Oakton St.

Tickets are $2.50 with proceeds benefiting two local social service agencies — The Salvation Army Community Counseling Center and Northwest Opportunity Center.

DOREMUS is well-known to night owls as the mellow-voiced host of "The John Doremus Show" as well as for Monitor's "The Innovators" on the NBC Radio Network.

A graduate of radio-TV journalism at University of Tulsa, Doremus worked for stations in Tulsa and Oklahoma City before coming to Chicago in 1956. During the past 15 years he has been associated with WIND, WMAQ, WAIT, WGN and WCLR. He also supplies more than 100 radio stations throughout the country with programming similar to what he does in Chicago as well as providing in-flight audio entertainment for commercial airlines and producing educational broadcasts.

Volkman came to Chicago's Channel 5 in 1959 after 10 years of radio and TV weather forecasting in Tulsa and Oklahoma City. After years at NBC, Volkman was at WGN-TV from 1967 until his return to WMAQ-TV in 1970.

He studied physics and mathematics at Tufts College before graduating from Spartan School of Aeronautics in Tulsa in 1949. For the next two years he studied radio and speech at University of Tulsa.

"SAY IT WITH MUSIC" is a lively, fast-paced program of versatile music — from pop and show tunes to religious and classical — reflecting director Hestwood's former associations with Fred

John Doremus

Harry Volkman

Waring's Pennsylvanians, RCA Victor Chorale and the Robert Shaw Collegiate Chorale.

This is the second Arlington Heights appearance for the nationally acclaimed Modern Choir, whose benefit concert for The Salvation Army and Northwest Opportunity Center raised nearly $1,000 last year.

Tickets will be on sale at the door Saturday night. They may be purchased in advance at the following locations:

• Arlington Heights — Paddock Publications, 114 and 217 W. Campbell St., and Wheeling Town Hall, 1818 E. Northwest Hwy.

• Rolling Meadows — Northwest Opportunity Center, 3411 Kirchhoff.

• Mount Prospect — The Herald, 117 S. Main St.

• Palatine — The Herald, 19 N. Bothwell St.

• Des Plaines — The Salvation Army Community Counseling Center, 1797 Oakton St., and The Herald, 1383 Prairie Ave.

Many Northwest area churches also are making concert tickets available.

Children's car seats are rated

Consumers Union said yesterday very few children's car seats now on the market will do anything to prevent death or injury in an automobile accident, although they comply with government safety rules. The safest rating went to the GM Love Seat. Next came Bobby Mac 3-in-one Baby Chair, and third-rated is the Ford Tot Guard. Unacceptable were Chrysler Child Safety Seat; Sears Child Safety Harness (catalog number 6401); Irvin Child Car Seat and Safety Cushion, Model 1165; and Peterson Reclina, model 67b.

Court rules on teacher-pregnancy issue

The Supreme Court declared yesterday it is unconstitutional for school boards to set an arbitrary time when women teachers must give up their jobs during pregnancy. The vote was 7 to 2. Petitions, meanwhile, were filed with the court asking a review of a Florida decision declaring fathers have no right to prevent women from having an abortion.

'Progress' in Israeli-Syrian talks

From United Press International

U. S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger said Monday that "real progress" has been made toward Israeli-Syrian negotiations on troop disengagement, but a high Israeli official cautioned that matters were only at "the very beginning."

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat and his envoys fanned out to explain, in the face of criticism from some militant Arab quarters, the troop separation agreement between Egypt and Israel engineered by Kissinger last week.

Israeli Maj. Gen. Abraham Adan and Egyptian Maj. Gen. Taha al-Mahgoub met at Kilometer 101 on the Cairo-Suez road to discuss implementation of disengagement. The Israeli armed forces radio said that Adan asked Egypt to identify areas where Israel can find its war dead who are still missing.

A spokesman for the United Nations Emergency Force said the Israeli withdrawal from the West Bank of the Suez Canal would begin at noon Friday. He added that except for two "very minor" shootings not worthy of mention, Egypt and Israel have been scrupulously observing the cease-fire since signing of the disengagement agreement.

Upon arriving in Washington following his third Middle East tour since the October war, Kissinger said, "The most important thing is that my trip may have marked the beginning of normal human relations in the area."

But Israeli Commerce and Industry Minister Haim Bar-Lev, a former chief of staff, said, "There is nothing hard and dry. There is the separation of forces and the prisoner of war issue. This might lead to a formula for talks by linking the two. This is the very beginning of the possibilities for talks."

Meanwhile, congressional leaders said Monday that President Nixon assured them the United States made no secret deals to defend Israel when it mediated the Israeli-Egyptian disengagement pact.

"There are no secret agreements or understandings of any kind," Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield told newsmen after the briefing by Nixon and Secretary of State Kissinger.

Oil firms cheat, Ribicoff charges

From Herald news services

Sen. Abraham A. Ribicoff, D-Conn., looking straight at executives of seven oil companies sitting across the table, Monday accused industry giants of "cheating" and misleading the American public on the energy shortage.

Ribicoff confronted the company officials as Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., opened hearings by his Senate Permanent Subcommittee on Investigations into allegations the petroleum industry has clouded the supply picture and stands to profit heavily from the energy crisis.

The officials — representing Exxon, Amoco, Texaco, Gulf, Mobil, Standard of California and Shell — responded with statements saying the fuel shortage is real and that even harder times lie ahead.

Ribicoff told the executives:

"You are using the conditions we have — the fright and the panic — to squeeze out the small independent dealers and some of your own franchisees. You have misled Mr. (energy director William) Simon, and Mr. Simon has, innocently, misled the American people."

As for the oil depletion allowance and other tax-law provisions, Ribicoff said:

"The time has come to cut off these tax breaks. This is another way you are cheating the American public."

Roy A. Baze, an Exxon vice president, responded in a prepared statement denying that oil firms have fabricated the tight energy supply. "The current petroleum shortage is real," he said.

Meanwhile, President Nixon met with congressional leaders of both parties, and later with officials of the Federal Energy Office and the Internal Revenue Service. Nixon pledged at the latter session to force full reporting by the oil companies, saying: "The main thing I want is the truth."

In Houston, Simon renewed his pledge to audit the oil companies. To prevent hoarding he promised "to put a dip stick" into every major fuel supply tank in the nation.

In Washington, independent truckers staged a demonstration to protest short fuel supplies and soaring prices.

In Kuwait, Foreign Minister Sheikh Sabah Al Ahmed said any talk of lifting the Arab oil embargo against the United States was "premature."

He discounted early reports that the embargo would be lifted and oil production returned to September 1973 levels when Arab oil ministers meet today.

WITH BARELY a protest from consumers, beef prices have been climbing to last year's peak in parts of the country. In Phoenix, rib steaks have gone up 30 cents a pound. In Buffalo, N.Y. ground beef rose from 89 cents two months ago to $1.09. Los Angeles beef prices were up from 7 to 20 cents a pound. Prices in the Chicago area are still about normal.

ERA supporters win round in court

Supporters of the Equal Rights Amendment won a round in court Monday morning. Julius J. Hoffman, federal judge for the northern district, approved a motion to convene a 3-judge panel to reconsider the Illinois constitution's requirement for an "extraordinary majority" in voting on amendments to the U.S. Constitution.

The Illinois legislature last year approved the ERA by a simple majority and also a Constitutional majority, but not by the "extraordinary majority" required by the state constitution and also by the rules of the Illinois House of Representatives.

There were 95 "yes" votes, compared to the 107 needed for an "extraordinary majority."

ERA supporters, including Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, filed a lawsuit charging that the "extraordinary majority" requirement is unconstitutional, and asking that the ERA bill be declared passed in the House.

According to Mrs. Chapman, Judge Hoffman agreed that the issue is "a substantive federal question" and that a judgment should be made. He will ask Judge Luther M. Swygert of the U.S. Court of Appeals, 7th District, to appoint a panel of three judges, including Hoffman, to hear motions for summary judgment or dismissal.

"This is good," Mrs. Chapman commented. "It means something is happening, at least." She said ERA opponents had "tried hard to delay" a ruling.

ERA guarantees equal rights for women under the law and gives Congress power to enact specific legislation guaranteeing the right. Before it becomes an amendment to the U.S. Constitution, 38 states must pass it, and so far only 30 have.

The law allows until 1976 for adoption of the amendment.

Pressure on to decide on impeachment question

From Herald news services

Whatever is done about impeaching President Nixon, Congress has to get on with it.

That was the consensus as Congress returned to work after a month-long recess Monday, and leaders of both Senate and House called for a quick verdict — one way or the other — on the impeachment question.

In the House, where impeachment would occur before the Senate passed on the final verdict, Speaker Carl Albert said, "Speed is secondary to accuracy and thoroughness, but the very nature of the investigation indicates it should be expedited."

House Republican leader John Rhodes said the mood of the country is to "have this done and over with."

The strongest words came from House Democratic leader Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., who said Nixon had lost credibility with the nation and ought to resign.

The groundwork on impeachment is underway in the House Judiciary Committee, with counsel John Doar heading a special staff assembled to handle a sensitive investigation into whether there are legal grounds for impeachment.

The demand for action on impeachment renewed as Nixon began his sixth year as President, having first been inaugurated Jan. 20, 1969. He marked the day by meeting with Congressional leaders on the Middle East and with Internal Revenue Service officials on monitoring oil industry records.

The sixth year began as a Harris survey showed 82 per cent of Americans gave Nixon negative marks for his handling of the Watergate tapes case and 48 per cent favored impeachment if it was found he was negligent in taking care of the tapes.

A Gallup poll showed 37 per cent favoring impeachment, and the nation evenly divided — 46 per cent on each side — over whether Nixon should quit.

Saigon wants U.N. meeting on islands loss to China

From Herald news services

South Vietnam Monday requested an urgent meeting of the United Nations Security Council to discuss the latest crisis in Southeast Asia — Communist China's military seizure of the Paracel Islands.

The Saigon government also said the United States refused to send ships and helicopters to rescue scores of South Vietnamese and an American reported to be on the islands during the weekend battle with Chinese planes and troops.

The American was a meteorologist — still unidentified — stationed on Robert Island, the largest of the Paracels, and it is presumed he was killed or captured.

Elements of the U.S. 7th fleet are on station in the South China Sea, where the Paracels are located some 200 miles east of South Vietnam.

Saigon military sources said American ambassador Graham Martin gave a flat "no" when asked for help in evacuating personnel from the island — a refusal that was consistent with statements that the U.S. would remain neutral in the conflict.

South Vietnam Monday officially conceded loss of the islands, which have been claimed over the years by South Vietnam, Communist China and Nationalist China. It was the first fighting ever over the isolated islands, and Saigon reported some 250 of its troops killed, captured or missing.

The New China News Agency — with no mention of the American — said it would release those captured at "an appropriate time."

In South Vietnam, all troops in the Saigon area were put on full alert for the rest of the week in preparation for the Buddhist Tet Lunar New Year—a traditional time for stepped-up Viet Cong and North Vietnamese attacks.

A terrorist bomb exploded outside Saigon's huge Central Market, jammed with shoppers, killing at least two and injuring a dozen others.

Picking pimples can lead to infection ways advised against squeezing pimples around the nose and mouth.

Today when an infection does occur it can be quickly treated with antibiotics. So, it is not the dreaded rare complication it used to be. Nevertheless, it is still good advice not to squeeze forcefully on pimples. Rather it is best to let them mature and then carefully lift off the top and gently express the material. The area should be cleaned with alcohol first and a clean needle also sterilized or at least soaked in alcohol used. Never squeeze hard.

Your son should leave his spot alone. It might be worthwhile seeing if he can have the spot treated with an electric needle. A dermatologist should be able to treat it easily so that it will not be a problem in the future for him and will not affect his appearance. But, I think you can put your mind at ease about the possibility that he has the same problem you read about.

New rules for housing in works?

Upcoming hearings on Wheeling's planned-development ordinance may lead to the establishment of new rules for apartment, townhouse and single-family housing in such projects.

The plan commission opened public hearings on the ordinance last week to discuss problems that have developed under the present rules.

Village Atty. Paul Hamer said the present ordinance, written in 1967, did not take into account the trend towards condominiums and townhouses. He said the ordinance assumed that all the property would remain under one ownership instead of being sold off to individual residents.

Therefore, Hamer said the village does not have any specific requirements on the way such for-sale housing should be built. For example, he said the village has no lot-size requirements for townhouses.

THE ATTORNEY also noted that in condominium projects, the village ends up dealing with a number of different property owners. He said these are the people owning the condominiums as well as the condominium association, which owns the land and the walls of the building.

Plan commission members said they also wished to see the village given more control over the density of planned developments. They noted that often a developer will build a low density townhouse section and a high-density apartment area in the same planned development.

Village Mgr. George Passolt suggested that the village enact different density requirements for each type of housing. He said that while the present 16-unit-per-acre requirement is suitable for apartments, a townhouse project should have a lower density.

ALTHOUGH this revision would require hearings by the zoning board, Hamer said the hearings were scheduled by the plan commission to collect information on present problems.

"The reason we came to you gentlemen is because you are really the ones who are faced with it," Hamer said. He said that after property is zoned for a planned development, the zoning board has little to do with the matter.

The commission members have asked that the building director, village engineer, fire chief, village attorney, planner and police chief all submit reports on their problems with planned developments.

These reports will be reviewed at the next public hearing scheduled for Feb. 21. If the commission decides that zoning changes are needed, they will ask the village board to take the matter to the zoning board.

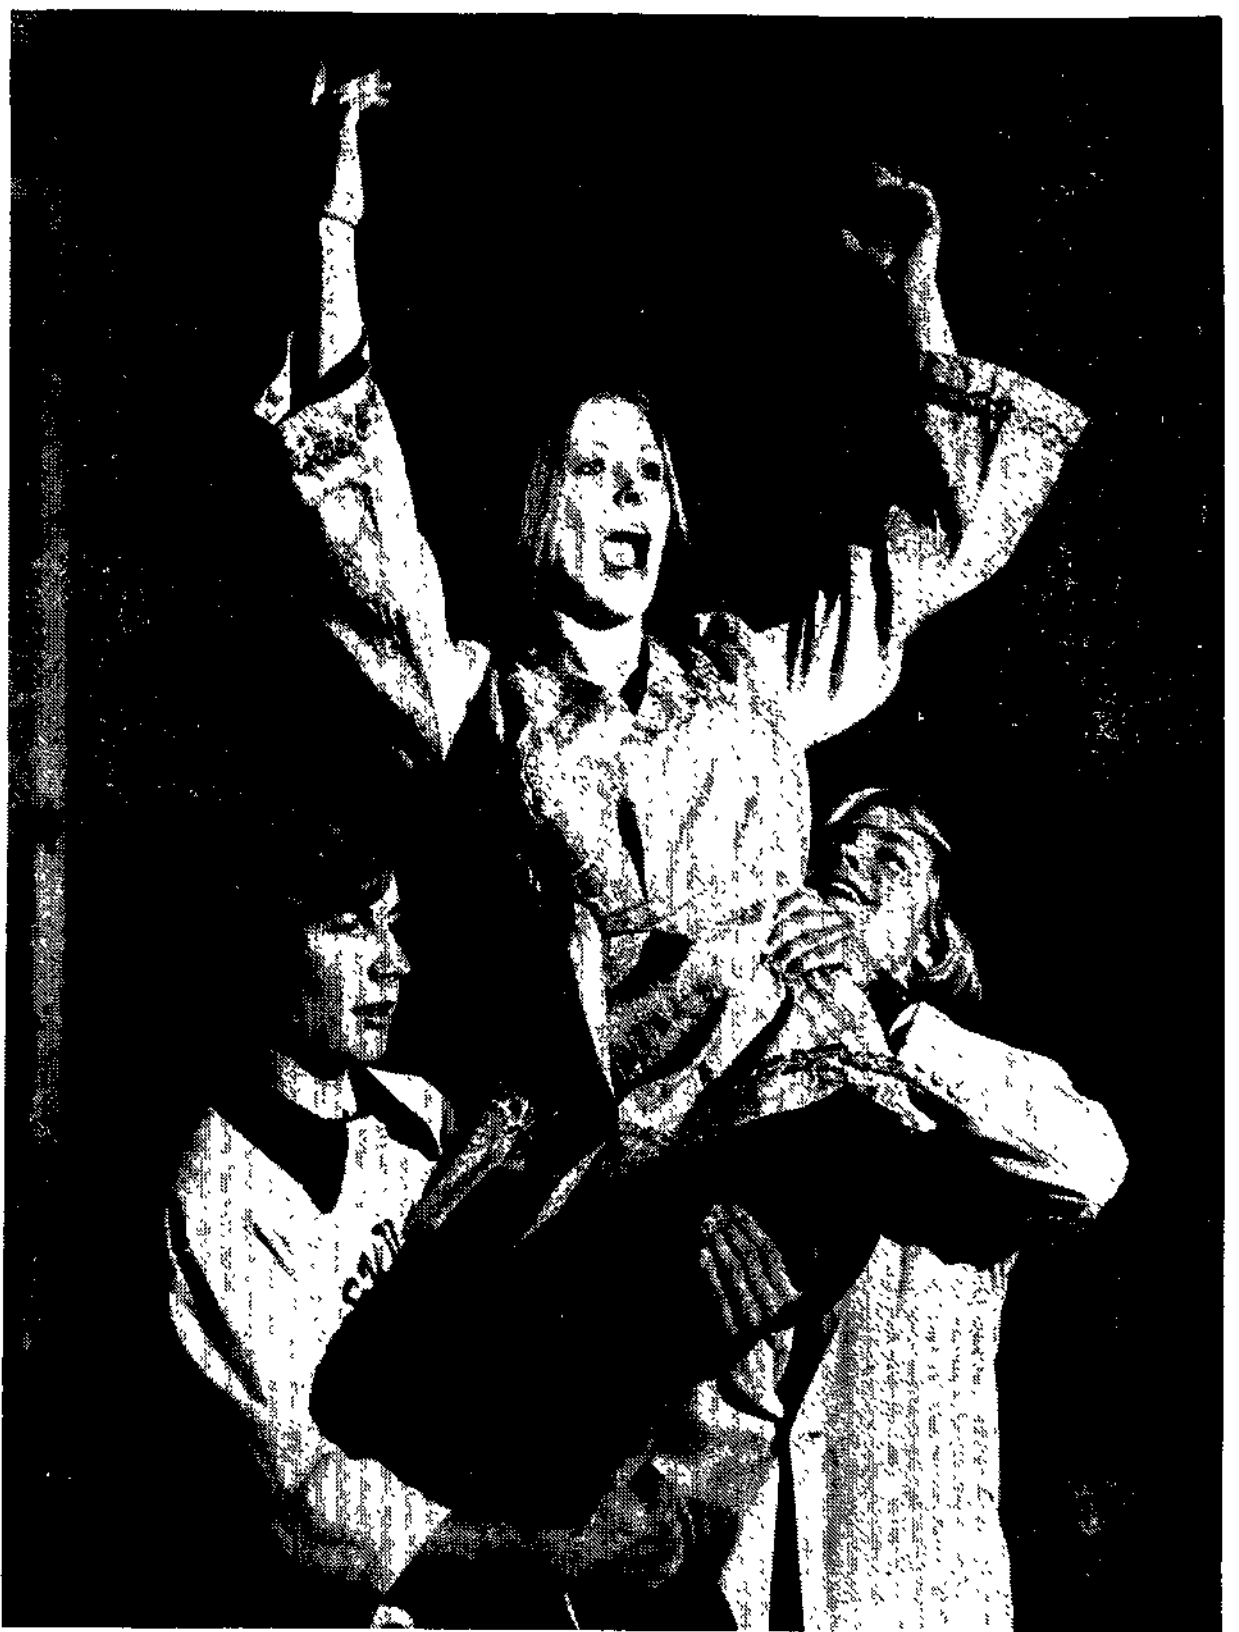

WHS choral students to weekend in Texas

Eighty-six choral students from Wheeling High School will spend this weekend in Texas.

The students will fly south Thursday at the invitation of the director of choral at Baylor University in Waco. The choir, New Dawn singing group and Madrigal Singers will perform at the university on Friday.

On Saturday, the students will tour the National Aeronautics and Space Administration headquarters and the Astrodome in Houston. Sunday the choir will perform for a church service.

Choir students raised money for the trip by selling candy, Christmas cards and candles and received financial assistance from the Wheeling Choral League. Choral director Frank Dobler said, "We are honored by the invitation and I feel it will be a good experience for the students. They certainly have been working hard rehearsing their performance and earning money."

will begin at 2:30 p.m. Tickets are $3 each for evening performances and $1.50 each for the matinee. Reservations may be made by calling St. Viator School at 392-4050 or Sacred Heart School at 392-6880 between 8:30 a.m. and 4 p.m. weekdays.

NW suburban hospitals still closed to abortions

by KURT BAER

A year after the U.S. Supreme Court's decision legalizing abortion, the doors of Northwest area hospitals remain closed to women seeking their Constitutional right.

The board of directors of Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights has made no move to reconsider its policy permitting abortions only in cases where the mother's life or health are threatened, said Hospital Pres. Malcolm MacCoun yesterday.

Lutheran General Hospital in Park Ridge reportedly is still studying the issue.

And area Catholic hospitals, Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village and Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines, of course, remain opposed to abortion on demand.

THE LACK OF abortion facilities in the suburbs is still a matter of concern to State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights.

"We have now a U.S. Supreme Court decision which makes it clear that laws cannot interfere with a woman's right to privacy when hospitals are funded by the public as Northwest Community Hospital was," Mrs. Chapman said yesterday.

"Hospitals that do not permit a woman and her doctor to make a medical decision of this nature are not being responsive to the public they serve," she said.

Every public opinion poll by 3rd District legislators has shown that 75 to 80 per cent of the people in the district think that abortion should be a matter of individual decision between a woman and her doctor, Mrs. Chapman said.

Ultimately the legality of a hospital refusing to perform abortions for other than religious reasons will be decided by the Supreme Court, she said. There are cases in the courts right now to test the hospital policies.

"I WOULD NOT expect a hospital with religious affiliation, or a doctor with personal or religious beliefs that are opposed to abortion to participate," she said.

Some doctors at Northwest Community Hospital voted in favor of performing abortions there last April. However, the hospital's board of directors in June agreed not to alter their previous policy.

MacCoun said yesterday there probably have been fewer abortion inquiries at Northwest Community since the Supreme Court decision was announced a year ago than before the highly-publicized ruling.

A special study committee at Lutheran General Hospital has submitted its secret report to the hospital's president, a spokesman there said.

The recommendations will be submitted to the hospital's board for consideration soon, the spokesman said.

Prospect Heights parks to meet

The Prospect Heights Park District will meet at 8 tonight in the Prospect Heights Public Library, 3 N. Elm St. The meeting will be the first regular meeting since the park board changed its meeting schedule.

Last week, the park board unanimously voted to meet on the second and fourth Tuesdays of each month. Previously, meetings had been held on the second and fourth Mondays.

Although no reason was given, it is believed the change may have been made in conjunction with the board's hiring of a new attorney. The board hired William J. Moore, of Sitt, Moore, Kearns, Szala, Bieg and Weirauch, 102 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights, to replace John Haas, who had been the board's attorney since its inception. Board President Joseph Lesniak said the change was made because Haas "had too much work." Moore was hired through March 1, 1975.

300 gallons of fuel stolen from firm

Approximately 300 gallons of diesel gasoline were stolen last weekend from Meyer Material Co., 129 S. Railroad Ave., Wheeling.

A spokesman for the company said that sometime between Saturday night and Monday morning the thieves broke into the firm's diesel pump, taking about 400 gallons of the fuel. He said the thieves also siphoned about 400 gallons of fuel from the firm's trucks.

No report on the theft was available yesterday from the Wheeling Police Department.

Carpenter stolen

Carpet remnants valued at $75 were stolen last week during a burglary at the Norman J. Chafetz residence, 1710 Otawa Ct., Wheeling police said.

The carpeting was stolen between 8 p.m. Wednesday and 11:51 a.m. Friday, police said. There was no sign of forced entry, they added.

Park district swim programs open Saturday

The Wheeling Park District swim programs will begin Saturday, with registration now being accepted at Heritage Park, 222 S. Wolf Rd.

The children's learn-to-swim instruction is offered on Wednesdays and Saturdays at Neptune's Pool, 900 S. Elmhurst Rd. To enroll in beginners classes, a youngster should be able to stand in the shallow end of the pool with water coming below the chin line.

Classes are also being offered at the advanced beginners, intermediate swimmers, swimmers and advanced swimmers levels. The lessons cost $4 per child for the eight-week session.

A special preschool swim class is scheduled from 11 to 11:45 a.m. Saturdays. Mothers assist their children in the water teaching them to float, dive and do the crawl stroke.

Junior lifesaving lessons are offered on Saturdays for youngsters ages 14 through 17. Classes will run from 5 to 6:30 p.m. and cost $10 for the eight week session.

Volunteer youths ages 14 to 17 are eligible to participate in the water safety aide program. Aides will learn how to assist instructors in the learn-to-swim classes. The program is scheduled from 5 to 6:30 p.m. on Saturdays.

Adult swim lessons at Neptune's Pool are being offered from 9 to 10 p.m. Wednesdays. The class is limited to 15 people and costs $8.

Nudist group denied pool-rent OK

A nudist family group has been denied permission to rent the Wheeling Park District's Neptune's Pool because of problems with staffing the facility.

Park Supt. Dave Phillips said he received a request from a nudist group to rent the indoor pool. Since he was unsure about park district policy on such matters, Phillips sought guidance from the park board, which turned down the request.

"The board disallowed their use of the facility really on the principles that we are trying to provide open swimming for as many people as possible," Phillips said.

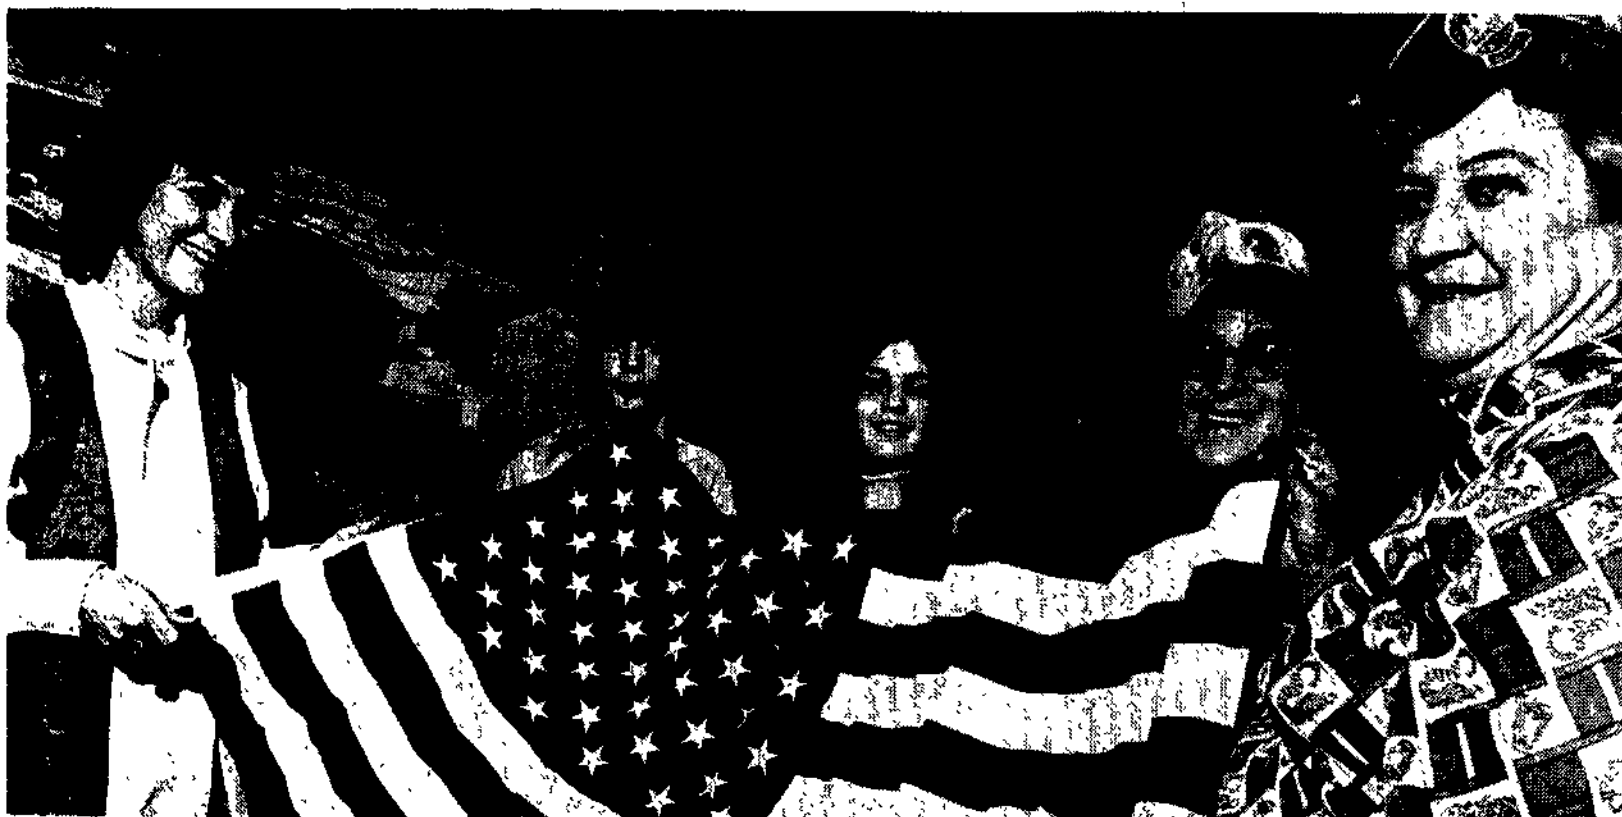

A learn-to-dive program for children is scheduled from noon to 12:45 p.m. Saturdays. The program is geared for teaching diving fundamentals and costs $5.

In-water skin and scuba diving instruction is offered from 9 to 10 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays at Neptune's Pool. Classroom instruction runs from 7 to 9 p.m. The lessons cost $50 for 30 hours of instruction.

The park superintendent said there was no question of impropriety by the group. He said the board was merely concerned about the security of the building and who would supervise the swimming. Park district rules require that park personnel be present for any use of the pool.

"We would have to eliminate people from using the facility during that time," Phillips said of the request. "For those reasons, it was decided the board didn't feel that type of use was desired, at least right now."

Phillips noted that this was the first request he had received from a nudist group wishing to rent the pool.

Hersey stretches unbeaten duel skein to 13 straight

Mid-Suburban League gymnastics teams flexed their muscles outside the conference Saturday, earning four victories against just one setback.

Headlining the local's success was Hersey's powerful 142.57 to 139.17 triumph over state-ranked Evanston. Conant handed Glenbard East, 125.37 to 110.75, Wheeling conquered Maine West, 116.21 to 89.54 and Prospect defeated Willowbrook, 110.23 to 97.90 while Buffalo Grove came out on the short end against Oak Park's junior varsity, 107.22 to 82.58.

The Huskies, who have only one invitational loss to blemish its otherwise perfect 13-0 dual-meet record, displayed an incredible array of balance in trimming the Wildkitts.

Hersey tallied at least 22 points in each event and was paced by Ron Mitsos' sparkling 8.6 in free ex, Bruce Freed-man's 8.55 on horse, John Ludwigsen's 7.9 on high bar, Mike Kropp's 8.65 tramp routine, Mike Murphy's 8.5 p-bar score and Bob Sommerfeld's 7.75 on rings.

Conant continued to flirt with the 130 mark with at least 18.7 points in each event headed by Jerry Hawkinson's 7.6 on horse, Tim Dern's 7.85 on high bar, 8.15 on rings and 7.95 on p-bars, Tom Hall's 8.15 on tramp and Mark Mueller's 7.95 on rings. Dern averaged a hefty 7.22 in all-around.

Wheeling's triumph was derived from a quick opening and a strong finish. Dennis Reiter's 8.25 and Rich Tomczyk's 7.2 spearheaded floor exercise while Jim Scott's 8.25 and Tom Antoni's 7.8 insured a winner on rings.

Sandwiched in between were Jim Styles' 7.9 on high bar and 7.25 on p-bars and Bill Harvel's winning 7.95 average on parallel bars.

Curt Cederberg's 7.65 on parallel bars ignited Prospect's victory which was also bolstered by Doug Zahour's 6.65 on the floor, Steve Scheibel's 7.35 on horse, Jim McBride's 7.2 and Bob McKee's 7.05 on high bar, McKee's 6.05 on tramp and Paul Shively's 7.2 on rings.

Buffalo Grove celebrated its first home meet with a steady showing spiced by Mike Rine's 5.6, Phil Laier's 5.5 and Wayne Dulin's 5.4 in free ex, Dulin's 5.5 on high bar and 5.6 on p-bars, and the combined efforts of Mark Farrington's 6.1 and Brian Faczek's 6.9 on rings.

JACKS OR BETTER. Nobody was better than Elk Grove's Jack Henry on rings as the stellar senior paced the Grenadiers to a sweep.

HE'S TOPS. Hersey's floor exercise ace Ron Mitsos is the only gymnast to rank at the top of the area honor roll for four straight weeks. His 8.6 helped beat Evanston.

SPOTLIGHT ON GYMNASTICS

Mid-Suburban gymnasts battle on even terms

Gymnastics Editor

It was a night of tension-packed photo finishes in the Mid-Suburban League's gymnastics derby for everyone but Hersey which appears to have the dual-meet portion of the season safely tucked away.

The Huskies are the only unbeaten club in the MSL and they figure to keep that status through the remaining three weeks before the conference meet.

But elsewhere, blanket finishes were the rule as eight of the 12 squads soared to their top team scores of the season. Elk Grove hit the top score of the campaign with a blistering 144.03 to edge Rolling Meadows' school record 138.84 and previously undefeated Arlington's best of 135.65.

In another nailbiter, Conant recorded its season high with a 128.48 to barely topple the peaks of Prospect's 125.96 and Wheeling's 121.79.

The tossup of the evening went to Palatine's 88.54 total that barely eclipsed

Fremd's 88.34 and Buffalo Grove's 82.38. Hersey, meanwhile, piled up 141.92 to defeat Schaumburg's 99.10 and Forest View's 93.58.

ELU HOMECOMING

Three Eastern Illinois University grads — Elk Grove's Fred Gaines, Rolling Meadows' Vic Avigliano and Tom Chapman of Arlington — celebrated a reunion by coaching their respective teams to a scintillating conclusion.

Upon entering the final event, the Grenadiers tallied 110.40, the Mustangs 108.35 and the Cardinals 107.05. But Elk Grove's strength on rings earned the twin verdict.

Jack Henry muscled his way to an incredible 9.0 routine and received considerable support from Bill Bosslet's 8.6 and George Beahan's 8.1 for a resounding 25.7 event total.

The Grenadiers were also buoyed by Bosslet's 8.15 on the floor, Mike Heiberger's 8.45 on horse, Bosslet's 8.6 on high bar, Dave Hadley's 8.15 on tramp, Dave Niemeyer's 8.35 on p-bars and Bosslet's 7.95 all-around average.

Despite Elk Grove's individual glory, the spotlight didn't detract from Mike Godawa's performance for Meadows. The defending state champion all-arounder was exceptional in hitting 8.1 in free ex, 7.95 on horse, 8.85 on high bar, 8.5 on parallel bars and 8.55 on rings for an astounding 8.39 five-event average! That's best in the state this year.

Arlington stayed in the hunt off the 8.55 by Chris Freas, the 8.3 by Nick Koehnke and the 8.0 by Greg Burmeister on side horse and the 8.4 by Bob Flubacher on trampoline.

COUGARS BY A NOSE

Conant withstood late rushes by Prospect and Wheeling to capture both victories. The Cougars built an early lead around the efforts of Jerry Hawkinson's 7.95 on side horse routine, Tim Dern's 7.85 on high bar, 7.95 on parallel bars and 7.45 on rings. Tom Hall's 7.96 tramp score, Mark Mueller's 7.5 on rings and Dern's steady 7.23 all-around average sealed the verdict.

Prospect earned a split for the evening when Doug Zahour uncorked an 8.45 in free ex, Steve Scheibel rode the horse for an 8.05, Jim McBride and Bob McKee teamed for 8.15 and 8.0 on high bar, Curt Cederberg notched 7.95 on parallel bars and Paul Shively conquered rings with an 8.2.

Although achieving its best score of the season, Wheeling was saddled with two losses even though Dennis Reiter tumbled to 7.95 on the floor, Jim Styles clicked for an 8.45 on high bar, Bill Harvel registered 8.45 on parallel bars and Jim Scott and Tom Antoni combined for 8.55 and 8.2 on rings.

PIRATES WIN WITH RUSH

Palatine saved its strongest event for last as Dan Flick's 7.9, Paul Sunseri's 7.1 and Bob Gran's 5.1 on rings earned an extremely snug double triumph.

Gran carried the Pirates in the early going with a 6.4 in free ex, a 6.1 on high bar, a 6.4 on tramp and a 5.5 on p-bars toward a 5.19 all-around average.

Fremd's narrow split was highlighted by the 7.45 by Dale Burrow and the 6.9 by Dick Morris in free exercise while John Krause won horse with 5.3 and Mike Baldocchi high bar with 5.8. Morris added a 6.15 on tramp and Baldocchi closed fast with a 7.25 on p-bars and a 5.9 on rings for a 5.04 all-around mean.

Buffalo Grove suffered the heart-breaking twin setback despite Phil Laier's 6.9 and Mike Rine's 5.8 on the floor, Paul Schultz's 4.1 on horse, Dulin's 5.4 on high bar and 5.2 on parallel bars, and Rine's 4.6 on tramp. The Bison enjoyed success on rings off Brian Faczek's 6.1 and Mark Farrington's 5.85.

HUSKIES BREEZE TO 8-0

Hersey rose to its second straight 140-plus total with a whopping 47.4 total after just two events. Ron Mitsos (8.5),

Demons win but lose Kutin

Maine East won a Central Suburban victory over Deerfield but lost its best all-around man before the meet when Stan Kutin broke his leg last Saturday in warm-ups. It was the fifth broken bone sustained this year by East gymnasts.

The Blue Demons beat Deerfield, 117.20 to 110.38. In other CSL meets,

Niles West won easily over Maine West, 135.08 to 97.34, and New Trier West beat Maine North, 87.48 to 78.94.

Maine East's top score was an 8.4 on still rings by Mike Nybakken. Maine's best event was a 21.95 on parallel bars. Scores included Mark Russ 7.75, Scott Miller 7.30 and Cary Bell 6.90.

Other event leaders for Maine were Steve Slaw in free exercise (7.35), Steve Silberman on side horse (7.05), John Gervens on horizontal bar (7.70) and Jon Larsen on trampoline (6.75).

Mark Schludi's 7.65 in free exercise was Maine West's top score. The Warriors' best event was a 19.8 in free ex which included Ken Heller (6.2) and Kevin Henderson (5.95).

Remaining event leaders for Maine West were Neal Sosdian on side horse (4.95), Steve Taylor on high bar (6.7), Heller on trampoline (6.15) plus Taylor on parallel bars (5.95) and still rings (5.85).

Joe Lechner's 6.9 led Maine North to its best event total when the Norsemen scored 19.15 in free exercise against New Trier West. George Martenia added a 6.85 on Larry Sachs 5.40.

Other event leaders for the Norsemen were Bob Rodriguez on side horse (3.5), Kevin Michols on trampoline (3.1) and still rings (4.95), Martenia on horizontal bar (4.65) and Brad Stridde on parallel bars (5.1).

In non-conference meets, Wheeling defeated Maine West, 116.21 to 89.54. Maine North defeated Warrenville, 73.01 to 32.56. New season records are Maine West 2-7, Maine East 4-5 and Maine North 3-7.

Summaries on page 8

Keith Oehlsen (8.05) and Mark Kleiner (7.4) got the Huskies off and running with a 23.95 event sum after floor exercise while Bruce Freedman's electrifying 8.85 and John Maseng's 7.85 helped earn 23.45 points on horse.

The momentum carried over into high bar where John Ludwigsen uncorked a nifty 8.2 routine and Don Zasady's 7.75 and Mike Kropp's 7.45 paced tramp.

Kevin Muenz employed his gold medal 7.75 parallel bar routine toward a 6.92 all-around average and Bob Sommerfeld captured rings with a 7.9.

The highlight of Schaumburg's scoring came on high bar where giant ace Asie Klemma dazzled to a blue-ribbon 8.55 having added a 6.55 on the floor, a 6.55 on p-bars and 6.55 on rings.

Rich Ninow's 7.95 and Jim Buckley's 7.65 carried free ex while Rich came back for a 5.0 on tramp and brother Steve contributed a 5.6 on p-bars.

Forest View was spearheaded by John Scola's 5.95 in free ex, Kevin Harvey's 6.6 on horse, John Buyers' 6.0 on high bar, Bob Walsh's 6.55 on tramp, Kevin Gawne's 6.25 on p-bars and Rich Valentine's 6.4 on rings.

Men's prize to Town and Country Builders

What does it take to win a Paddock Publications bowling tournament?

If you follow the example from this 1974 edition of the men's competition, it takes every bowler hitting over average with a couple big efforts.

Town and Country Builders of the Sportsmen's League at Wood Dale Bowl shot a sparkling 2764 scratch and 3073 with handicap Sunday to take the big prize in the men's action at Buffalo Grove Striker Lanes.

The champs finished with a haul of 37 pins over runnerup Dugan's Bistro of the Northwest Businessmen's at Thunderbird.

For Town and Country, it was the case of every bowler bettering his average with Dan Summers and Al Hinkhouse chalking up the exceptional performances.

Summers, a 180-average performer coming into the action Sunday, fashioned a booming 569 on games of 181-214-174. That put Dan 62 pins over average and the team leader, but he had help — lots of help.

Al Hinkhouse, who carried a 159 average at the tourney, produced a snappy 528 series, opening at 181 and closing at 200. He wound up 51 pins over average.

In a strong supporting cast for the champs were John Cella with a 531 (18 pins over average), Jerry Edwards with a 500 (15 over his team-leading 195 average), and Jim Nebel with a 536 (5 pins over average).

Town and Country needed a strong effort in the 7:45 p.m. squad to overtake the 3036 shot by Dugan's Bistro at 2:55.

Rolling out of Thunderbird, Dugan's fashioned a 3036, again following the formula that proved so effective for the champs. Every bowler was over average, and two had big performances.

Don Krontz posted the top series for Dugan's with a 518, but Lon Johns actually was the man with the most pins over average. Krontz was 45 over and Johns was 58 with a 511 that finished at 192. Krontz closed at 198.

Ed Schaffer came through with a 534 (18 over), Ed Davison a 505 (16 over), and August Rosencrans a 502 (16 over) to round out the runnerup total.

The Paddock tourney was held in Buffalo Grove, but the Green Bay Bears took third place money with a 3033, a total that would have won seven previous meets. They rolled in the 5:20 p.m. squad.

Rick Schuessler was the leader for the Bears of the Illinois Bell Telephone League at Beverly Lanes. A 172-average bowler, Schuessler opened with a pair of 203 games and finished at 170 for a 576 series.

Also contributing to the third place total were Dave Zell with a big 554 despite a 154-average, Mike Caslin with 523, Jerry Phillips with 478 and a 207 finish, and Tom Klingsporn with a 472.

The Thursday Night Men's Handicap League from Thunderbird contributed the fourth place team in Pilgrims Plymouth. They fired a 2566 actual and 3025 with handicap.

Bob Michalak paced the Pilgrims entry with a 546 that was compiled on games of 197-176-173. Jim Franzone was right behind with a 540, and Paul Donato also topped 500 with a 518.

George Barber closed with a booming 209 for a 493, and Rich Skorka had a 469, also finishing well at 469.

The top ten teams finished in the money, and All Temp Heating had the high game out of the money with a 1026. All results are unofficial, pending verification of averages, and prize money will not be distributed for about two weeks.

Two Paddock tournaments will be held this weekend at Rolling Meadows Fairlanes Bowl.

The champagne tourney for mixed leagues will be staged Saturday with a team trophy, four individual trophies, and $540 in estimated prizes.

The women's competition is set for Sunday, Jan. 27, with a team trophy, five individual trophies, and $1215 in estimated prizes set for the leaders.

Mid-Suburban girls launch cage schedule

The Mid-Suburban Conference's girls will begin basketball competition tonight with a limited schedule because of final exams.

Conant will be at Hersey and Fremd at Elk Grove. "B" games will begin at 6:30 p.m. with "A" contests to follow.

Four other scheduled meetings between MSC teams will be played on Saturday — Palatine at Forest View, Arlington at Schaumburg, Rolling Meadows at Hoffman Estates and Buffalo Grove at Prospect. Wheeling has a bye this week.

Schools not playing "B" games this season will be Buffalo Grove, Fremd, Palatine and Schaumburg.

Regulation rules — almost identical with boys' rules — will be adhered to except the quarters for "B" games will be shortened to six minutes.

All games (except for the final exam exceptions) will be played on Tuesday and Thursday evenings.

At the conclusion of the season (Feb. 19), the North Division winner will play the South Division winner to determine the MSC championship. That Tuesday night game will be played at the North champs' gym.

Sacred Heart girls play Meadows today

Sacred Heart High School's girls will open their basketball season against visiting Rolling Meadows High this afternoon at 4 p.m. with a "B" game. The "A" game will follow.

Sacred Heart will be celebrating its new membership in the Illinois High School Association with this contest with its across-the-street-rival.

The hosting school will play visiting Schaumburg Thursday and will be at Arlington next Tuesday.

Coch of the teams is Joan Penzcek.

Arlington Park Towers will telecast heavyweight fight

By special arrangement with Madison Square Garden Corporation, the Arlington Park Towers will be the only hotel in the Chicago area to carry the live closed-circuit telecast of the Muhammad Ali-Joe Frazier heavyweight rematch on Monday, Jan. 28.

The luxury hotel, located at Euclid Avenue and Rohlwing Road at Illinois Route 53 in Arlington Heights, will provide the telecast on color TV monitors both in its hotel rooms and its large banquet hall, as it did for the first Ali-Frazier battle.

Hotel rooms, for private parties of up to eight persons, may be purchased for $100 a room, and banquet hall facilities will be available at $12.50 a seat. Room service, from snacks to gourmet dinners, will be available, and banquet halls will be equipped with bar service.

Robert Timperio, general manager of the hotel, listed check-in time on fight night at 6 p.m. and encouraged those interested to come early, have dinner, and to use the Arlington Park Towers' other facilities. The telecast will begin at 8:30 p.m. with preliminary bouts.

Interested fight fans are asked to call 394-2000 for information.

State office tightens rules on eligibility

CHICAGO — UPI — The Illinois High School Association announced Friday that its member schools have voted to tighten eligibility rules for athletes in the aftermath of several prep recruiting cases.

The IHSA said the rules would be changed so that "legal guardianship" will no longer be the major factor in determining eligibility.

"It will be only one of the factors involved in determining eligibility, not the sole factor," the IHSA announcement said.

The announcement did not say specifically what other factors would be involved.

The rules change follows several incidents involving suspect recruiting of teenage athletes. The most publicized case involved the transfer of two basketball players — one from Lockport and the other from Milwaukee, Wis. — to Rock Island High School.

The IHSA said the changes were approved in a referendum vote among the some 730 Illinois high schools which are members of the association.

Other changes, the IHSA said, included:

—Alteration of the rules on summer sports camps to permit basketball players and athletes in sports other than fall sports to attend summer coaching camps up to the start of the new school year. Fall sports include football, cross country, soccer, and golf.

—Permission to hold contests in fall sports — except football — as soon as school opens. The first football contest, however, still cannot be played until the first Friday after Labor Day.

—Allow students who become academically ineligible after the second semester to make up the deficiency in summer school and become eligible for sports in the fall semester.

Elk Grove hockey action

The Elk Grove Amateur Hockey League "B" team won two games and lost three in recent action.

Playing at the Polar Dome, Elk Grove lost to Dundee, 4-3, despite two goals from Craig Hurler and one by Ron Culppepper. Assists went to Jim Berkett and Bill Foster.

The Peewees romped past Shields' Blades, 14-0, as Paul Carucci led the scoring with four goals and Henrik contributed three. Jim Tucker, Monty Bishop, Mike Bloom, and Tom Sitaruk also scored. Assists were credited to Greg Kosowski (two), Mike Guendling (two), Mike Bloom (two), and Dennis Ganci.

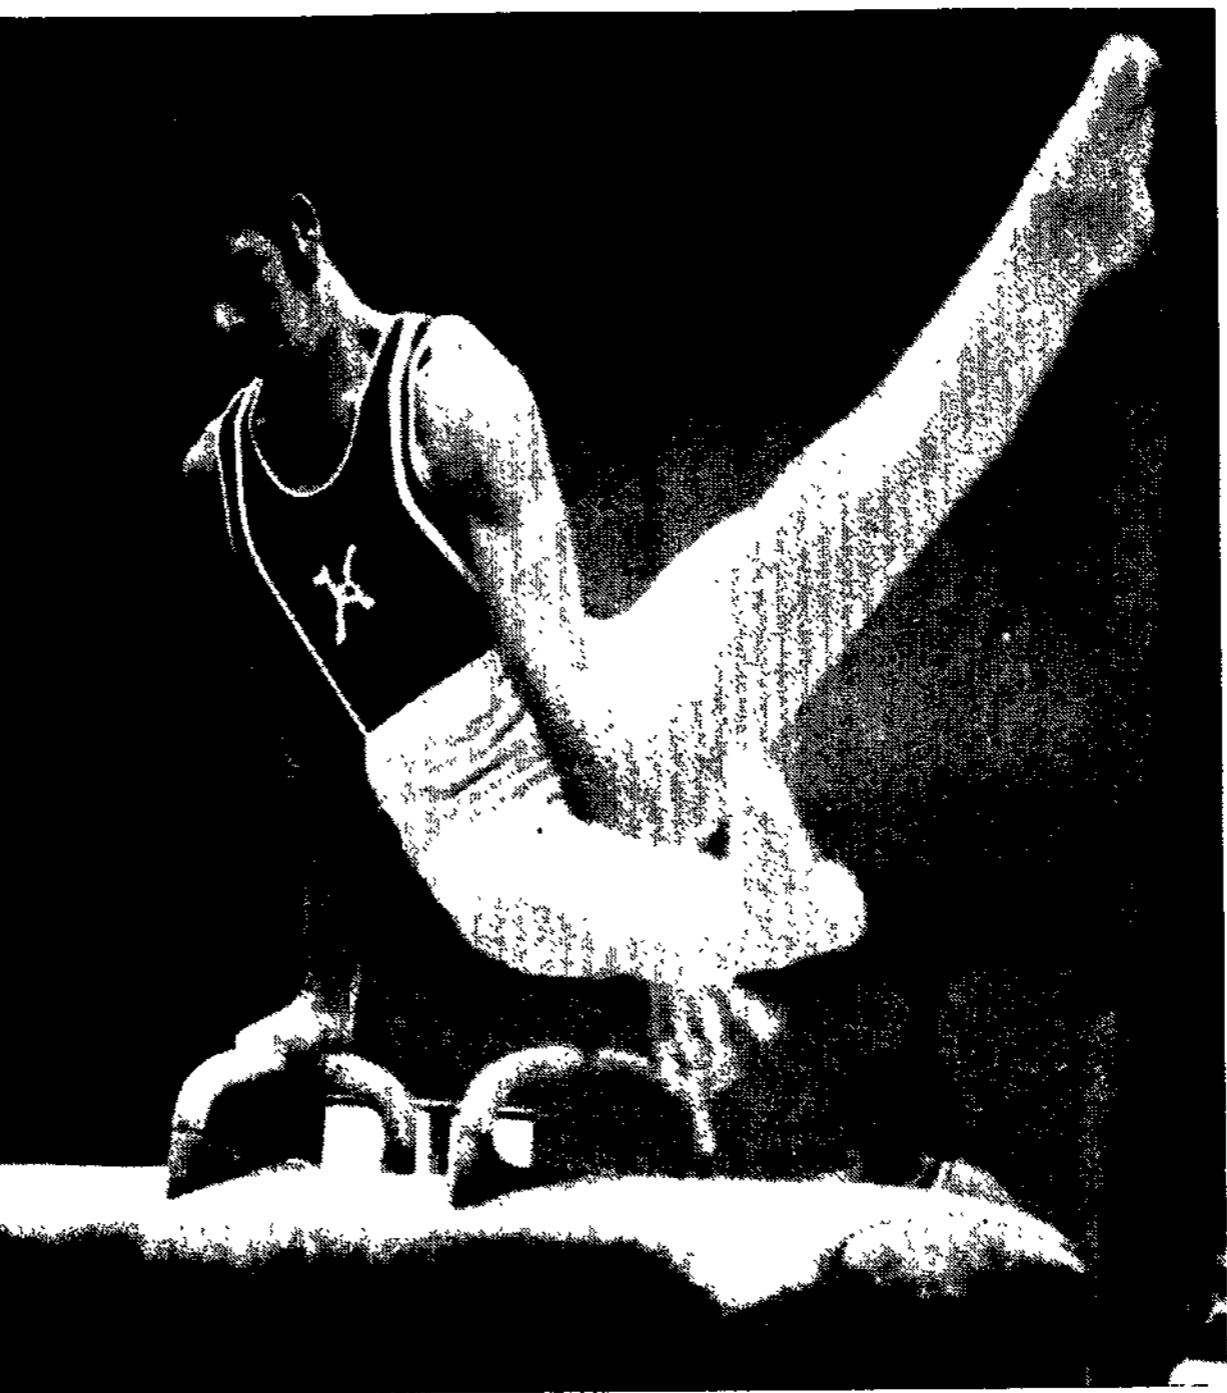

Barucci scored the only goal, assisted by Kevin Renken, as Elk Grove fell to Elmhurst, 4-1.

Elk Grove came back, again at the expense of Shields' Blades, with a 5-1 victory. Henrik registered his second "hat trick" and Steve Erick and Mike Guendling drove home two goals apiece. Bloom and Ganci assisted, while assists were given to Ganci (three), John Malone (three), Bishop, Steve Houala, Henrik, and Guendling.

Schaumburg defeated Elk Grove, 3-1, as Ganci scored the lone goal assisted by Houala.

At Striking Lanes

The Burs' led the Astros to three wins over first place Dodgers in the Randwood Mixed League at Striking Lanes — Mickey a 483/176-174 and husband Floyd a 528. Other highs were Tom Wisniewski's 558, Jim Wierszanski 530 and Andy Cates 505. John Sinks came through with a 430 on her first night as a regular.

JOCKEYING THROUGH his scissors routine on side two performances over the weekend, Freedman clicked horse, Hersey's Bruce Freedman was near flawless in for an 8.85 Thursday and an 8.55 Saturday.

Local clinic needs our backing

The great debate over funding for Crossroads Clinic, a medically staffed clinic which provides venereal disease treatment and birth control advice, and methods will be resumed today at 8 p.m. at Sanborn School in Palatine.

At issue is a $5,000 allocation to the clinic from Palatine Township officials. The revenue sharing grant, to be used for the purchase of medical equipment, was made last October, and many angry local residents now would like to see that grant revoked.

The Herald believes that the township should stand behind the $5,000 grant, as the extent of the seriousness of venereal disease alone dictates the need for every medical tool to battle this ailment.

Statistics kept at Crossroads underscore the venereal disease problem, as well as the present popularity of the clinic among teenagers. A total of 996 youths visited the clinic during the past six months; 37 persons were seen in just one night last week. A total of 417 of these teenagers were tested for venereal disease alone.

A key point for the clinic's critics is that, under new Illinois laws, parental consent isn't needed for teenagers to get venereal disease treatment or contraceptives. Those critics have charged that the clinic's use of this law takes away responsibility from parents.

It concerns us that the clinic makes little effort to involve parents. Although Crossroads is a no-nonsense medical clinic, we feel the problems of teenagers should be encouraged to become the problems of their parents, too.

Despite the fact that parents should be involved in these problems, too often there's a mutual distrust. If it is necessary and legal to treat a problem without help from parents, then perhaps regretfully, that treatment should proceed without parental permission.

Crossroads Clinic seems to us the kind of professional clinic we can support. It is staffed entirely by licensed physicians, and no psychological counseling is attempted. Contraceptives are not prescribed for persons under 14 years of age, and the staff maintains a close relationship with county and state officials.

Abortions should not be the issue in tonight's debate, for the clinic provides neither abortions nor abortion counseling. Instead, requests for abortion counseling are referred to The Bridge, another agency in Palatine Township.

Judging from the caseload, Crossroads has become a popular place, as such problems as venereal disease and unwanted pregnancies are increasing — as is the desire for birth control assistance. If the clinic is to be effective in dealing in these areas, then it deserves public funding to do its job.

When teenagers need a clinic where parental involvement is not necessary, it's proof that parent-child relations have broken down. Perhaps, when parents and their children begin to realize their responsibilities to each other, such an approach won't be necessary.

'DST a winter clinker'

Like most ordinary citizens, I've often wondered what takes Congress so long to act on some legislation but other bills are passed and become law faster than a speeding bullet or Henry Kissinger. Since the swift passage of the bill to bring back Daylight Saving Time in the dead of winter I don't wonder any more — it's obvious that the clinkers are voted on with almost no debate.

Daylight Saving Time in January is a clinker.

The first morning I was gypped out of that hour of sleep I turned on the light in the bedroom to find my slippers, then sleep-walked to the kitchen and turned on the light to get the coffee started.

Next I brushed my teeth, but I didn't turn on the light in the bathroom. This was not out of any wish to conserve electricity but because I look so rotten first thing in the morning I don't want to risk seeing myself in the mirror. Marilyn has no such problem, however, and two minutes later she got up, turned on the light in her bedroom to avoid tripping over the cat and then came into the bathroom and turned on the light. I guess it's a good thing she did because I was brushing my teeth with hand cream.

With lights on in four rooms of the house, I thought, "Never mind how much you hate getting up in the dark, think of all the electricity you're saving for your country." Later, sitting under the hair dryer in the living room with the lights on so I could read the newspaper, my patriotism was confirmed by what I read. Being on Daylight Saving Time in January was going to save 10 per cent of the nation's electric power.

This, no doubt, because 10 per cent of the nation's people are going to stumble around in the dark.

Belatedly, the brains in our country are now discovering that the time switch resulted in kids having to walk to school in the dark, many of them in the street because the sidewalks are full of snow. This is dangerous, somebody realized. What Congress didn't realize is that it's doubly dangerous because I am driving to work at that same time and I'm not only driving in the dark, I am driving in my sleep because late aches like me take a long time to regain consciousness after getting out of bed.

In its hasty enactment of the Daylight Saving bill, Congress also did not consider animals who have their own time zones and never mind what Capitol Hill says.

Cats do not like their serene lives messed up and ours gave us an almighty dirty look that first morning we erupted out of our bedrooms and started turning on lights all over the place. Lately his curiosity has overcome his resentment and he's constantly underfoot or overhead, jumping up on the dresser or the refrigerator in an earnest effort to find out why his women are getting up in the middle of the night.

Another thing Congress forgot was what do I say to the boss when I get to work in the dark. Is it "Good night" or "Good morning?"

Crossroads Clinic hit

I'm afraid I've discovered another 'big brother' in our midst and I'd like to have your readers take a look at it and see what they think.

Last election, I voted to retain township government in Palatine. The argument for it sounded pretty good; that the officials out here should be able to assess our local needs much better than those people in downtown Chicago. And just the word township connoted to me sort of a friendly, "our town" type of government versus the upsetting national political scene.

So it was with anger and sadness that I received the news recently that the Palatine Township Board of Auditors had voted to grant $5,000 of taxpayers' money to a private clinic, one of whose practices is to distribute birth control information and prescriptions to minors without parental consent.

My township officials had done this? Didn't they know that most of us had moved here primarily because we thought it was a family centered community? We thought our local government would protect us from all the unsavory elements that seem to be dividing families these days.

Then I heard that at least a couple thousand people were upset over the board's decision but the board's officials said they were not going to be swayed by a public outcry when taking a second look at the decision. Gee, and I thought by voting for township government it meant local officials would be listening to local people's wants.

I was puzzled, too, as to why the township would grant $5,000 to a clinic who really didn't seem to need the money that badly. The clinic, in its request seven months ago, said it would soon be self-supporting and has continued to operate quite well without the $5,000.

I'm going to the special meeting where this will be discussed Tuesday, Jan. 22, at Gray Sanborn School, 101 N. Oak St., Palatine, at 8 p.m. I hope my faith in township government will be restored.

Montessori described by proponent

I want to congratulate Mrs. Eleanor Rives for an excellent article on the Montessori Method, but I would like to point out that there is a further option for men and women interested in becoming Montessori teachers.

Dr. Montessori herself, in order to maintain world-wide standards for directors and directresses in her schools, established the Association Montessori Internationale. The association, which is headquartered in Holland, certifies teacher trainees, establishes minimum hours for classroom work, observation, and student teaching, evaluates training schools, and examines each and every graduating student. Students' written finals are sent to Holland for grading, and representatives of the association travel all over the world to administer the oral exams and to inspect the notebooks and didactic materials that a trainee is expected to prepare. (In my own case and that of many, many other directresses, the orals were given by Mr. Mario Montessori, Dr. Montessori's adopted son.) Only when its stringent requirements have been met does the association issue a teaching certificate.

Unfortunately, the American Montessori Society does not have this kind of control over American training schools, each of which not only sets its own standards for graduation, but also issues its own certificates. While neither the AMS or the AMI has a monopoly on good teachers, the level of qualification in some AMS schools has been considerably less than Dr. Montessori would have considered adequate.

The nearest AMI training center for persons interested in an international diploma is the Midwest Montessori Institute, 5409 Liston Ave., Milwaukee, Wisconsin, 53208.

Aged 'ignored'

It was with mixed emotions that I read an article in the Buffalo Grove Herald entitled "Village vehicle suckers now on sale." My first emotion was curiosity, then bewilderment, then absolute anger. The curiosity was because I wondered whether there were any new rulings concerning my purchase of a sticker. The bewilderment was as to why our officials turned down the proposal that senior citizens be given a reduction in price. The anger was toward the answer given — "It was the board's feeling that everyone should pay their fair share if they use the streets."

The "good village fathers" must admit that we have one of the highest fees in the area. What extras do we receive that we cannot see our way clear to offer senior citizens a reduction? Being one of the youngest villages in the area, I would think that our percentage of senior citizens is lower than most others. And also, I cannot see any of them moving into a rapidly growing community whose taxes are steadily increasing. Lord knows, many of us under 65 are "feeling the pinch." The greatest percentage of senior citizens are on a fixed income and with the cost of living spiraling as it is, some are having a difficult time. Most of them have paid their fair share of all kinds of taxes and it's about time they were given some relief. If other communities can do it, why can't we?

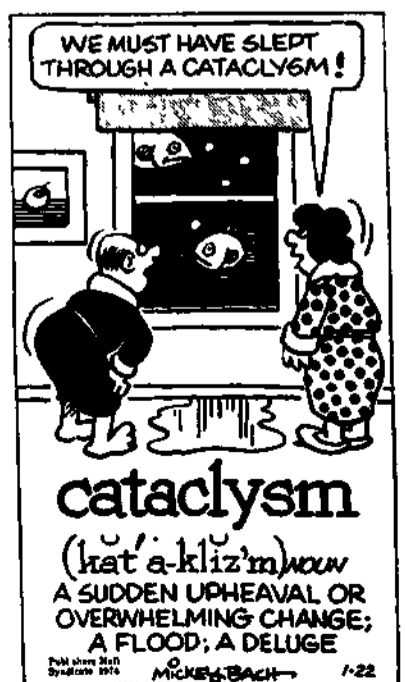

Elected officials are supposed to represent the people. Everyone I discussed this with, disagreed with the board. Did anyone ever bother to find out how we feel? It makes one wonder if this is a village in which we should consider spending our retirement years.

GOP starts '74 campaign planning

by GEORGE J. MARDER

WASHINGTON — Republican party professionals are organizing early for an aggressive 1974 election campaign, and showing no sign of Watergate shellshock.

The GOP National Committee obtained nuts and bolts files from the Committee to Re-elect the President after it folded quietly near the end of last year, and expects to make some use of the contributor and ethnic lists. However, the pros say some of the other work was amateurish — sloppy versions of campaign documents prepared at the committee itself.

Committee lawyers have hung a no-trespass sign on money still held in the name of the Nixon campaign committee, warning that if the National Committee touched any of it, it might open itself to be named as co-defendant in any lawsuits seeking damages.

The professionals do not think lack of money will prevent the GOP from waging effective campaigns this year. That is not to say that a shortage of money is not a problem now, it is.

Gerald Ford

Lack of funds has curtailed activity at the national headquarters. The committee so far has been able to arrange only for seven field directors to deal with candidates in the field. They hope to have 10.

The National Committee will be dealing with candidates mostly through the regional directors to avoid a Washington emphasis. They hope to make use of Vice President Gerald Ford and House Republican Leader John Rhodes of Arizona as trouble-shooters to talk to candidates when campaigns go wrong.

The National Committee has set up improved working relationships with Republican House and Senate campaign committees. Candidates will find that the campaign committees are geared to offer considerably more than money this year.

Expanded research and technical staffs are planned to provide campaign services to Republican candidates running for the House, Senate and governor. All 435 House seats, one third of the Senate, and 35 governorships are up for election in November.

The Republican professionals are not discounting Watergate, but there's not much they can do about it and they are determined to avoid a defeatist attitude until it blows over.

In some districts, there has been a GOP search for "Mr. Clean" to carry the banners. However, the professionals have a mistrust for candidates who have not proved themselves in previous campaigns. They have found that, more often than not, the novice plunging into the bigtime makes a fool of himself in a major campaign.

The Republican professionals don't go along with the theory that incumbents are in trouble because Watergate may have generated a voter rebellion against all politicians. They are not inclined to make sweeping national predictions because they plan for each race as a separate campaign unto itself, with little consideration for the national picture. However, one top Republican sees a chance for the party to come out this way in November.

A stalemate in the Senate; a slight gain for the GOP in governorships; the Republicans hold only 18 now; a Republican pickup of perhaps eight to 12 seats in the House.

If that prediction — or hope — comes to pass, it would mean that the Republican party had survived the worst scandal in its history better than most people expect. (UPI)

MONEY TALKS

A clumsy word for a clumsy operation

By Donald F. Martin, President
Arlington Heights Federal Savings & Loan Assn.

With over 260,000 words in a standard unabridged English language dictionary, you would think someone could come up with a more fitting word for managing your own money — investment than "disintermediation."

The ten-volume Oxford English Dictionary, the ultimate in lexicography, doesn't even list the word.

Yet this is our cumbersome way of describing the many and various attempts of people to keep a step ahead of inflation by managing their own investments.

Many have chosen to get into the stock market as the best hedge against inflation. Now they are learning that stocks behave badly in the inflationary situation we are in. The roller-coaster ride they have experienced in recent months prompts some of them to agree with M.I.T.'s Nobel prize winning economist, Paul A. Samuelson, that "It is even more true today than it was yesterday that most people should not quarterback their own investment."

Many have opted to put their savings into tangibles like paintings, sculpture, antiques, coins, stamps, and jewelry. We heard an art dealer claim in a radio interview that an art portfolio should show an annual growth of 25 per cent in worth. Yet we know a prominent attorney who went the route of putting all his resources into great masterpieces. A heart attack deprived him of income and today he is art-rich and money-poor. He cannot find market for his paintings and sculptures at anywhere near what he paid for them. He claims the dealers are waiting for him to die so his widow will have to dispose of them in distress circumstances.

So what else is there? Persian rugs, old cars, important documents, stamps, wine? A fellow we know was attracted by the opportunity to make a bundle by investing in Scotch whisky. A glutted market has him torn between selling at a severe loss or continuing to pay out for storage and insurance in the hope of eventually getting his money back.

For the average person whose savings have been accumulated through hard work and personal sacrifice, a speculative approach is ill-advised. Better to take a sure, though modest, profit with the knowledge that the principal will never be lost.

Disintermediation is indeed a clumsy word. Maybe it's appropriate since it describes what for most people is a clumsy operation.

Networks missing a good sports bet

HOLLYWOOD — Professional basketball is a genuine television attraction, ideally suited to the home screen, and there is a game-of-the-week on CBS-TV.

But it is surprising that nowhere on the Big 3 commercial networks is there a weekly college basketball contest, despite the plentiful supply of topflight players and fine teams.

ABC-TV, which rightfully prides itself on being the foremost network for sports — but lost the pro basketball games to CBS-TV this season — should be giving careful thought to a college-level series.

UCLA, of course, has almost single-handedly brought college basketball into video's bigtime with its extraordinary, decade-long dynasty.

It has glamorized and boosted the sport in the same way that Notre Dame did the job for college football.

And this past Saturday's national telecast by TVS of the UCLA-Notre Dame basketball thriller was another strong argument for the kind of weekly series the Big 3 networks have foolishly bypassed.

It was a great contest, with Notre Dame snapping UCLA's amazing 86-game winning streak with an incredible comeback.

Trailing 70-59, and probably counted out by most fans, the Irish stunned televiewers by reeling off the last 12 points and winning by a 71-70 score, surely one of the most memorable sports victories in Notre Dame history.

And the spectators on hand for the game at Notre Dame's home court were a show all by themselves — almost a force in the contest as they never allowed their team to give up on itself.

Free vision tests will be offered Feb. 3 at the Randhurst Shopping Center in Mount Prospect.

The tests, sponsored by the Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect Rotary clubs and conducted by the North Suburban Optometric Society, will be given from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the shopping center, Rand and Elmhurst roads.

DuBrow on TV

by Rick DuBrow

THERE IS a certain added emotionalism in college sports competition — among both fans and players — that often makes the contests more exciting than pro games, and this is another television plus.

College basketball buffs, for example, are primed again for this coming Saturday, when UCLA and Notre Dame meet again — with the upcoming encounter to be played at UCLA's home court, and TVS offering a national telecast once more.

The odds are that UCLA will be favored to win this contest, and also to repeat as national champions in tournament competition, but anything is possible. Whatever the results, college and university teams across the nation owe UCLA a nod for what it has done for school-level basketball.

UCLA's memorable, nationally televised games with Houston, Notre Dame, North Carolina State and Maryland are just some of the audience-builders that come immediately to mind. And then there have been the numerous televised UCLA victories in the end-of-the-season tournament showdowns.

Pro football is all right. But give me a UCLA-Notre Dame basketball game anytime.

Next on the agenda

BETA SIGMA PHI

Xi Zeta Epsilon Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi will meet at the home of Mrs. Kenneth Shirey, Palatine, Wednesday at 8 p.m. Mrs. Peter Downing will be co-hostess.

The program, "Exercise" by Mrs. Shirey, will include various types of exercise and a workout program with exercise machines.

Xi Eta Rho Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi will meet on Thursday evening in the home of Shirley Redmond, Mount Prospect.

The program will be the second part of sewing given by Roxy Ekstrom and Marge Kallvoda.

HADASSAH

With the scarcity of petroleum products and problems of the homemaker in mind Henrietta Szold Hadassah has planned a cleaning crisis solution and housewares party for 8:30 p.m. Thursday.

Sharon Rothstein of Elk Grove Village will be demonstrator and members and guests will participate in a session of information and handy hints to help hold down costs of cleaning and home maintenance.

Open to the public, the meeting will be held in the Mount Prospect home of Mrs. Renee Kahn, 1010 Burning Bush.

WHEELING GOP WOMEN

Wheeling Township Women's Republican Club will meet at 1 p.m. Thursday in the Church of the Incarnation United Methodist, W. Golf Road, Arlington Heights.

There will be election of officers and installation at the Feb. 28 luncheon. Nominations for the "Woman of the Year" award will be made and a social hour and cards will follow.

SOCRATES RAND QUESTERS

"Weaving and Spinning" by Julia Jordan will be the program for the Socrates Rand Questers at 1 p.m. Thursday. Hostess for the day will be Mrs. George Schiller, 1881 Big Bend Drive.

BLOOMING POSIES are the ultimate in mid-winter blues chasers and Mrs. Carl Schock Jr., Mrs. Michael Witt and Mrs. George Thieman are selecting the brightest of flowers for "A Nite in New Orleans." The party, sponsored by Arlington Heights Center of Infant Welfare, will be held Saturday, Feb. 2, in the Jimmy Durante Room of Arlington Park Towers. A gourmet dinner will precede the dancing.

Raise children democratically

All in the community are invited to a program on "The Democratic Method of Raising Children" at 8 p.m. Thursday in Wheeling Park District Church Building, 251 N. Wolf Road, Wheeling, next to the outdoor pool.

Presenting the program will be Gladys Heller, a nursery school operator and past president of the Family Education Association, who bases her program on the book "Children Are the Challenge" by Dreiker.

The newcomers are also planning a coffee for new members and those interested may contact DeAnn Glover, 537-7401.

The party's in New Orleans

In other years members of Arlington Heights Center of Infant Welfare and their guests have "traveled" to Venice, Greece and the Orient for the center's annual dinner dances.

For this year's gala, guests will find themselves in the deep south for "A Nite in New Orleans."

The party will be held Saturday, Feb. 2, in the Jimmy Durante Room of Arlington Park Towers, and the menu will feature flaming French Quarter shish kabob and praline pie along with creole gumbo jambalaya, capon etouffee, vieux carre salad and champagne.

Proceeds from the charity event will benefit the Infant Welfare Society of Chicago which provides total health care for the well baby, the disturbed pre-schooler and the expectant mother. Society services also include counseling in the field of family planning.

Cost of the party is $30 per couple. Those interested in further information may call Mrs. Carl Behrens, 253-2036.

Valentine queens to reign

"Love, love, love" is the theme of this year's valentine dinner dance given by the nine Northwest Suburban Council chapters of Beta Sigma Phi.

Each chapter has chosen a queen from among its members to represent the group at the party Saturday, Feb. 9, in the Tudor Room of Chateau Louise, West Dundee. This highlight of the year for Beta Sigma Phi is a benefit for Mark Lund Home for Retarded Children in Bloomingdale.

Four area residents among the nine queens to be honored are Bonnie Riseling, Schaumburg, chosen queen of Rho Alpha chapter; Lucille Kupczyk, Schaumburg, queen of Xi Eta Epsilon; Diane Luebbers, Arlington Heights, Xi Eta Rho; and Sandra Lee Miller, Arlington Heights, of Xi Zeta Epsilon.

THE OTHER QUEENS include Patricia Ludviksen, Addison, Eta Zeta chapter; Janis Boemmel, Glenview, Kappa Kappa; Audrey Mares, Nu Psi, Carpentersville; Ann Marie Chesterfield, Hanover Park, Nu Rho; and Marilyn Knapp, Lake Zurich, Rho Eta.

The valentine party begins with cocktails at 7 p.m., then dinner at 8, and dancing at 9:30 to the music of the John Warner Trio. It is open to the public.

Anyone wishing to attend can contact Mrs. Tom Pierson, 882-0496.

Sufficient dough needed for no-shrink pie crust

Dear Dorothy: Whenever I bake a pie shell, it shrinks so much it hardly fits the pie pan. Clearly, I'm doing something wrong, but what? — Beverly Garcia.

First thing to come to mind is that you may not be using enough dough. One thing about a pie shell is that it should never be stretched to fit the pan. There should be enough dough to shape it, and there isn't enough if it has to be pulled to fit. If there is too much, the extra can always be cut off. In pie shells, it's wise to poke holes all over the dough with a fork. This keeps it from puffing up during baking. To keep the shell flat and even, some bakers put another pie tin into the shell; others line the shell with foil and put in a handful of rice or navy beans to weigh down the dough. Just remember: shape, never pull.

Dear Dorothy: We've had a lot of trouble with dogs tearing our plastic garbage bags and scattering the garbage all over the yard. Is there anything we can put in the bags to offend the dogs and keep them away? — Gayle Williams

Not that I'm aware of. This happened to our daughter while we were visiting last fall and his lordship was reduced to outdoor KP. At the time I made the point of stressing that meat scraps (and anything else that attracts animals) ought not to go into plastic bags, but into closed garbage cans. But maybe somebody does know of a good de-smeller. Anyone?

Dear Dorothy: This is a bit passe, but not greatly, after all, people do have to wrap packages all through the year. Wrapping was a cinch for me this past holiday. I wet the cord beforehand and it dried tighter than friend husband could have pulled it. — Willie Vance

Beautiful Bermuda

If sight of the island doesn't get you at first, then the blast of the 19th-Century cannon will

by ERIC JOHNSON
Special to The Herald

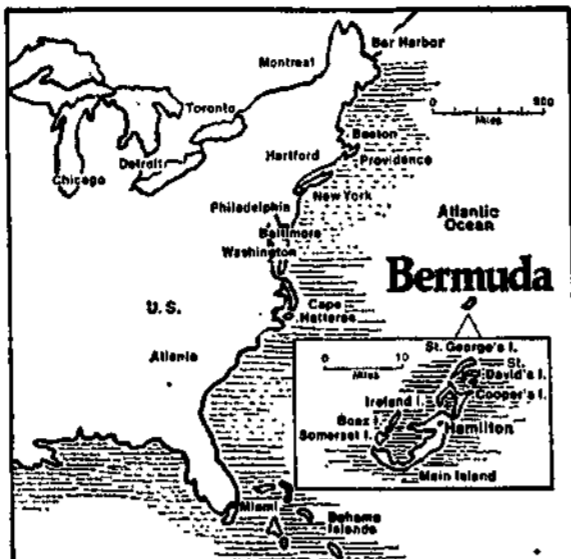

HAMILTON, BERMUDA — Most voyagers feel their cruising holiday to Bermuda has really begun when their ship is fired upon by the residents of this friendly island chain.

The horizon has been a seemingly limitless ocean until, usually in the early morning, Bermuda peeks over the junction between sea and sky at its new visitors.

The image is of a tranquil, sleeping spot of land happened upon by a wandering ship.

WHAM!!!!

Coffee cups rattle in their saucers. Orange juice is gulped.

BRITISH BERMUDA sits by herself in the western Atlantic. The 21-mile string of islands enjoys a balmy climate because of warm Gulf Stream waters flowing by to the west and north, insulating her from the chilly North Atlantic.

That sharp report of a 19th-Century muzzle-loading cannon at Fort St. Catherine lets you know somebody's awake in Bermuda!

Last year, some 81,000 persons experienced this traditional Bermuda cannon salute — on ships flying flags of Norway, Greece, Great Britain, Sweden, West Germany, the Netherlands, even the USSR.

After the blast of that early-morning gun, Bermuda-bound passengers are a bit more awake as the ship — in this case the M/S Sea Venture, a gleaming white Norwegian liner making 38 calls to Bermuda on a weekly basis, March through December — threads its way along the channel paralleling the colony's north shore.

Completed in 1971, the Sea Venture, the colony's official "contract ship," has a capacity of 635 persons and about half as many crew members.

WITH 79 hours in port, the ship is your hotel and you have time to see this 21-square-mile island country at your leisure.

The Sea Venture and two other ships which serve Bermuda regularly — the Cunard Ambassador, a British liner, and the Chandris Amerasia Line's Amerikanis, of Greek registry — serve as "grand hotels," each with a slightly different flavor, at sea and ashore.

The Sea Venture, although Norwegian owned and operated, has an entirely Italian hotel staff. "The women really seem to thrive on Italian service," says cruise director Michael Valis. "Whether a woman is nine or 90 they fuss over her."

Cabin stewards and stewardesses aboard the Sea Venture move with the efficiency and quiet of the tooth fairy.

While you are at breakfast, your beds are made, shoes tucked away neatly in the closet, fresh fruit placed on the vanity and even that champagne cork on the floor — a souvenir of the bon voyage party — is saved, but placed out of sight in the corner of a desk drawer.

Extra service is standard.

Our nine-month-old daughter, the youngest passenger aboard the Sea Venture, was fed and put to bed in a portable crib just before chiming announced the second sitting for dinner. Tony, one of our stewards, said he would check every few minutes to see if she was sleeping well and let us know in the dining room if anything were amiss.

JUST BEFORE the cherises jubilee, Gino, the maitre d' hotel, gently informed us: "Hey, the little one — your Lesley? She is crying. I'm sorry."

We made an unceremonious exit from the dining room, up two decks and down the companionway at a run, and there was our wakeful but now smiling daughter being soothed in Italian by a watchful Tony, who apologized for our missed dessert. Perhaps Italian should be Lesley's second language.

Suddenly it's going-ashore time.

The more adventuresome passengers choose to see the island chain by renting a motor-assisted bicycle for their three days in Bermuda.

For those who don't trust themselves on Bermuda's narrow, "keep-to-the-left" roads, taxi and bus excursions are sold aboard ship even before you land. You can see the same sights, but someone else does the driving and gives you a running commentary.

BERMUDA'S FRIENDLY taxi drivers are regarded as one of the colony's best assets. All rates are government-controlled and the drivers can earn a blue "tour guide" flag after passing a strenuous test which demonstrates that they can give accurate answers to visitors' questions about Bermuda.

At night, excursions to some of Bermuda's nightspots are offered, and while the ship is in port, handsome shop windows across the street glitter into the late evening.

Seventy-nine hours pass quickly in Bermuda. Late Thursday afternoon, efficient Norwegian seamen winch up the last lines from dockside bollards and the Italian trio strikes up a happy version of the Colonel Bogey March on the fantail.

An hour later, the Bermudian pilot steps back aboard his tiny, double-ended launch and the Sea Venture finally departs Bermuda — with Fort St. Catherine, its guns silent for another few days, on the southern horizon.

BERMUDA AT LEISURE. Your ship is your hotel when you visit this balmy island on a cruise. With an average of 351 days a year during which the sun shines, Bermuda visitors stand an excellent chance of getting this kind of beach weather.

Travel briefs

Gas for European tourists promised

Fly/drive travelers are assured of enough gas for summer vacationing in Europe, according to Joop Strijkers, director general of the Netherlands National Tourist Office.

Strijkers, head of an organization of European tourism directors, made a special trip from his Amsterdam headquarters last week to inform Chicago-area travelers that Holland and other European countries will be able to furnish all the gasoline needs of summer visitors.

Holland, he says, now has plenty of fuel for tour buses, trains and trams. The country has set up a series of gas stations where any foreign visitor can buy all the gas he wants. Maps will be furnished showing exactly where these stations are.

The French Government has also officially announced that American tourists in France are guaranteed all the gas they need.

"SNOWBIRD SPECIAL" FOR WINTER FUN

Cross-country skiing is the newest winter fun attraction at Carson Inn Nordic Hills, Itasca, just a few gallons of gas from the Northwest suburbs.

When there is snow on the ground, their weekend "Snowbird Special" includes ski touring along 104 acres of woodlands. Skis, boots and poles are available for rental and there is an instructor on hand for novice skiers.

Carson Inn Nordic Hills also offers sleigh rides, indoor swimming, health club and sauna, dinner dancing, beauty and barber shops, boutique and gift shops.

The complete "Snowbird Special" weekend package, including a room for two nights in the hotel, two breakfasts, two dinners and a "Snowbird drink-kit" upon arrival is $44.95 per person (double occupancy) starting Fridays at 3 p.m. with checkout on Sunday at 1 p.m.

Carson Inn Nordic Hills is located in Itasca, just off Ill. Rte. 53 between Ill. Rte. 19 and U.S. 20. For reservations or information, call 773-2750.

TAKE A TRIP TO DISNEY WORLD

One of Amtrak's biggest new bargains is "Florida Trade-winds," which includes 11 days and 10 nights in Florida for $269, plus rail fare.

The vacation begins with two full days in Walt Disney World, with three nights in Orlando, three in Fort Lauderdale and four in near-tropical Key West.

The cost, averaging $26.90, double-occupancy per hotel day, includes 10 nights in such first-class hostels as the Admiral Benbow Inn, near Walt Disney World; Sheraton in Ft. Lauderdale; and American Sportsman's Inn at Key West; admission to sightseeing attractions (besides Disney World, the Lion Country Safari, Fort Lauderdale's Jungle Queen Cruise, the Miami Seaquarium and the Conch Tour Train at Key West); transfers; sightseeing bus within Florida; baggage handling; breakfasts and dinners and two lunches, plus gratuities at hotels and restaurants.

Amtrak also has other winter vacation packages in Florida. Northwest suburban travel agents have details.

FLY BY NIGHT

You can save money by flying at nighttime on many domestic airlines whether you like to travel first class or coach.

Flights leaving at 9 p.m. or after offer reduced fares in both classes, according to American Airlines.

American has night fares from Chicago to Phoenix, San Diego and San Francisco. There is a $34 savings in the first class night fare to Phoenix ($146 regular, $112 night) and a $22 savings on coach ($112 regular, $90 night). To the west coast cities, the first class savings is $40, with a coach savings of $26.

American has return night fare flights from the same cities.

Spring jaunt to Soviet Union being planned

An eight-day spring vacation to Russia is being planned by Around the World Travel Inc., Palatine.

Departing Friday, April 12, the group will travel to Moscow via Copenhagen with Scandinavian Air Systems. Five days will be spent in this capital of the USSR where participants will visit the Kremlin, Moscow University, Tretyakov Gallery, the USSR Exhibition of Economic Achievements plus many other points of interest. One evening group members will attend a performance of either the Bolshoi Theatre or the Moscow Circus.

From Moscow the tour will fly to Leningrad for two days. Tours here will include the Admiralty, Leningrad University, Peter and Paul Fortress, the battleship Aurora and St. Isaac's Cathedral. Highlight of the stay will be a visit to the Hermitage in the Winter Palace.

Return to Chicago will be on April 20, on Scandinavian Air Systems, via Copenhagen. The tour will be escorted by Mr. and Mrs. Jeffrey Austin of Elm-hurst.

Total price for the eight-day tour, including roundtrip airfare from Chicago and flights within Russia, hotel accommodations, all meals and sightseeing, is $705 per person, based on double occupancy. Call Around the World Travel Inc., 359-9590, for additional information.

Don't let fuel crunch spoil a trip

The two ladies standing near the meat counter at the neighborhood Jewel the other day were bemoaning the fact the energy crisis could wipe out their summer vacation plans.

"It's Harry I feel sorry for," said one. "He works so hard all year and really needs that break from routine."

Sure he does. We all do. And I still maintain (as do others I've talked with in the travel business) that fuel uncertainties and rising prices need not put a crimp in this year's vacation planning.

With some imagination and a little more planning, you can use the energy crisis as a challenge and end up having the best vacation you've ever had, comes the word from Discover America Travel Organizations Inc., the national organization of the U.S. travel industry.

DATO HAS these suggestions and tips for families thinking about this year's vacation time:

- Start planning early — NOW, as a matter of fact. Make any necessary reservations as soon as possible.

- Consider taking several shorter trips close to home.

- Think about trying a different mode of transportation this year. Would it be the time to give the kids their first long trip by train? Their first airplane journey: or perhaps a leisurely trip by regularly scheduled bus, with nightly layovers, or a tour by chartered bus? Maybe a steamer cruise?

William D. Toohey, DATO president, points out some pleasant side effects to reduced driving speeds and Sunday closings of service stations.

Lower driving speeds, he points out, reduce the wear and tear on vehicles and drivers.

(When we drove to Peoria over the holidays at 50 miles an hour we arrived there far more rested than when we had driven the same distance at 70, or more, miles per hour.)

TOOHEY ALSO suggests that Sunday closings of service stations can have a bright side for motoring vacationers.

"It can perhaps provide a welcome layover for recreation and leisure that might otherwise be ignored," he says.

Travel agents in the Northwest suburban area are predicting a big year — in spite of the energy crunch. In a recent spot check of some of these agents, I learned that business is booming — with Hawaii the number one choice of 174 vacation planners. Mexico is also popular — with Canada bringing lots of inquiries. Both these countries have fuel, and are reasonably priced for family vacationing.

AS FOR EUROPE, the situation there is getting brighter for summer travel. Dollar value is on the upsurge — tourism officials of the various countries are knocking themselves out trying to provide special bargains for overseas visitors — and Joop Strijkers, of the Netherlands National Tourist Office, made a special trip to the Chicago area last week to personally deliver the good news that tourists can drive all over Europe this year with no fear of running out of gasoline. (See Travel Briefs)

Should the energy crunch wipe out that much-needed holiday for your family? Not by a long shot.

You may have to tailor your plans to suit the times — but vacations are here to stay, energy crisis or not. Start planning yours today.

Though percentage is low, millions are spent on claims

Lost baggage still a major headache for the airlines

by MURRAY J. BROWN

Every fare-paying air passenger is entitled to an "uneventful reunion with his baggage" at the completion of his flight, according to the Civil Aeronautics Board.

But despite improvements since the early jet-age days of "breakfast in London, lunch in New York and bags in Paris," baggage problems remain one of the major sources of complaints against domestic and foreign airlines.

Actually, only a very small percentage of the hundreds of millions of pieces handled by the airlines is lost, strayed, stolen or damaged.

But that is small consolation for the PAWOB (airline acronym for Passenger Arriving Without Baggage.) Or the carriers who pay out millions of dollars in claims each year.

THE AIRLINES are trying harder. The passenger can do his part, too.

Here are some tips which should help prospects for that "uneventful reunion" at your destination:

- In addition to your name, address and telephone number printed clearly on luggage tags, affix some easily identifiable markings on the outside of the case. A major cause for missing bags is the passenger who grabs the first one which looks like his and takes off without bothering to check the claim tag. I paste odd-shaped colored markers on the top and sides. Or you can tie brightly colored ribbons to the handle, daub paint on corners, etc.

- Place a card or an identification sticker, available free from most airlines, inside the bag. It will make you easier to find if the luggage and destination tags on the outside are torn off or become illegible during handling.

- Remove all old baggage and destination tags before checking in for the next flight. They may impress other passengers but they also could confuse baggage handlers and increase chances of luggage being misdirected and lost somewhere along the line.

- When flight plans involve changes of planes or airlines, have tickets written up to allow ample time between connections for checked-through baggage to be transferred. About one hour is usually enough for connections at the same airport but more time may be necessary if transferring to another.

If, in spite of these precautions, you should end up as a PAWOB, contact an airline representative immediately and have him fill out a "loss or damage" form. Hold on to your claim checks — do not give them up until your luggage has been recovered or your claim settled satisfactorily. The airlines ordinarily have three days to find your bags before being required to offer a settlement.

THE CAB warns against exaggerating the value of baggage contents when reporting loss. Airlines investigate big claims, particularly when they involve large sums of money or valuable jewelry, and phoney claims usually are detected and rejected. Domestic and foreign airlines have fixed liability limits on lost baggage claims but additional coverage can be arranged by declaring excess value and paying an extra fee.

U.S. airlines have a centralized "lost-and-found" headquarters known as the Airlines Computerized Baggage Tracing System to help track down and return "misdirected" and "mishandled" luggage. If the company fails to locate missing bags within 72 hours, all pertinent information is relayed to the center in Charlotte, N.C. Data on unclaimed luggage is stored in computers and if a match is made, the bag is directed to its rightful owner.

Incidentally, some airlines will compensate the PAWOB for "reasonable" necessary purchases to tide him over while they try to track down his missing luggage. Check when reporting the loss.

Passengers also may file claims for baggage damaged through proven negligence by airline employees. Damages should be reported as soon as discovered. If you overpack and your luggage or its contents are damaged, the airlines are not liable.

Honestly, London's got a 'Reject Shop'

American visitors to London have discovered a curious new shop to join the city's other eccentric bargain centers.

The Reject Shop on Brompton Road, is owned by a London couple, Anthony and Anna Hawser, who spent a year writing and visiting manufacturers asking for damaged and imperfect goods.

The results astounded even them, including a huge stock of everything from glasses and cutlery to continental pots and pans, acrylic goods and lighting equipment.

The Reject Shop joins such odd and fascinating stores as "Anything Left-Handed" at 65 Beak St. in Soho, Weinrop in Berwick Street, which sells off-size shoes (starting at size 1) or John Lewis in Oxford Street, which carries probably the largest selection of paper-dress patterns in the world, all sizes.

EXECUTIVE SECRETARY

We will be opening a six man office to serve as our mid-western regional headquarters in Des Plaines late in January. The President of our company will be located here.

We are looking for a top notch person who can serve as Executive Secretary, Administrative Assistant and Administrative Coordinator. Secretarial skills must be outstanding. The major duties will be in support of marketing, customer contact, appointments, followup, communication with the head office, proposal preparation and personal secretary.

Inasmuch as we are the leading developer and supplier of software in the Life Insurance industry, experience in either Data Processing or Life Insurance would be extremely beneficial. If you're an outstanding Executive Secretary who can function effectively in a small office environment and are willing to learn our business, then we would like to talk with you.

Please send a letter or resume describing your experience and qualifications to Mr. W. H. Odell, Vice President, CYBERTER COMPUTER PRODUCTS, INC., P.O. Box 895, Santa Monica, Calif. 90401. Phone (213) 451-8894, Santa Monica.

College-credit tests offered at Harper

Harper College in Palatine will offer a series of Saturday-morning sessions next semester to help persons prepare for tests that may give them college credit for knowledge gained through practical experience.

The sessions will be held Feb. 2 through May 25 from 9 a.m. to noon, and are intended as a review of material covered by College Level Examination Program tests. Registrations for the sessions will be accepted through Feb. 2 at the Harper Continuing Education Office.

Those wishing to take the CLEP exams, administered at Harper each month, may call the college's Office of Testing Services, 397-3000 ext. 341, for information and dates.

The college also will offer a refresher course next semester for registered nurses who have been inactive in their profession for five or more years.

The class will meet on Tuesdays and Thursdays, from 7-10 p.m., Jan. 29 to June 3. The in-district registration fee is $75 and out-of-district residents pay $177.75 plus a $5 lab fee. The course will include both classroom instruction and supervised clinical experience in local hospitals.

Registrations are being accepted now at the college at Algonquin and Roselle roads. Information is available from the Harper Continuing Education Office, 397-3000, ext. 301.

Heart program at Alexian

Alexian Brothers Medical Center and the Heart Assn. of North Cook County will offer a heart disease detection-education program, "It's Your Heart," Saturday from noon until 3 p.m. at Stritch Hall in the hospital, 800 W. Biesterfeld Rd., Elk Grove Village. No fees will be charged for available counseling or blood-pressure screening.

State PTA conference Friday

The Illinois PTA will hold one of two statewide conference on "People Problems" Friday at Eisenhower School, 800 W. Hassell Rd., Hoffman Estates.

Three group sessions will deal with how the PTA can work toward solutions of problems in urban society. Mrs. Percy Benner, Illinois PTA president, will participate.

Registration will begin at 9 a.m., with call to order at 9:45 a.m., and adjournment at 2:30 p.m. A box lunch will be served for $1.60. Reservations may be mailed to Mrs. Walter Rodie Jr., 545 Edgfield Ln., Hoffman Estates.

Learning 'Lamp' to be lighted

The Lamp O'Learning, a private educational facility for children age 3 through 5, will open at 304 E. Marion St., Prospect Heights, on Feb. 4.

Henry Alexander, assistant superintendent for instruction in East Maine Elementary School Dist. 63, is the school's director. Alexander said the school is designed to develop skills essential to social relations, foster curiosity, develop appreciation for fine arts, improve physical coordination and develop a child's intellect and sensory system. He also plans to provide assistance in counseling for parents.

More information on the new school is available through Alexander, 824-6710.

Win at bridge

Splinter bid names singleton

Today we show the same North hand as yesterday and almost the same South hand. The difference in the South hand is that three of its high-card points are represented by the king of diamonds instead of the king of hearts.

South still opens one club and rebids one spade after North responds one diamond. Then North makes the splinter bid of three hearts. Two hearts would have been a forcing bid and shown hearts. The unnecessary jump was a splinter to show spade support and a singleton heart.

Now South knows that all his high cards will be hard at work. He might have started a series of complicated slam tries but this South preferred the direct method of using Blackwood. He jumps to the slam after North's five-diamond response showed one ace.

East won the heart lead and returned a trump. South won in his own hand; ruffed a heart in dummy; came to his hand with a club; ruffed his last heart; drew trumps and claimed the rest of the tricks since no matter how clubs and diamonds might break he had enough high cards to collect them.

13 area executives elected Boy Scout council officers

Thirteen executives from Chicago-area firms recently were elected officers of the Northwest Suburban Council of the Boy Scouts of America.

They will serve a year's term in guiding the leadership and managing affairs for nearly 19,000 scouts organized in 500 units of Cub packs, Scout troops and Explorer posts.

Leslie W. Milligan, Commonwealth Edison Co., was elected council president. Jack B. Blane, Ekco Products Inc.; Donald Heidorn, Ansen and Busse Real Estate; Roger H. Klich, Teletype Corp.; John T. O'Neill, Western Electric Co. Inc.; Robert Y. Paddock, Paddock Publications Inc.; and Merl B. Peek, Universal Oil Products Co. were elected vice presidents.

Other 1974 officers include Irvin J. Sprawka, C.P.A., council commissioner; Thomas H. Detrick, O'Hare International Bank, treasurer; Robert E. Pittman, Allstate Enterprises Inc., assistant treasurer.

Serving with Milligan and Sprawka as National Council representatives will be Joseph Sommer Sr., Magnetic Coil Mfg. Co.; Ernest R. Katz, Katz Realty and Investment Corp.; and Thomas N. Parks, retired executive now residing in Park Ridge.

Harper's special services director

Marc Savard new Clearbrook chief

Marc Savard, 34, director of special services at Harper College in Palatine, has been named director of Clearbrook Center for the Retarded.

Former director Byrn Witt resigned to head the National Assn. for Downe's Syndrome in Chicago last month. Since then, the center has been without a director. Downe's Syndrome is commonly called mongolism.

Savard's appointment hinges on his ability to break his contract with Harper College in the near future. No starting date has been established.

Savard, his wife and children live at 138 Kainer Ave., Barrington. He received a bachelor's degree in psychology from Loyola University in Chicago and a master's in personnel management, also from Loyola.

Before coming to Harper, Savard worked for Commonwealth Edison Co. for seven years.

"In the final selection, the search committee felt that Mr. Savard had the best qualifications," said Guerin Fischer, chairman of the Clearbrook board of directors. He said the board had been looking for someone skilled in administrative skills, not necessarily in the field of special education.

"We were looking for a comprehensive team with all kinds of skills," he said, "and we already have people with master's degrees in the field of retardation."

School lunch menus

Village outlet among those ordered to refund overcharges

3 suburban gas stations ordered to roll back prices

by JOE FRANZ

Three gasoline stations in the Northwest suburbs are among 17 in the Chicago area that have been ordered by the Internal Revenue Service to refund overcharges to customers by rolling back prices.

The stations are Dan's Ranch Mart Mobil, Dundee and Buffalo Grove roads in Buffalo Grove; Wheeling 400 Car Wash, 400 N. Milwaukee Ave., Wheeling, and Bob's Marathon, Roselle Road and Weathersfield Way, Schaumburg.

"The stations were found to be overcharging and they voluntarily agreed to return to prices that will make up the amount they had overcharged their customers," an IRS spokesman said yesterday. "After the overcharges are made up they can reestablish their prices at the proper level."

ALL 17 OF THE gas stations have been ordered to cut prices by varying amounts to make up the overcharges, which the IRS estimates at $25,000. Most of the gas stations have rolled back prices several cents.

Spokesmen for the Wheeling 400 Car Wash and Bob's Marathon refused comment yesterday on the recent IRS order. However, Dan Rutkowski, owner of the Mobil station in Buffalo Grove said he was ordered to cut prices to make up for $2,500 in overcharges.

"I have been overcharging, but it wasn't intentional," Rutkowski told the Herald yesterday. "I have agreed to lower my prices until I can make up for it."

Rutkowski said the IRS came to his station Jan. 15 investigating a complaint that he had been selling gasoline for $1 a gallon Dec. 28. He said he never sold gas for that price and in fact was not even open Dec. 28.

At that time, however, the IRS discovered Rutkowski did not have certain forms that are required to be filled out for every price increase. The IRS also discovered that he apparently had been overcharging customers varying amounts since last November.

RUTKOWSKI SAID the regulations governing price increases and profit margins are confusing and that he did not think he was charging too much for gasoline. "I've taken surveys of other gas stations in the area and I've always managed to stay lower than most of my competitors," he said.

As for the required forms, Rutkowski said he was not aware he was supposed to have them. "If I'm supposed to do something I should be given written notice by the government," he added.

The IRS has supplied Rutkowski with the needed forms and has given him until Feb. 16 to refund the overcharges.

Prior to the rollback, Rutkowski said he was charging 49.9 cents a gallon for regular and 53.9 cents for premium. The station is now charging 43.2 cents a gallon for regular and 47.4 for premium. After the overcharges are made up the prices will go up to 46.2 cents per gallon for regular and 52.4 for premium.

The IRS spokesman said agents had either received complaints or were making spot checks when they discovered the stations were overcharging. In the last several weeks, the spokesman said the incidents of price gouging among station owners has decreased substantially.

Student, adult swim pool time available

Open swimming for students and adults resumed last week at the Adlai Stevenson High School indoor pool.

The pool is open to the public from 7 to 8 p.m. on Tuesdays and Thursdays. Swimmers must bring their own swim-suits, but towels are furnished. The fee is 50 cents per swim.

Registration for the Saturday morning children's swim program is set for 9 to 11 a.m., Saturday, Jan. 26, in the lower lobby of the school. Preschoolers also must register at this time. Classes will be filled on a first-come, first-served basis.

Personal-injury cases

Two new lawsuits may name village

by JOE FRANZ

Buffalo Grove is involved in two lawsuits and apparently is about to be named in two others, all of which seek damages for persons who were killed or injured in accidents within the village.

The cases include an incident as far back as mid-1972 and one as recent as last November. All have been or will be filed in Cook County Circuit Court. None of the cases have come to trial and most probably will take several years to resolve.

In all of the cases the village is covered by liability insurance and has turned the matters over to its insurance company.

THE VILLAGE, along with several other parties, has been named in a $250,000 suit stemming from the June 20, 1972 drowning of seven-year-old Michael Makkey, son of Victor Makkey, of 338 Melinda Ln. The boy fell in a concrete settlement tank while playing next to the old sewage treatment plant at 145 Raupp Blvd.

The father contends negligence on the part of the village and the other parties that also were connected with the property.

The attorney handling the case for the village said last week he is seeking to have the village removed from the suit. He said the village did not own the property at the time of the accident and the only thing linking it to the incident is that it occurred within the village limits.

The suit, however, said the settlement tank was a public nuisance and the village should never have allowed it to remain on the property.

THE VILLAGE and three other parties have been named defendants in another lawsuit pertaining to an accident on July 7, 1972 in which a small girl was seriously injured. The suit is seeking $200,000 in damages.

The girl, Jody Wiggins, 8, of 664 White Pine Rd., fell through a small foot bridge near the White Pine Ditch while playing. The youngster suffered head injuries and was hospitalized in critical condition for several days.

The girl's parents are claiming negligence on the part of the village, the park district and two developers. It appears that one of the developers and the park district may be dropped from the suit because they may have had no connection with the mishap.

VILLAGE MGR. Daniel Larson said the village apparently was named in the suit because it owns the property where the accident occurred. One of the developers, Glenbrook Inc., was named in the suit because it had rebuilt the bridge prior to the accident.

Mrs. Wiggins told The Herald recently that Jody has recovered from most of her injuries, but is still unable to participate in some physical activities.

STILL ANOTHER suit, which has not yet been filed, involves an accident on Dundee Road last July 9 in which William J. McKenna, 50, of 250 Lake Blvd. was killed. The accident occurred near Crofton Lane when his car slipped off the shoulder, causing him to lose control and collide head-on with another auto. Two persons in the other car were injured in the crash.

McKenna's widow plans to file suit against Buffalo Grove, Arlington Heights and Cook County for not taking proper safety precautions on the partially-completed road.

Mrs. McKenna's attorney, Arthur Gombberg, said last week the suit probably will seek $50,000 to $100,000 in damages. The three parties were named, he said, because he is not sure whose jurisdiction the road is under at the location of the accident.

Since Dundee Road is a state road and the state is responsible for construction on it, Village Atty. Richard Rayssa said the suit probably is being filed against the wrong parties.

Gombberg said if he finds that the road is the state's responsibility, no suit will be filed. Because of the legal setup in Illinois, he said it is too difficult to collect damages from the state.

FINALLY, THE village has received notice that a personal injury suit will be filed against it stemming from an accident at Buffalo Grove High School last Nov. 16. James Langworthy, 15, of 347 Hiawatha Dr., severely cut two of his fingers while operating a saw in a shop class.

The suit, which will be filed by Langworthy's father, charges negligence by the village and school, claiming the saw did not have an adequate guard. It was not learned how much is being sought in damages.

Rayssa said he does not know why the village is named in the suit since it has nothing to do with the operation of the high school. In many lawsuits, however, everyone that is remotely involved with an incident is named as a defendant.

Park district movies, cartoons to start Feb. 2

The Buffalo Grove Park District again will have its Saturday afternoon movie and cartoon sessions beginning Feb. 2. The films are primarily for children, but adults are welcome to attend.

The movies will begin at 1 p.m. at Emmerich Park, 150 Raupp Blvd. Admission is 50 cents a person. Preschool children must be accompanied by an adult.

The following movies and cartoons have been scheduled for February and March:

- Feb. 2 — "The Ugly Dachshund."
- Feb. 9 — "Tobey Tyler."
- Feb. 16 — "Cinderella" and assorted cartoons.
- Feb. 23 — "The Man Called Flintstone" and assorted cartoons.
- March 2 — "Babe in Toyland."
- March 9 — "The Boy Who Stole the Elephant" and assorted cartoons.
- March 16 — "Tammy the Way Out Seal" and assorted cartoons.
- March 23 — all cartoon show.
- March 30 — "The Hunting Incident" and assorted cartoons.

Firemen called to douse 2 fires

The Buffalo Grove Fire Department put out two small residential fires early Sunday. Property damage was slight in both cases and no one was injured.

The first fire broke out about 1:52 a.m. in the garage of the Don Meyers residence, 821 Lehigh Ln. Although the family was evacuated, the fire was confined to the garage. Fire Chief Wayne Winter said damage was minimal as the garage was unfinished.

The second fire, at the Lu Wilson residence, 875 Sussex Ct., is believed to have started when a lighted candle kept on a television set fell over, setting the plastic television casing afire. Most of the damage in the fire was from smoke, Winter said.

Arlington Heights fire apparatus also responded to the Lehigh Lane garage fire.

Fire Chief suspects arson

by DOUG RAY

Fire swept through an apartment building at the Dryden Apartments in Arlington Heights last night totally destroying several of the units on the first floor and leaving 24 families homeless. Arson is suspected.

The fire apparently began in the basement storage area of the 3-story apartment building across from the Arlington Market Shopping Center. Firemen with masks and oxygen units on their backs went into the basement but were forced out when the floor of a first floor apartment collapsed, according to one of the firemen who fought the blaze. The fire began at about 7:30 p.m. and firemen from a half dozen communities were attempting to contain it two hours later.

Fire Chief John Haydon said "definitely we suspect arson." He confirmed the fire began in the basement and ran up the walls "just like the last time." He estimated the damage to the building itself at $25,000.

Last May, fire hit another apartment building in the complex. All families in that fire were relocated and fire officials estimated the damage at $100,000. Fire officials suspected arson in that fire.

Last night's blaze struck while most of the families were having dinner, and although all persons were removed, the flames spread rapidly. After about an hour of fighting the fire, fire officials were forced back by a small explosion.

Firemen said a "three-box alarm" was called and dozens of firemen responded, including those from Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Palatine, Prospect Heights, and Rolling Meadows.

Red Cross officials at the scene said two elderly persons were taken from the burning building, one who fell trying to leave the darkened building.

FIREMEN USED chain saws to break through the roof as flames shot out of the first floor apartments.

The apartment residents were warned of the fire and evacuated their homes when a person began running down the hallways knocking on the doors.

"We couldn't do anything except get ourselves out," said Mrs. Bill Doty, one of the first floor residents.

Residents said firemen responded to several calls at the complex over the weekend. They said two mailboxes were set afire and a wicker basket on a child's bicycle in the hallway. A fire in a trash container outside was reported on Sunday.

Smoke damage was extensive in the blaze.

First Baptist, Good Shepherd

2 churches reported victims of 1969-'70 payoffs squeeze

by LYNN ASINOF

The First Baptist Church of Wheeling, Elmhurst Road and Edward Street, was pressured for a payoff in 1970 by a Wheeling village official, according to church sources.

In a similar incident, a contractor working on the main nave of the Lutheran Church of the Good Shepherd, 1111 N. Elmhurst Rd., Prospect Heights, reportedly was shaken down by a county building inspector in 1969.

The payoff was made without the knowledge of Good Shepherd church officials, The Herald has learned.

INFORMATION ON the two incidents, uncovered as part of a continuing Herald investigation of village government in Wheeling, was turned over to federal investigators. A federal grand jury probe of shakedowns of builders and developers in Wheeling has been under way for almost a year. Indictments in the case are imminent.

The First Baptist Church reportedly was approached for a payoff during its building program that began in 1970. According to church sources, a key village official implied that he could speed up the issuance of a building permit if under-the-table payments were made.

WHS choral students to weekend in Texas

Eighty-six choral students from Wheeling High School will spend this weekend in Texas.

The students will fly south Thursday at the invitation of the director of choirs at Baylor University in Waco. The choir, New Dawn singing group and Madrigal Singers will perform at the university on Friday.

On Saturday, the students will tour the National Aeronautics and Space Administration headquarters and the Astro dome in Houston. Sunday the choir will perform for a church service.

Choir students raised money for the trip by selling candy, Christmas cards and candles and received financial assistance from the Wheeling Choral League. Choral director Frank Dobler said, "We are honored by the invitation and I feel it will be a good experience for the students. They certainly have been working hard rehearsing their performance and earning money."

Church officials let the offer to "fix things" go by without comment. One source termed the offer an "implied suggestion" rather than overt pressure but said it was clear a payoff was being sought.

"That's the last thing we'd ever do," one church official said of the payoff bid.

IN BOTH INSTANCES, church sources talked to a Herald reporter on the condition that they remain anonymous.

When asked about the matter, Wheeling Building Director William Bieber said, "You've got to be putting me on. I don't know anything about it."

Bieber acknowledged that the First Baptist Church did run into some delays over the setback of the church. He said an addition built in 1963 was set back only 50 feet from the Center of Edward Street. In 1964, the village passed an ordinance requiring a 65-foot setback.

According to Bieber, this made the church a non-conforming building, thus requiring a zoning variation before a building permit could be issued.

CHURCH SOURCES indicated that the village official involved offered to ignore the need for a zoning variation in exchange for a payoff.

"The worst problem with this job is that you have to update plans to meet the codes," Bieber said. "When you do that, you're automatically picking on them."

Bieber said there were no unreasonable delays in the issuing of the building permit. The application for building permit, however, was not dated. The first dated correspondence in the village file was from the structural engineer, who requested a meeting with the church representatives in October, 1970.

The building permit was issued Dec. 1, 1970, about two weeks after the zoning board recommended approval of the setback variation.

After the payoff request, church officials said, they experienced "obstacy problems" in dealing with the village building department. "You're treated like you're something other than a person," one said.

THE PAYOFF involving the Lutheran Church of the Good Shepherd was reported to the Internal Revenue Service when church officials became aware of the situation.

"We handled the matter directly with the IRS," said one church official in go by."

Members of the church congregation were told of the payoff by former Pastor Dennis A. Anderson, who delivered a sermon on the subject. No names were mentioned from the pulpit, but the sermon was directed to the fact that payoffs are considered a generally accepted practice in the community.

Several sources said a county building inspector was paid several hundred dollars to approve foundation work at the church by Four M Concrete Inc., of Glen Ellyn, a subcontractor.

MARIS MUZNIEKS, president of Four M, said he had no knowledge of any payoff.

"As far as I know I was not involved in that," he said. "We don't normally practice anything like that. I do not say we have not been approached."

Muznieks said the Four M employee responsible for the church work is no longer with his company. "He's not even in town," he said. He declined to release the employee's name.

The Herald has been unable to determine what action if any the IRS took as a result of the information supplied by the church. Federal sources confirmed that the agency was made aware of the payoff but no record of federal criminal charges against the county building inspector reportedly involved could be found.

County building department records show no inspection report for the 1969 work at Lutheran Church of the Good Shepherd. The building inspector left the department in 1971 and could not be reached for comment.

Junior Woman's breakfast

The second annual Community Breakfast, sponsored by the Buffalo Grove Junior Woman's Club, is Saturday, Jan. 26, at the Long Grove United Church of Christ.

The affair is scheduled to begin at 10 a.m. in the community hall of the church, located on Long Grove Road, just west of the village's covered bridge.

Informal discussions will be led by three community clergymen. They will include Rev. Michael Paull, pastor of the Long Grove United Church of Christ, Rev. Donald Duffy, pastor of St. Mary's Church in Buffalo Grove, and Rabbi Mordecai Rosen of Temple Beth Judea.

The Rev. Stephen Dahl, pastor of the Kingswood United Methodist Church, Buffalo Grove, will deliver the invocation and offer the closing prayer.

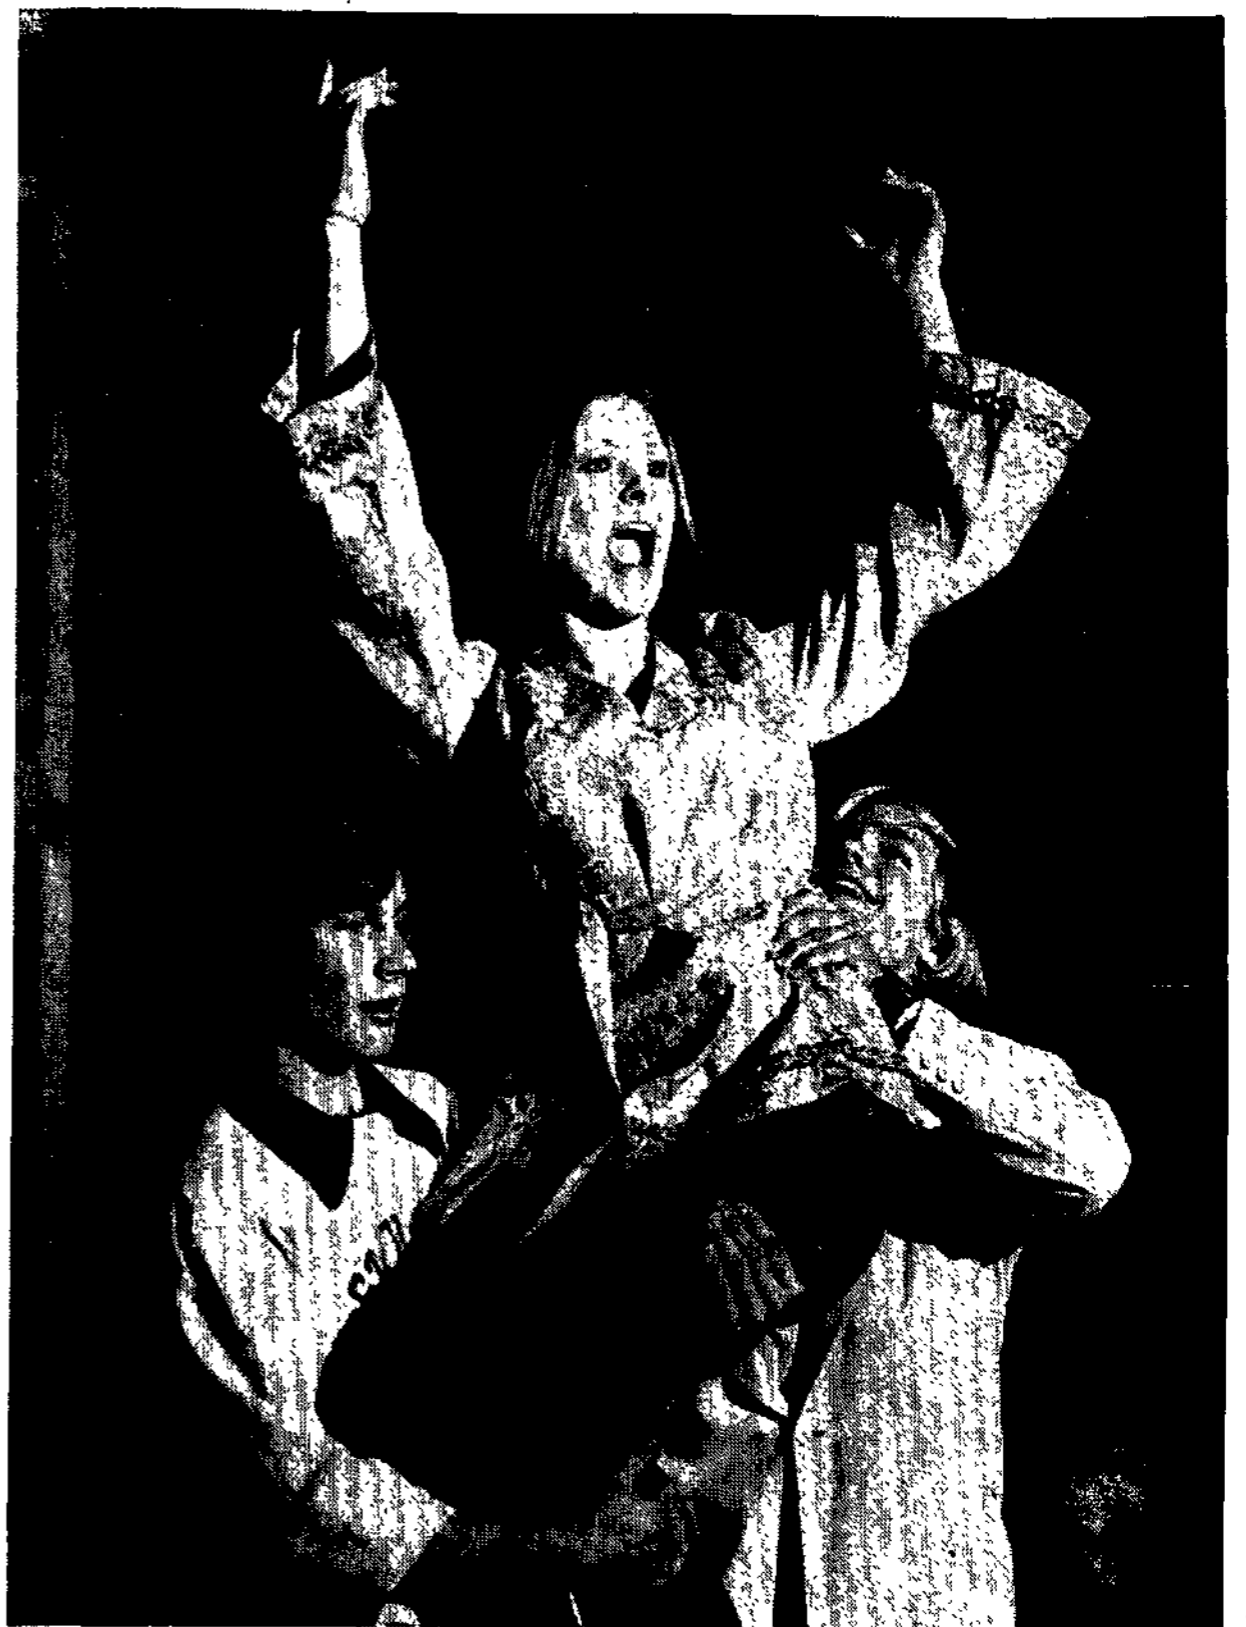

Anyone interested in attending the breakfast may contact Mrs. Bieritz at 541-5226 or Mrs. Merkoy at 537-2069 to make reservations.

$1,000 for Omni-House

The Buffalo Grove Jaycees recently donated $1,000 to Omni-House: Youth Services Bureau in Wheeling.

The Jaycees also plan to sponsor a fund-raising project for Omni-House at a later date. Any money over $1,000 raised by the activity will be contributed to the counseling agency.

Omni-House serves Buffalo Grove, Wheeling, Prospect Heights, Mount Prospect and Arlington Heights.

LYNN LONGOSZ IS "MAME" in musical performances to be presented by St. Viator and Sacred Heart high schools on Feb. 1, 2, 8, 9, 15 and 16 at the St. Viator auditorium, 1213 E. Oakton, Arlington Heights. Performances will begin at 8 p.m. A matinee on Feb. 10 will begin at 2:30 p.m. Tickets are $3 each for evening performances and $1.50 each for the matinee. Reservations may be made by calling St. Viator School at 392-4050 or Sacred Heart School at 392-6880 between 8:30 a.m. and 4 p.m. weekdays.

Milwaukee-Hintz work start in April?

Area drivers can expect construction to begin at the intersection of Hintz Road and Milwaukee Avenue in April.

The Illinois Department of Transportation is planning to widen the intersection, install a median strip on Milwaukee Avenue and provide a left-turn bay for northbound Milwaukee Avenue traffic. New traffic signals also will be installed.

Steve Kolar, project engineer, said the biggest problem for local drivers will be the slowdown of traffic going through the intersection. He said cars will be limited to one lane in each direction during construction.

"Probably the biggest inconvenience will be just getting through the intersection," he said. Kolar said there will be no detours needed for the work, and noted that the road equipment will be cleared from the site after each day's work.

WORK ON THE intersection will be done by Milburn Brothers, Inc., Mount Prospect, for a cost of $196,227.70. Construction is scheduled to start on April 15, and the contractor has 50 working days to complete the intersection.

Kolar estimated that improvements to the intersection should be completed by August first. He said problems in obtaining traffic signal equipment might delay that part of the project slightly.

The state is cautioning drivers to be alert to barricades, warning signs and lights when construction begins this spring.

$15,000 worth of equipment to be donated Paramedic program gets a big boost from the Rotary

by JOHN MAES

The Des Plaines Fire Department paramedic program has received a financial boost from a local civic organization that will donate some $15,000 worth of equipment to the program.

The Des Plaines Rotary Club will make the contribution for various training aids and emergency devices used by the paramedics.

The program provides firemen with special training and skill to administer treatment to accident and heart attack victims at an emergency scene, while keeping in touch with doctors at hospital emergency rooms who relay treatment instructions.

The city council recently approved up to $14,300 for the program but fire officials said those funds will be used largely to cover training costs as well as departmental manpower needs while firefighters are in training.

IN PRAISING the donation, Fire Chief Donald Corey said yesterday, "It's a terrific move on their part to take on a project such as this. The city would have had to eventually appropriate for this equipment and it will save money."

Corey said the Rotary club will foot the bill for equipment such as resuscitators, splints, stretchers and a device to aid in removing accident victims from wrecked vehicles.

Also to be furnished are paramedic training aids such as a model of a human torso for practicing chest massage along with another model that simulates heart conditions.

The equipment will be purchased on a priority basis, Corey said.

DR. ROBERT ANZINGER, director of emergency services at Lutheran General Hospital, also praised the contribution.

"I'm extremely gratified by their (the Rotary Club) action. We want to continue to educate the populous that the cost of this thing is worth the benefits and to keep in mind they have not just bought a taxicab."

He also called the move "very important" in getting the program under way.

Rotary club Pres. Harold Kuehn said the organization was looking for a project to get involved in and the idea won approval of the 35-man membership.

"Our guidelines say the project must be 100 per cent for the people and this fits in perfectly."

Kuehn said the club will hold special fund-raising activities to help finance the equipment.

Magazine scoffs at No. 1 ranking for Maine South

by LINDA PUNCH

A survey that ranks Maine South High School as the No. 1 high school in the United States is debunked in the January issue of the American School Board Journal.

B. Everard Blanchard, a DePaul University professor, ranked Maine South as the best of 615 U. S. secondary schools in a survey published in October.

Blanchard said he based his opinions of the school on a visit to Maine South, Park Ridge, last February. Information on other schools was obtained through questionnaires sent out at random.

THE JOURNAL article notes that while Americans "are extraordinarily fond of easy-to-grasp numerical metaphors for greatness when it comes to evaluating just about anything . . ." there has never been an official national rating of schools.

According to the article, "seasoned school board members and administrators" interviewed by the Journal say ranking schools is "a mission both impossible and undesirable because the manner in which any school serves its students . . . depends on its own purpose and its own students."

The Journal calls Blanchard's Top Ten list "skimpily documented," noting that it was based on 4,884 questionnaires representing only 1,543 educational institutions.

THE DePAUL professor asks Americans to "believe that his rankings are accurate" based on three or four completed questionnaires returned on an average from each school, the article said.

"No students, parents, administrators or board members were asked to contribute to their school's evaluations," according to the Journal.

The article also criticizes the "unwarranted and sensational publicity milked from it (Blanchard's study) by numerous papers and by some of his Top Ten winners." The publicity has helped "root American noses once again into a messy, unnecessary search for a breed of schools most educators agree doesn't exist," it said.

IN THE ARTICLE, Blanchard states his research was "no fly-by-night operation."

"I figure I've contacted about 70,000 schools either by questionnaire, letter, telephone or personal visitation during the last few years," he said. "Now, if that doesn't qualify me in some way to evaluate schools, maybe I'd better go back to school."

A University of Chicago education professor criticized Blanchard's study in a letter to a Chicago newspaper, saying that "judging several hundred high schools without intensive questioning of students and parents and without carefully structured tests of educational achievements is of little value."

SAMPLE QUESTIONS from the survey designed by Blanchard include:

- With respect to a common understanding of the goals to be achieved in teaching, how would you rate the teachers within your school system?

- How would you rate the attitudes of teachers toward the work of the schools below the level of that in which they are employed?

- From an elementary, secondary or college level viewpoint how would you rate our contemporary college entrance requirements?

- How would you rate the cooperation between the school and the home?

- How would you rate teachers with respect to their comprehension of the total educational system?

Questions were rated by placing a number from 1 (poor) to 5 (exceptional) beside each question.

State police bus crackdown leaves pupils stranded

by LINDA PUNCH

and JOHN MAES

Several hundred Maine North High School students were temporarily stranded at the school yesterday afternoon when Illinois State Police arrested five bus drivers for unsafe equipment and overcrowded conditions.

The five United Motor Coach drivers were arrested outside the school as classes let out for the day. According to Cpl. R. L. Johnson of the state police, yesterday's ticketing stemmed from complaints of students about overcrowded conditions on buses taking them to and from school.

Students complained the buses were unheated, ran late and that passengers were "packed in like sardines," Johnson said. Police head counts of students showed between 89 to 100 students on the buses, he added.

SOME BUSES WERE so crowded that students were standing in door wells and behind the driver, Johnson said. One bus was without brake lights.

Yesterday's incident was the latest in a series of state police crackdowns on alleged unsafe bus conditions. Last Friday, state police checked buses operated by the Cook County Bus Co. at Forest View High School in Arlington Heights.

They ticketed one bus because it didn't have a proper registration card. A driver was ticketed for not carrying a proper school bus license.

Sgt. Hugh McGinley of the state police, said the check was intended primarily to make sure all drivers have a proper school bus license.

MAINE NORTH Principal Robert A. Wells, said he had no warning that state police would be inspecting the buses.

"I understand the police were pulling students off the buses and leaving them stranded — if so I'm very much concerned," he said. "I'm really burned up about them turning the students loose."

Wells said students were later taken home after buses were rerouted from other areas.

George Koelper, vice president of United Motor Coach Co., said the buses are operated under Illinois Commerce Regulations and aren't covered by school bus requirements.

He said the school district does not contract bus service from the company and that children buy tickets directly from the company.

Woman wanted in robbery turns self in Police have arrested and charged a Chicago woman with robbing two men of $600 in cash at gunpoint at a Des Plaines motel.

The woman, Guadalupe Soltero, 21, of 5718 Winthrop, was charged with armed robbery Thursday by Des Plaines police who withheld details until yesterday while continuing an investigation on the whereabouts of a second woman suspected in the holdup.

Police said Miss Soltero and the other woman held up two men later found to have entered the country illegally.

The robbery occurred when the women allegedly displayed pistols and fled after taking $300 from the wallets of the two men, Jose Barajas, 36, and Salvadore Velasco, 23.

LT. LEE ALFANO said yesterday the Soltero woman turned herself in after learning she was being sought by police.

She was named as one of the robbers by the two men who also gave a getaway car license number to police.

Barajas and Velasco were turned over to juvenile authorities and are awaiting deportation to Mexico.

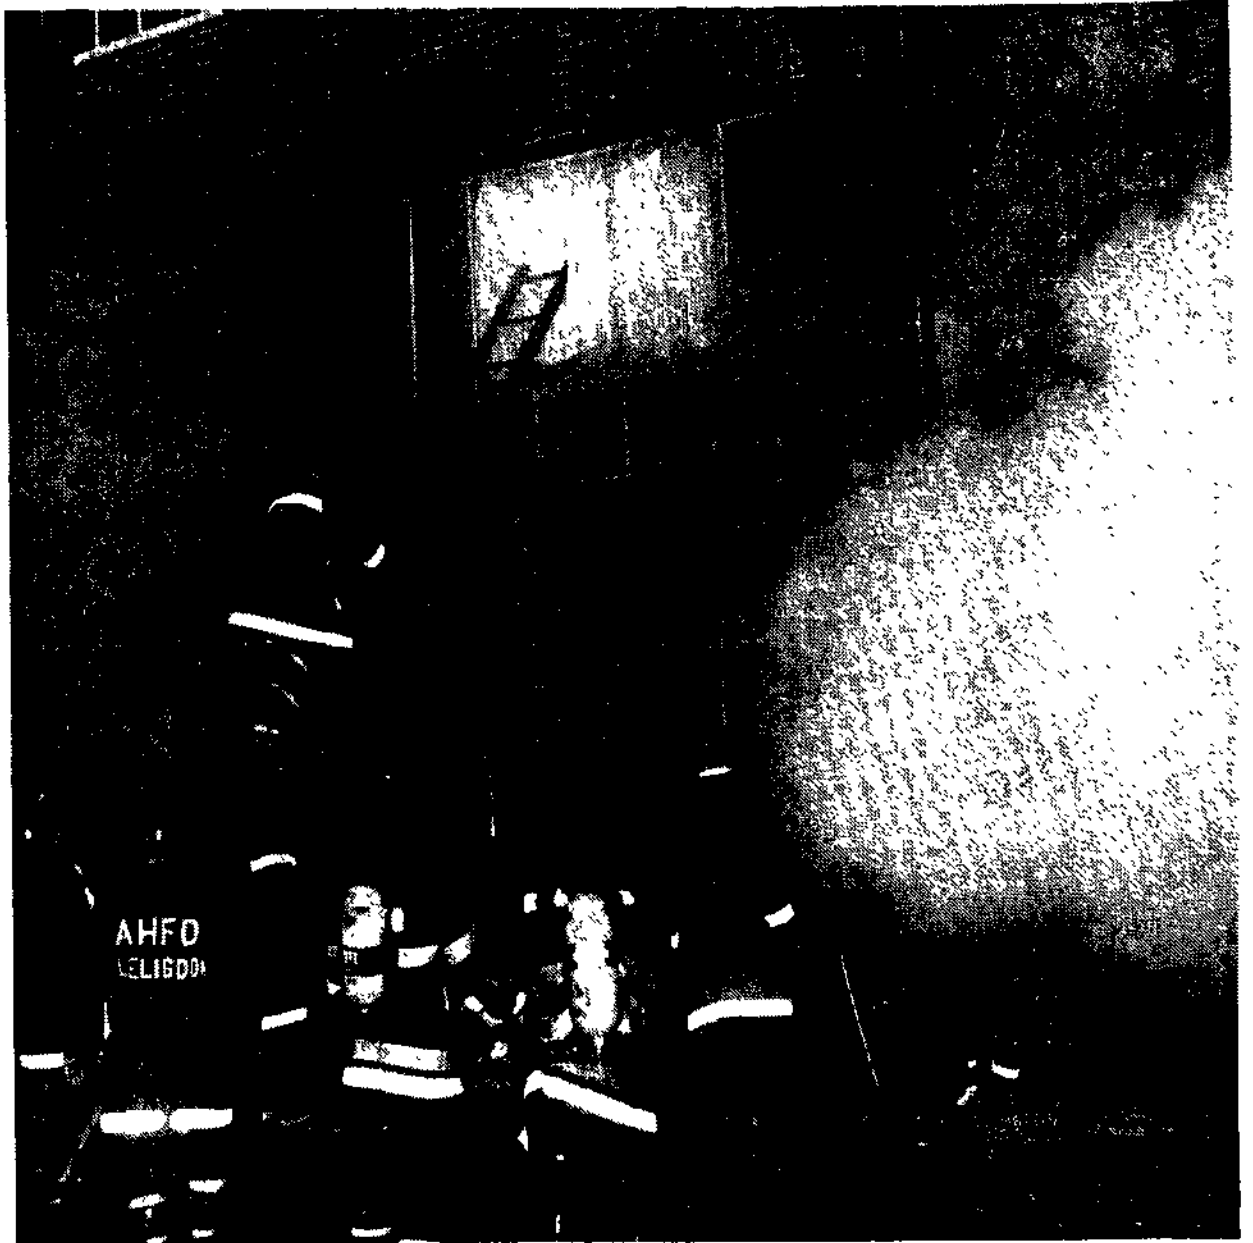

The other suspect was described to police as about 30 and 5 feet 7 inches tall. The Soltero woman was freed on $10,000 bond following her arrest and will appear in the Des Plaines branch of Cook County Circuit Court Thursday.

Local resident named to Safety Council post

A Des Plaines man has been named executive assistant to the president of the National Safety Council to head the group's policy planning program.

Fred Potenza comes to the new position after working for the council since 1956, most recently as manager of the Highway Safety Program Services Department.

He has been president of the Niles Safety Council. A graduate of Northwestern University, Potenza is a member of the International Institute of Traffic Engineers. He also is a member of the Secretary of State of Illinois Legislation Rules and Regulation Advisory Committee.

Fire left 24 families homeless last night at Dryden Apartments.

Fire Chief suspects arson

by DOUG RAY

Fire swept through an apartment building at the Dryden Apartments in Arlington Heights last night totally destroying several of the units on the first floor and leaving 24 families homeless.

The fire apparently began in the basement storage area of the 3-story apartment building across from the Arlington Market Shopping Center. Firemen with masks and oxygen units on their backs went into the basement but were forced out when the floor of a first floor apartment collapsed, according to one of the firemen who fought the blaze. The fire began at about 7:30 p.m. and firemen from a half dozen communities were attempting to contain it two hours later.

Fire Chief John Hayden said "definitely we suspect arson." He confirmed the fire began in the basement and ran up the walls "just like the last time." He estimated the damage to the building itself at $25,000.

Last night's blaze struck while most of the families were having dinner, and although all persons were removed, the flames spread rapidly. After about an hour of fighting the fire, fire officials were forced back by a small explosion.

Firemen said a "three-box alarm" was called and dozens of firemen responded, including those from Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Palatine, Prospect Heights, and Rolling Meadows.

Red Cross officials at the scene said two elderly persons were taken from the burning building, one who fell trying to leave the darkened building.

FIREMEN USED chain saws to break through the roof as flames shot out of the first floor apartments.

The apartment residents were warned of the fire and evacuated their homes when a person began running down the hallways knocking on the doors.

None of the residents could remove their belongings.

"We couldn't do anything except get ourselves out," said Mrs. Bill Doty, one of the first floor residents.

Residents said firemen responded to several calls at the complex over the weekend. They said two mailboxes were set afire and a wicker basket on a child's bicycle in the hallway. A fire in a trash container outside was reported on Sunday.

Last May, fire hit another apartment building in the complex. All families in that fire were relocated and fire officials estimated the damage at $100,000. Fire officials suspected arson in that fire.

Smoke damage was extensive in the blaze.

Township officials to discuss use of revenue-sharing funds

Maine Township officials will meet early next month to discuss a series of recommendations for programs which would be financed with the township's revenue-sharing funds.

Township Supervisor James J. Dowd said yesterday that a special appropriations meeting has been scheduled for Feb. 5 to review the proposals for new programs and services.

Maine Township has received $95,000 from the federal government, but has delayed spending the funds while several committees were formed to look into the feasibility of new programs that could be financed with the federal money.

TOWNSHIP OFFICIALS and local residents have formed four committees to study the areas of mental health, youth, the elderly and library services.

"We have had proposals submitted by several committees and hope to examine those ideas on Feb. 5," Dowd said. Among the proposals that have been recommended are plans to make library facilities available to residents of unincorporated areas that presently are not served by municipal libraries.

Dowd also said the township will review a plan to purchase two minibuses to be used by the township mental health group and for transportation of the mentally retarded in the Park Ridge area.

"There are a great many things that township government can do better than other governmental units — areas that are assigned to the township by the general assembly.

THE ADVISORY committee on mental health also has been studying the feasibility of an alcoholic education program in the township.

The committee has been studying a number of programs that have been established in Wisconsin. The group recently attended a meeting of the directors of the Milwaukee chapter.

Presently, the township does not plan to use any of the funds for salaries, Dowd said. He explained that if the township establishes a specialized program that would require a director or counselor, the salary would be paid by the revenue-sharing funds.

"We will definitely not be using any of the money to pay the salaries of any present employees or elected officials," he said.

Additional programs will be considered by township officials later this year, Dowd added.

Homeowners: Elk Grove 'owes' service

by JERRY THOMAS

Officers of the Itasca Meadows Subdivision Assn. in unincorporated Elk Grove Township agree that they have to pay someone for fire and ambulance protection service — but they maintain that Elk Grove Village owes that service to them, payment or not.

Tony Wagner, trustee of the association, said its officers have written to Elk Grove Village officials and asked for a meeting "to talk over fire and ambulance service."

The meeting, the first in three years between the group and village officials has not been scheduled. "We asked the village to name a place and time," said Wagner.

Wagner said the talk "probably won't settle anything, since they have never in the past answered our questions about costs."

ITASCA MEADOWS residents do not pay a fire or ambulance tax to any municipality but must contract individually for service. In some unincorporated areas, homeowners band together in associations that contract for such service.

"Our association has mainly met only for social occasions except in this issue of fire protection," said Wagner.

Wagner added the officers have reactivated its governing board since the tragic death of an Itasca Meadows mother, eight months pregnant with her sixth child, Mrs. Jean Pettee died in her home just three blocks from a hospital and four blocks away from the Elk Grove Village Fire Department, while waiting for ambulance service from the Roselle Fire Department with which the family contracted for service.

Wagner and others in the association claim most of the residents in Itasca Meadows "prefer" to contract with Roselle Fire Protection District rather than Elk Grove Village.

HOWEVER, after Mrs. Pettee's death, the association charged the village with placing a dollar value on life after the village refused to answer an ambulance call to the Pettee home because they had no contract for service.

Wagner has argued that the village was legally and morally bound to provide fire and ambulance service.

"When our unincorporated area was annexed from the Roselle Fire Protection District we became Elk Grove Village's responsibility and yet they continuously deny this," said Wagner. An argument over responsibility and the village's policy to serve only those who contract has gone on for two years.

Wagner maintains that his neighbors want to pay a fair price for fire protection and understand Elk Grove Village's request for payment for service. "However they (Elk Grove Village) have never to our satisfaction been able to tell how they arrive at a $42-a-year charge," he said.

VILLAGE MGR. Charles Willis said the village considered $42 a fair and reasonable cost. "It's true we cannot give an exact formula for our figures, but it is about what residents pay," said Willis.

He said the village is always ready to meet with the association and noted that Charles Zetek, village president in a letter last week "begged the residents" to meet with him to discuss fire protection. He also announced the village will serve unincorporated areas on a serve-now, bill-later plan.

Wagner said the association has also written letters to local legislators urging them to work for passage of legislation to be proposed in April by State Sen. David Regner, R-Mount Prospect.

"This association will give unqualified support to legislation that gives townships the power to tax us and insure we have fire protection," said Wagner.

WAGNER CONTENDS THAT Elk Grove Village officials offer fire and ambulance service to force annexation on Itasca Meadows subdivision residents. He did not, however, explain how contracting for service or paying for service after it is given, would bring this about.

Other officers of the association are, Ed Moder, president; Donald Stull, vice president; Perry Mayhew, treasurer; and Mary Ostrowski, secretary. Other trustees are Gary Pettee and John Chlo-lac.

Wagner said there are approximately 40 members in the association, "however, it's hard to know exactly, since a few move in and out," he said.

Wagner said "membership is automatic, when a resident moves in he belongs. Except for paying a $25 membership fee, we do not have dues."

Oakton spring signup still on Classes began yesterday at Oakton Community College in Morton Grove but registration will continue throughout this week.

Students may register between 3:30 and 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday. Counselors will be available earlier in the day. Tuition is $10 per credit hour, $5 for senior citizens.

Special programs offered this semester include seminars for women returning to school, English as a second language, reading lab, and courses featuring guest lecturers such as "Who is Chicago," the Chicago Artists Workshop, and "Election '74."

Further information on courses and registration is available through the Oakton admissions office, 967-5120.

School evaluators find only minor problems here

by BOB GALLAS

A preliminary report, filed by state evaluators on School Dist. 59, turned up only minor deficiencies in the district's operation.

Representatives from the Office of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction spent four days last week visiting the 21 schools in the district, which covers parts of Elk Grove Village, Des Plaines, Mount Prospect and Arlington Heights.

The evaluators interviewed principals, teachers and administrators along with sitting in on classes and checking some district business records. Their findings will be compiled into a report to the State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

DIST 59 SUPT. James Erviti said he plans to act on some of the "concerns" listed by evaluators right away.

Erviti said he was confident most of the problem areas over which the evaluators expressed concern could be corrected immediately since the problems mainly concerned documentation of certain programs in the district, not the programs as a whole.

Some of the "areas of concern" of the evaluators included:

- The district's health program was modernized and comprehensive. Erviti said follow-up written documentation of the program, which will be done by the district, would probably show the program to be satisfactory.

- Titles given to district employees match their certification. For example, Learning Center Directors should actually be called learning center teachers, according to Erviti, since they are certified teachers, but not accredited learning center directors.

- The career education program be more clearly identified. The district presently has such a program, according to Erviti, but it is part of the social studies curriculum, which is presently being reevaluated.

- The sequence and coordination of art programs and level of help to teachers. The district currently operates an art program under Forman Onderdank. The organization and sequence of the program hasn't really been documented in written form, however, according to Erviti.

- Coordination of consumer education program. Such a program is taught in the district, according to Erviti, but it is part of several different programs and ought to be organized better, he said.

The preliminary report praised the overall general management of the district along with teachers and principals in general, saying the staff was "dedicated with a sincere desire to perform with professionalism."

Also complemented was the Dist. 59 School Board, which was termed "sophisticated and concerned" by the preliminary report.

EQUIPMENT AND supplies are abundant in the district, according to the evaluators, who also praised the district's financial planning.

The report, issued orally following the evaluator's visit, was only preliminary, according to Erviti. A more detailed report will be compiled by the evaluators at a later date.

Midyear graduation dates at Maine North and West

Midyear graduation ceremonies are being held at Maine North and Maine West high schools next week.

Forty-five students will participate in the commencement exercises at Maine North High School, 9511 Harrison, Tuesday, Jan. 29, at 8 p.m. in the spectator gym.

Maine North's concert orchestra under the direction of Walter Wolodkin will play the procession march. The Rev. Fred H. Conger of the Glenview United Methodist Church will open the graduation ceremonies with the invocation.

Richard Ferraro, senior class president will present the welcome address and Gene Hass, chairman of the English Department, will give the graduation address.

Richard R. Short, Dist. 207 superintendent of schools, will present the graduates.

Also graduating are: Janice Malestic, Joyce Malestic, Russell Marek, Carol Maynard, Karen Maynard, Colleen McNamie, Janet Michaelson, Mary F. O'Neill, Angela Pappas, Mary Picchiotti, Alison Richards, Mark Rover, Catherine Santori, Lisa Schaedel, Joan Schwass, Kevin H. Shannon, Donna Siller, Thomas Smart, Shari Soderlund, Anita Spies, Pamela Stauffer, Janet Stone, Kimberly Sturm, Larry Todorosky, Michael M. Verdonck, Karol Weber, William Yackman, and Julie Zebos.

GRADUATION at Maine West High School will be held on Thursday, Jan. 31, at 8 p.m. in the auditorium when 95 students will receive diplomas.

The Maine West chamber orchestra will play "March from Scipio" as the procession, followed by the national anthem. The Rev. James D. Bauman of Immanuel Lutheran Church will offer the invocation.

James L. Coburn, principal of Maine West, will make the welcoming address. The Maine West Chorale will offer a musical interlude after which Richard R. Short, superintendent of Maine Township High School, will present the graduates. John L. Means, a member of the board of education, will accept the class.

As the graduates' names will be announced by John G. Graef, assistant principal of Maine West, and Robert C. Claus, president of the board of education, will present the diplomas.

Area hospitals still closed to abortions

by KURT BAER

A year after the U.S. Supreme Court's decision legalizing abortion, the doors of Northwest area hospitals remain closed to women seeking their Constitutional right.

The board of directors of Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights has made no move to reconsider its policy permitting abortions only in cases where the mother's life or health are threatened, said Hospital Pres. Malcolm MacCoun yesterday.

Lutheran General Hospital in Park Ridge reportedly is still studying the issue.

And area Catholic hospitals, Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village and Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines, of course, remain opposed to abortion on demand.

THE LACK OF abortion facilities in the suburbs is still a matter of concern to State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights.

"We have now a U.S. Supreme Court decision which makes it clear that laws cannot interfere with a woman's right to privacy when hospitals are funded by the public as Northwest Community Hospital was," Mrs. Chapman said yesterday.

"Hospitals that do not permit a woman and her doctor to make a medical decision of this nature are not being responsive to the public they serve," she said.

Every public opinion poll by 3rd District legislators has shown that 75 to 80 per cent of the people in the district think that abortion should be a matter of individual decision between a woman and her doctor, Mrs. Chapman said.

Ultimately the legality of a hospital refusing to perform abortions for other than religious reasons will be decided by the Supreme Court, she said. There are cases in the courts right now to test the hospital policies.

"I WOULD NOT expect a hospital with religious affiliation, or a doctor with personal or religious beliefs that are opposed to abortion to participate," she said.

Some doctors at Northwest Community Hospital voted in favor of performing abortions there last April. However, the hospital's board of directors in June agreed not to alter their previous policy.

MacCoun said yesterday there probably have been fewer abortion inquiries at Northwest Community since the Supreme Court decision was announced a year ago than before the highly-publicized ruling.

A special study committee at Lutheran General Hospital has submitted its secret report to the hospital's president, a spokesman there said.

The recommendations will be submitted to the hospital's board for consideration soon, the spokesman said.

To perform 'Rob Roy'

The Des Plaines Park District will sponsor the professional Robin Hood Players in the heroic tale of the Scottish Robin Hood, "Rob Roy." The play will be presented in the Maine West High School auditorium Jan. 28, at 1:30 p.m. The players are in their 10th season. Tickets will be sold at the door for 50 cents, or at the park district office.

A long road to federal approval expected

Alexian-I-90 interchange said to be two years away

by BOB GALLAS

The Interstate 90 interchange that Alexian Brothers Medical Center wants so badly is more than two years away, according to a spokesman for the Illinois Department of Transportation.

Alexian Brothers is leading the drive for the interchange, which would be located at Biesterfeld Road in Elk Grove Village, because it would provide faster, more direct access to the hospital.

The spokesman for the state said the reason for the delay was due to the many steps which must be taken before federal approval for the project can be obtained.

ONE OF THE stumbling blocks to the intersection is a commitment needed from Cook County to upgrade Biesterfeld Road and extend it from Rohlwing Road to Roselle Road. Such action would give the interchange "an extremely better chance to get federal approval," according to the spokesman.

It's not known at this time what the county's reaction to the state proposal will be.

According to a letter from Illinois Department of Transportation Sec. Langhorne Bond, to State Sen. David Regner, R-Mount Prospect, if such a commitment is secured from the county, public hearings would then be held in Elk Grove Village to obtain the views on location of the interchange from residents along Biesterfeld Road.

The next step would be to request an additional access point along I-90 from the Federal Highway Administration in Washington, according to Bond.

IF APPROVED, the state would begin interchange location studies. Also necessary would be approval from the secretary of the U.S. Department of Transportation, since some forest preserve land would be required if the interchange were to be constructed at Biesterfeld Road.

According to the state spokesman, the two key issues which could decide the fate of the interchange are the upgrading and extension of Biesterfeld Road and the approval to use forest preserve land. The failure to secure either one would probably mean that hopes for the interchange would be extremely dim, according to the spokesman.

"We figured it would be at least a two year process," said Steve Skorcz, vice president of planning at Alexian Brothers. Skorcz said he was encouraged, how-

Homeowners: village owes fire, ambulance services

by JERRY THOMAS

Officers of the Itasca Meadows Subdivision Assn. in unincorporated Elk Grove Township agree that they have to pay someone for fire and ambulance protection service — but they maintain that Elk Grove Village owes that service to them, payment or not.

Tony Wagner, trustee of the association, said its officers have written to Elk Grove Village officials and asked for a meeting "to talk over fire and ambulance service."

"The meeting, the first in three years between the group and village officials has not been scheduled. 'We asked the village to name a place and time,' said Wagner.

Wagner said the talk "probably won't settle anything, since they have never in the past answered our questions about costs."

ITASCA MEADOWS residents do not pay a fire or ambulance tax to any municipality but must contract individually for service. In some unincorporated areas, homeowners band together in associations that contract for such service.

"Our association has mainly met only for social occasions except in this issue of fire protection," said Wagner.

Wagner added the officers have reactivated its governing board since the tragic death of an Itasca Meadows mother, eight months pregnant with her sixth child, Mrs. Jean Pettee died in her home just three blocks from a hospital and four blocks away from the Elk Grove Village Fire Department, while waiting for ambulance service from the Roselle Fire Department with which the family contracted for service.

Wagner and others in the association claim most of the residents in Itasca Meadows "prefer" to contract with Roselle Fire Protection District rather than Elk Grove Village.

HOWEVER, after Mrs. Pettee's death, the association charged the village with placing a dollar value on life after the village refused to answer an ambulance call to the Pettee home because they had no contract for service.

Wagner has argued that the village was legally and morally bound to provide fire and ambulance service.

"When our unincorporated area was disannexed from the Roselle Fire Protection District we became Elk Grove Village's responsibility and yet they continuously deny this," said Wagner. An argument over responsibility and the village's policy to serve only those who contract has gone on for two years.

Wagner maintains that his neighbors want to pay a fair price for fire protection and understand Elk Grove Village's request for payment for service. "However they (Elk Grove Village) have never to our satisfaction been able to tell how they arrive at a $42-a-year charge," he said.

VILLAGE MGR. Charles Willis said the village considered $42 a fair and reasonable cost. "It's true we cannot give an exact formula for our figures, but it is about what residents pay," said Willis.

He said the village is always ready to meet with the association and noted that Charles Zetek, village president in a letter last week "begged the residents" to meet with him to discuss fire protection. He also announced the village will serve unincorporated areas on a serve-now, bill-later plan.

Wagner said the association has also written letters to local legislators urging them to work for passage of legislation to be proposed in April by State Sen. David Regner, R-Mount Prospect.

"This association will give unqualified support to legislation that gives townships the power to tax us and insure we have fire protection," said Wagner.

WAGNER CONTENDS THAT Elk Grove Village officials offer fire and ambulance service to force annexation on Itasca Meadows subdivision residents. He did not, however, explain how contracting for service or paying for service after it is given, would bring this about.

Other officers of the association are, Ed Moder, president; Donald Stull, vice president; Perry Mayhew, treasurer; and Mary Ostrowski, secretary. Other trustees are Gary Pettee and John Chio-lac.

Wagner said there are approximately 40 members in the association, "however, it's hard to know exactly, since a few move in and out," he said.

Wagner said "membership is automatic, when a resident moves in he belongs. Except for paying a $25 membership fee, we do not have dues."

I'll meet deadline: center promoter

by KURT BAER

The promoter of the Chicago-O'Hare International Trade Center says he will meet an April deadline on financing the $45 million complex.

Groundbreaking for the trade center is expected about mid-April, with completion of the first construction phase planned for September, 1975, said Anthony R. Finocchio, president and general manager of the trade center.

Previously, the trade center had been scheduled to open about January, 1975.

Finocchio said he has "one solid, concrete financing proposal" pending right now, and is negotiating several others.

A lease agreement with the late Carl

Klehm for the use of a 65-acre site at the southeast corner of Arlington Heights Road and the Northwest Tollway requires that proof of financing be established by April.

Zoning and annexation of the property still is pending before the Arlington Heights Village Board.

FREDERICK CAPETTA, attorney for the Klehm family, said he still plans to pursue the annexation and zoning petition. The last village board meeting on the proposed annexation was Aug. 20, 1973.

Details of settling Klehm's estate, which was valued in probate court at $21 million, have kept him from following up on the annexation matter, Capetta said.

Financing for the trade center complex, which initially will include a 400,000 square foot convention center and a 500-room hotel, has been delayed by fluctuating money market conditions, Finocchio said. But since Jan. 1, the situation has improved dramatically, he added.

"Where before we couldn't talk to more than one person at a time, we're now in the unique position where they all want to get on the band wagon," Finocchio said.

"We definitely have to get into the ground by mid-April."

A NUMBER OF unanswered questions still surround the development. Included are:

- Whether the remaining 55 acres of undeveloped property at the site will be annexed and zoned for commercial use without a requirement for a specific development plan.

- A request from the trade center builder, D. J. Rintz & Co., Elk Grove Village, for variations in the village building code relating to fire protection.

- The possibility that Elk Grove Village will file a lawsuit to block the land annexation and trade center development. The village already has filed its objection with the Arlington Heights Village Board.

Plans for an additional 500 hotel rooms and the possibility of a suburban merchandise mart also have been discussed in connection with the Chicago-O'Hare International Trade Center.

Auditors to discuss budget tonight

The Elk Grove Township Board of Auditors will meet at 8 p.m. tonight to discuss a proposed budget for a 13-month fiscal year — Feb. 28, 1974 to April 1, 1975.

The 13-month fiscal year is an attempt to make both the road and bridge fiscal year, which now runs from March 28 to April 1, and the town fund and general assistance fiscal year, Feb. 28 to March 1, the same.

Township Supervisor Richard Hall said the 13-month fiscal year will be only for this 1974-1975 budget; others will run 12 months.

Last April the board adopted a $438,612 combined town fund, general assistance and road and bridge fund budget.

Tonight's special session in the town hall at 2400 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights, will be to prepare preliminary figures for the coming budget.

During last year's budget hearings, township officials were criticized for voting approximately 50 per cent raises for themselves.

Fire Chief suspects arson

by DOUG RAY

Fire swept through an apartment building at the Dryden Apartments in Arlington Heights last night totally destroying several of the units on the first floor and leaving 24 families homeless. Arson is suspected.

The fire apparently began in the basement storage area of the 3-story apartment building across from the Arlington Market Shopping Center. Firemen with masks and oxygen units on their backs went into the basement but were forced out when the floor of a first floor apartment collapsed, according to one of the firemen who fought the blaze. The fire began at about 7:30 p.m. and firemen from a half dozen communities were attempting to contain it two hours later.

Fire Chief John Hayden said "definitely we suspect arson." He confirmed the fire began in the basement and ran up the walls "just like the last time." He estimated the damage to the building itself at $25,000.

Last May, fire hit another apartment building in the complex. All families in that fire were relocated and fire officials estimated the damage at $100,000. Fire officials suspected arson in that fire.

Last night's blaze struck while most of the families were having dinner, and although all persons were removed, the flames spread rapidly. After about an hour of fighting the fire, fire officials were forced back by a small explosion.

Firemen said a "three-box alarm" was called and dozens of firemen responded, including those from Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Palatine, Prospect Heights, and Rolling Meadows.

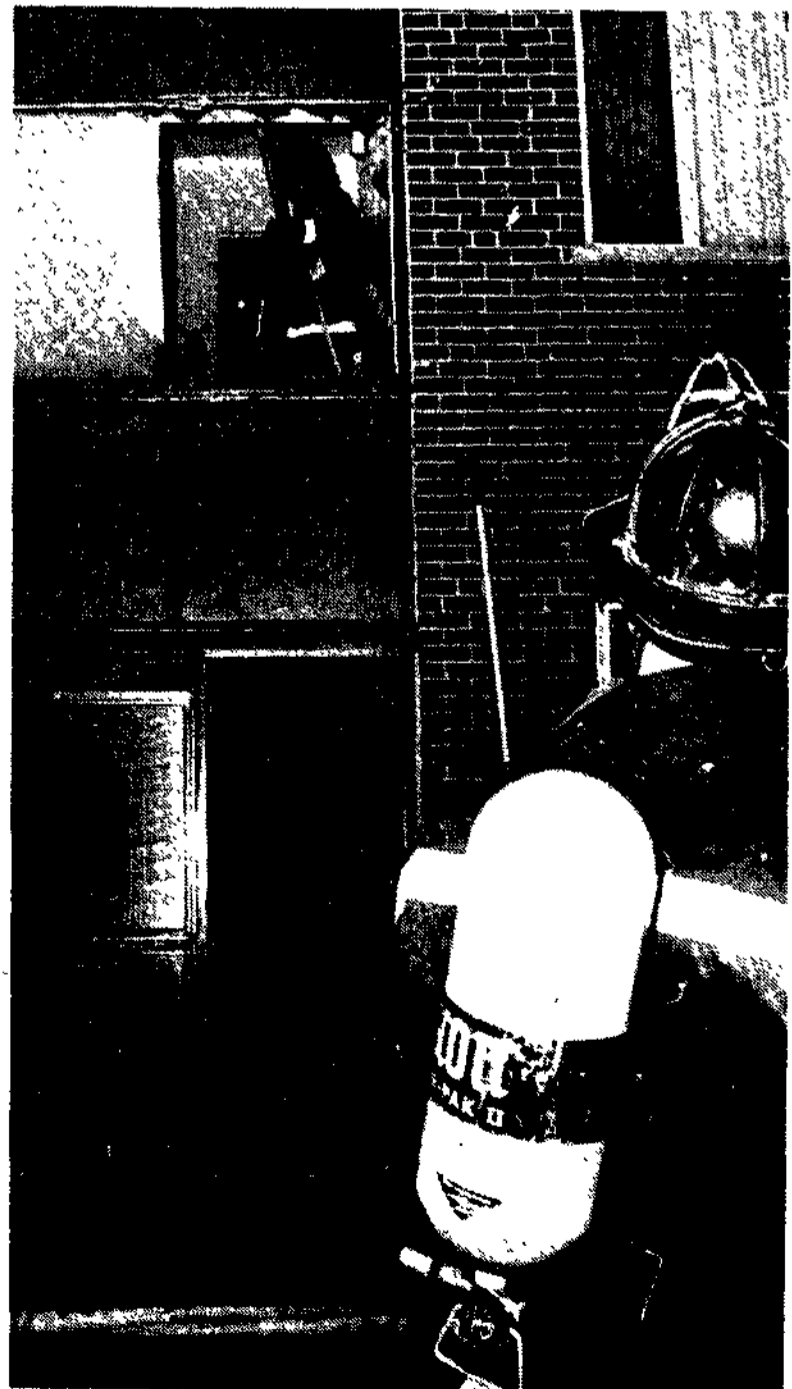

Red Cross officials at the scene said two elderly persons were taken from the burning building, one who fell trying to leave the darkened building.

FIREMEN USED chain saws to break through the roof as flames shot out of the first floor apartments.

The apartment residents were warned of the fire and evacuated their homes when a person began running down the hallways knocking on the doors.

"We couldn't do anything except get ourselves out," said Mrs. Bill Doty, one of the first floor residents.

Residents said firemen responded to several calls at the complex over the weekend. They said two mailboxes were set afire and a wicker basket on a child's bicycle in the hallway. A fire in a trash container outside was reported on Sunday.

Smoke damage was extensive in the blaze.

It's Christmas!

7-year-old injured in auto accident finds his road to recovery brighter

Young Kent Bauman spent the weekend at home, playing under the Christmas tree with all of his newly opened presents.

Hospitalized at Alexian Brothers Medical Center since Oct. 24 when he was struck by a car and severely injured, Kent, 7, has been on the long and slow road to recovery.

Kent lay in a coma for 11 days following the accident and was semi-conscious much of the time until Christmas when he started to respond.

He's now doing some of the things he'd been unable to do for much of his hospital stay, such as talking, eating, and with the aid of a crutch — even walking.

"He's just enjoying his new toys," said Kent's mother, Bette Bauman, when contacted by The Herald at her Medinah home. "The doctors thought he might walk better around home, so he's just going to relax around here for a few weeks before going back to the hospital as an outpatient for physical therapy," said Mrs. Bauman.

MRS. BAUMAN said doctors said they will make a decision in about two weeks, on whether Kent will be allowed to return to school this year.

Kent was hit by a car while crossing Thorndale Avenue in Medinah to catch a school bus. He suffered severe head injuries, a fractured leg and numerous cuts and bruises.

Kent's battle toward recovery was first reported in The Herald on Christmas Eve and again a few days later when he spoke for the first time since the accident.

"It's been 86 days," said Mrs. Bauman, who's been keeping track of the time since the accident on a special calendar at home which has 86 X's on it.

"I told Ken we wouldn't take down the Christmas tree until he came home," said Mrs. Bauman.

"I'm just glad we didn't have to keep it up until June," she added.

School evaluators find only minor problems here

by BOB GALLAS

A preliminary report, filed by state evaluators on School Dist. 59, turned up only minor deficiencies in the district's operation.

Representatives from the Office of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction spent four days last week visiting the 21 schools in the district, which covers parts of Elk Grove Village, Des Plaines, Mount Prospect and Arlington Heights.

The evaluators interviewed principals, teachers and administrators along with sitting in on classes and checking some district business records. Their findings will be compiled into a report to the State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

DIST 59 SUPT. James Erviti said he plans to act on some of the "concerns" listed by evaluators right away.

Erviti said he was confident most of the problem areas over which the evaluators expressed concern could be corrected immediately since the problems mainly concerned documentation of certain programs in the district, not the programs as a whole.

Some of the "areas of concern" of the evaluators included:

- The district's health program was modernized and comprehensive. Erviti said follow-up written documentation of the program, which will be done by the district, would probably show the program to be satisfactory.

- Titles given to district employees match their certification. For example, Learning Center Directors should actually be called learning center teachers, according to Erviti, since they are certified teachers, but not accredited learning center directors.

- The career education program be more clearly identified. The district presently has such a program, according to Erviti, but it is part of the social studies curriculum, which is presently being reevaluated.

- The sequence and coordination of art programs and level of help to teachers. The district currently operates an art program under Forman Onderdank. The organization and sequence of the program hasn't really been documented in written form, however, according to Erviti.

- Coordination of consumer education program. Such a program is taught in the district, according to Erviti, but it is part of several different programs and ought to be organized better, he said.

The preliminary report praised the overall general management of the district along with teachers and principals in general, saying the staff was "dedicated with a sincere desire to perform with professionalism."

Also complemented was the Dist. 59 School Board, which was termed "sophisticated and concerned" by the preliminary report.

EQUIPMENT AND SUPPLIES are abundant in the district, according to the evaluators, who also praised the district's financial planning.

The report, issued orally following the evaluator's visit, was only preliminary, according to Erviti. A more detailed report will be compiled by the evaluators at a later date.

3 suburban gas stations ordered: roll back prices

by JOE FRANZ

Three gasoline stations in the Northwest suburbs are among 17 in the Chicago area that have been ordered by the Internal Revenue Service to refund overcharges to customers by rolling back prices.

The stations are Dan's Ranch Mart Mobil, Dundee and Buffalo Grove roads in Buffalo Grove; Wheeling 400 Car Wash, 400 N. Milwaukee Ave., Wheeling, and Bob's Marathon, Roselle Road and Weathersfield Way, Schaumburg.

"The stations were found to be overcharging and they voluntarily agreed to return to prices that will make up the amount they had overcharged their customers," an IRS spokesman said yesterday. "After the overcharges are made up they can reestablish their prices at the proper level."

ALL 17 OF THE gas stations have been ordered to cut prices by varying amounts to make up the overcharges, which the IRS estimates at $25,000. Most of the gas stations have rolled back prices several cents.

Spokesmen for the Wheeling 400 Car Wash and Bob's Marathon refused comment yesterday on the recent IRS order. However, Dan Rutkowski, owner of the Mobil station in Buffalo Grove said he was ordered to cut prices to make up for $2,500 in overcharges.

"I have been overcharging, but it wasn't intentional," Rutkowski told the Herald yesterday. "I have agreed to lower my prices until I can make up for it."

Rutkowski said the IRS came to his station Jan. 15 investigating a complaint that he had been selling gasoline for $1 a gallon Dec. 29. He said he never sold gas for that price and in fact was not even open Dec. 29.

At that time, however, the IRS discovered Rutkowski did not have certain forms that are required to be filled out for every price increase. The IRS also discovered that he apparently had been overcharging customers varying amounts since last November.

RUTKOWSKI said the regulations governing price increases and profit margins are confusing and that he did not think he was charging too much for gasoline. "I've taken surveys of other gas stations in the area and I've always managed to stay lower than most of my competitors," he said.

As for the required forms, Rutkowski said he was not aware he was supposed to have them. "If I'm supposed to do something I should be given written notice by the government," he added.

The IRS has supplied Rutkowski with the needed forms and has given him until Feb. 16 to refund the overcharges.

Prior to the rollback, Rutkowski said he was charging 49.9 cents a gallon for regular and 53.9 cents for premium. The station is now charging 43.2 cents a gallon for regular and 47.4 for premium. After the overcharges are made up the prices will go up to 48.2 cents per gallon for regular and 52.4 for premium.

The IRS spokesman said agents had either received complaints or were making spot checks when they discovered the stations were overcharging. In the last several weeks, the spokesman said the incidents of price gouging among station owners has decreased substantially.

Developer offers schools a cash gift

A cash contribution of an undisclosed amount is being offered to Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 by Hallmark Homes, Developers of Lexington Green, a 400-unit condominium complex at Meacham and Old Schaumburg roads.

Members of the Schaumburg Zoning Board of Appeals voted unanimously last week to recommend planned unit development zoning for the 43-acre property, over the objection of Dist. 54 Board Pres. Donnie Ruckl.

The land, owned by Mayor Robert O. Atcher and Chicago developer Jack M.

Village birthday celebration to include a 'photo album'

Plans for the Elk Grove Village "Horizons '76" year-long birthday celebration, the village's 20th and the nation's 200th, include a "family photo album."

"But, this photo collection needs, as its contributors, each and every resident of Elk Grove Village," said Nanci Vanderweel, trustee and chairman of the Horizons '76 committee.

"I'm collecting photographs now to display in the village hall during the celebration," she said. Mrs. Vanderweel said "I need pictures of residents, homes, streets, parks, factories, churches and anything that shows what Elk Grove Village and its people looked like in the past 20 years."

"I'm asking everyone to dig into their family albums and give us the pictures for display," she said.

THE PHOTO GALLERY is just one way residents will celebrate the village's incorporation and the nation-wide celebration.

"I'm accepting reservations now from village organizations who plan activities throughout the year," said Mrs. Vanderweel.

The village is not sponsoring functions but has encouraged people of the community, village organizations and groups to come up with some activity.

"We are coordinating the event and this year's calendar publication was the start of that coordination," said Mrs. Vanderweel.

SHE SAID THE 1976 calendar, which must be prepared by June of 1975, would include all the planned birthday events. The calendar will be updated with monthly reports.

"Since our village has about 100 organizations, we think we will have a year-round whirl of activities," said Mrs. Vanderweel.

She said the committee has prepared a list of suggestions for celebration, but any good idea will be considered.

"We aren't just looking to organized groups for suggestions; a block of homeowners or several families can plan an event, and it too will be part of our celebration," she said.

Residents who want further information about calendar listings may contact Mrs. Vanderweel at the village hall at 439-3900.

State police bus crackdown leaves pupils stranded

by LINDA PUNCH and JOHN MAES

Several hundred Maine North High School students were temporarily stranded at the school yesterday afternoon when Illinois State Police arrested five bus drivers for unsafe equipment and overcrowded conditions.

The five United Motor Coach drivers were arrested outside the school as classes let out for the day. According to Cpl. R. L. Johnson of the state police, yesterday's ticketing stemmed from complaints of students about overcrowded conditions on buses taking them to and from school.

Students complained the buses were overheated, ran late and that passengers were "packed in like sardines," Johnson said. Police head counts of students showed between 89 to 100 students on the buses, he added.

SOME BUSES WERE so crowded that students were standing in door wells and behind the driver, Johnson said. One bus was without brake lights.

Yesterday's incident was the latest in a series of state police crackdowns on alleged unsafe bus conditions. Last Friday, state police checked buses operated by the Cook County Bus Co. at Forest View High School in Arlington Heights.

They ticketed one bus because it didn't have a proper registration card. A driver was ticketed for not carrying a proper school bus license.

Sgt. Hugh McGinley of the state police, said the check was intended primarily to make sure all drivers have a proper school bus license.

MAINE NORTH Principal Robert A. Wells, said he had no warning that state police would be inspecting the buses.

"I understand the police were pulling students off the buses and leaving them stranded — if so I'm very much concerned," he said. "I'm really burned up about them turning the students loose."

Wells said students were later taken home after buses were rerouted from other areas.

George Koelper, vice president of United Motor Coach Co., said the buses are operated under Illinois Commerce Regulations and aren't covered by school bus requirements.

He said the school district does not contract bus service from the company and that children buy tickets directly from the company.

Area hospitals still closed to abortions

by KURT BAER

A year after the U.S. Supreme Court's decision legalizing abortion, the doors of Northwest area hospitals remain closed to women seeking their Constitutional right.

The board of directors of Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights has made no move to reconsider its policy permitting abortions only in cases where the mother's life or health are threatened, said Hospital Pres. Malcolm MacCoun yesterday.

Lutheran General Hospital in Park Ridge reportedly is still studying the issue.

And area Catholic hospitals, Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village and Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines, of course, remain opposed to abortion on demand.

THE LACK OF abortion facilities in the suburbs is still a matter of concern to State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights.

"We have now a U.S. Supreme Court decision which makes it clear that laws cannot interfere with a woman's right to privacy when hospitals are funded by the public as Northwest Community Hospital was," Mrs. Chapman said yesterday.

"Hospitals that do not permit a woman and her doctor to make a medical decision of this nature are not being responsive to the public they serve," she said.

Every public opinion poll by 3rd District legislators has shown that 75 to 80 per cent of the people in the district think that abortion should be a matter of individual decision between a woman and her doctor, Mrs. Chapman said.

Ultimately the legality of a hospital refusing to perform abortions for other than religious reasons will be decided by the Supreme Court, she said. There are cases in the courts right now to test the hospital policies.

"I WOULD NOT expect a hospital with religious affiliation, or a doctor with personal or religious beliefs that are opposed to abortion to participate," she said.

Some doctors at Northwest Community Hospital voted in favor of performing abortions there last April. However, the hospital's board of directors in June agreed not to alter their previous policy.

MacCoun said yesterday there probably have been fewer abortion inquiries at Northwest Community since the Supreme Court decision was announced a year ago than before the highly-publicized ruling.

A special study committee at Lutheran General Hospital has submitted its secret report to the hospital's president, a spokesman there said.

The recommendations will be submitted to the hospital's board for consideration soon, the spokesman said.

ever, by the state department of transportation's interest in the matter.

The hospital plans to step up its drive for the interchange, which is estimated to cut about five minutes traveling time for those approaching the hospital from the northwest along I-90.

Skorcz said the drive to attract attention to the need for an interchange would be conducted at shopping centers, such as Woodfield Mall. Skorcz added the hospital is trying to arrange a meeting with Gov. Daniel Walker in March to discuss the matter.

New Palatine Committee

Downtown-area planners expected to be hired today

The New Palatine Committee is expected to hire professional planners today to work with it on the formation of a comprehensive land-use plan for downtown Palatine.

Members of the New Palatine Committee will meet with Wilton L. Battles of Planning Horizons Inc., 2600 S. River Rd., Des Plaines, today "with the aim of reaching agreement on contractual arrangements to have his firm analyze downtown Palatine's present conditions and submit recommendations for the planned redevelopment of the central business district," said Lee Morrison, chairman of the committee in a press release.

A summary plan of what the downtown Palatine area should be will be submitted by Planning Horizons Inc. at the next meeting of the New Palatine Committee on Feb. 27, according to Morrison.

MORRISON SAID the committee will be holding a series of public presentations regarding the suggested redevelopment plans with various civic and social groups in the near future.

The hiring of a professional planner comes a week after Palatine Trustees Richard W. Fonte and Robert J. Guss Jr. asked the committee to hire a planner to work with them on the comprehensive land-use plan, hold public hearings on the plan and have a plan ready prior to July 1.

Battles, the village's planning consultant, had previously presented a proposal on the development of a comprehensive land-use plan to the 11-member committee.

A thoroughfare plan for the central business district is also being prepared by Battles for the village.

A PRELIMINARY plan for improvement and rejuvenation of Palatine's downtown area was prepared by Battles, who was then with Rolf C. Campbell and Associates, in 1972. Two basic development concepts were proposed, each substantially increasing the number of dwelling units in the downtown area, the tax base and public off-street parking. The 1972 report, which has not been used by the village, suggested financing and execution of the program be done through creation of a Palatine development corporation organized by Palatine individuals and businesses.

The New Palatine Committee was formed in December "to serve as a single vehicle for concerned Palatine businessmen and residents to acquire central business district land and develop new retail and service businesses there."

Palatine's financial institutions, which are represented on the committee, support the cost of operating the committee and have also agreed to provide financing for businesses willing to participate in the redevelopment of downtown Palatine.

THE DOWNTOWN redevelopment of other communities, particularly Kalamazoo, Mich., and Evanston, Ill., have been reviewed by the committee since its formation.

"It was felt the idea of an enclosed mall over the downtown Palatine area would not be practical or desirable," said Morrison.

January thaw wreaking havoc — with suspension systems, nerves

Bump-'n'-grind time on roads

by JOE SWICKARD

If you take a drive along some of the major roads in the area you're cruisin' for a bruisin'.

Road engineers call it the result of the annual freeze-thaw cycle. The victims call it like they see and feel them: potholes and chuckholes.

According to public works crews this is the cause: Water seeps into cracks of the pavement. When the temperature drops, the water freezes and expands. This basic application of physics causes the pavement to split and open the way to holes that grow larger and larger and larger.

Village crews in Palatine and Arlington were taking advantage of the relatively mild weather to apply "cold patch" to village streets yesterday. The cold patch is a temporary asphalt remedy for the holes.

A TELEPHONE CALL to the Illinois Highway Department repair yard in Arlington Heights was answered with: "There isn't anybody here that can answer your questions. All the crews and supervisors are out working today on the roads."

For a first hand experience, one should start at Northwest Highway and Arlington Heights Road. Head north on Northwest Highway and it's fairly smooth riding through Arlington Heights.

Once into Palatine, though, check the guarantee on your shock absorbers. There have been patching crews out recently — some of the asphalt in the cold patch has not yet set.

Here, even the patches are rough. Drivers in the curb lane are given to suddenly swerving to the left in order to avoid places where the pavement has disappeared.

Standing water often masks deep holes. Some drivers, either through experience or fear, cut left when even coming to a likely puddle.

A killer chuck hole is by the Buehler YMCA. Cars unable to avoid it steam for about a mile. The water splashes the hot engine and the smoke rolls out the back.

Then there is the Northwest Highway underpass at Dundee Road. The pavement is so multileveled it is impossible to miss a jolt.

The stretch by the Village Oasis shopping center is a good test to see if your fillings are tight.

Crews from the Village of Palatine are out making the effort. But, it could be equated to emptying the ocean with a tea cup or patching Northwest Highway with one crew. There just are too many holes.

Rand Road is, on the whole, in better condition.

THE WORST PLACE is the left turn lane on southbound Rand onto Golf Road. Motorists here can observe asphalt return to its component ingredients.

But, North Arlington Heights Road — once north of the Rand Road intersection — looks like an alligator with acne.

The actual holes are few and far between; but this pavement should avail itself to the nearest highway plastic surgeon.

NW suburban hospitals still closed to abortions

by KURT BAER

A year after the U.S. Supreme Court's decision legalizing abortion, the doors of Northwest area hospitals remain closed to women seeking their Constitutional right.

The board of directors of Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights has made no move to reconsider its policy permitting abortions only in cases where the mother's life or health are threatened, said Hospital Pres. Malcolm MacCoun yesterday.

Lutheran General Hospital in Park Ridge reportedly is still studying the issue.

And area Catholic hospitals, Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village and Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines, of course, remain opposed to abortion on demand.

THE LACK OF abortion facilities in the suburbs is still a matter of concern to State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights.

"We have now a U.S. Supreme Court decision which makes it clear that laws cannot interfere with a woman's right to privacy when hospitals are funded by the public as Northwest Community Hospital was," Mrs. Chapman said yesterday.

"Hospitals that do not permit a woman and her doctor to make a medical decision of this nature are not being responsive to the public they serve," she said.

Every public opinion poll by 3rd District legislators has shown that 75 to 80 per cent of the people in the district think that abortion should be a matter of individual decision between a woman and her doctor, Mrs. Chapman said.

Ultimately the legality of a hospital refusing to perform abortions for other than religious reasons will be decided by the Supreme Court, she said. There are cases in the courts right now to test the hospital policies.

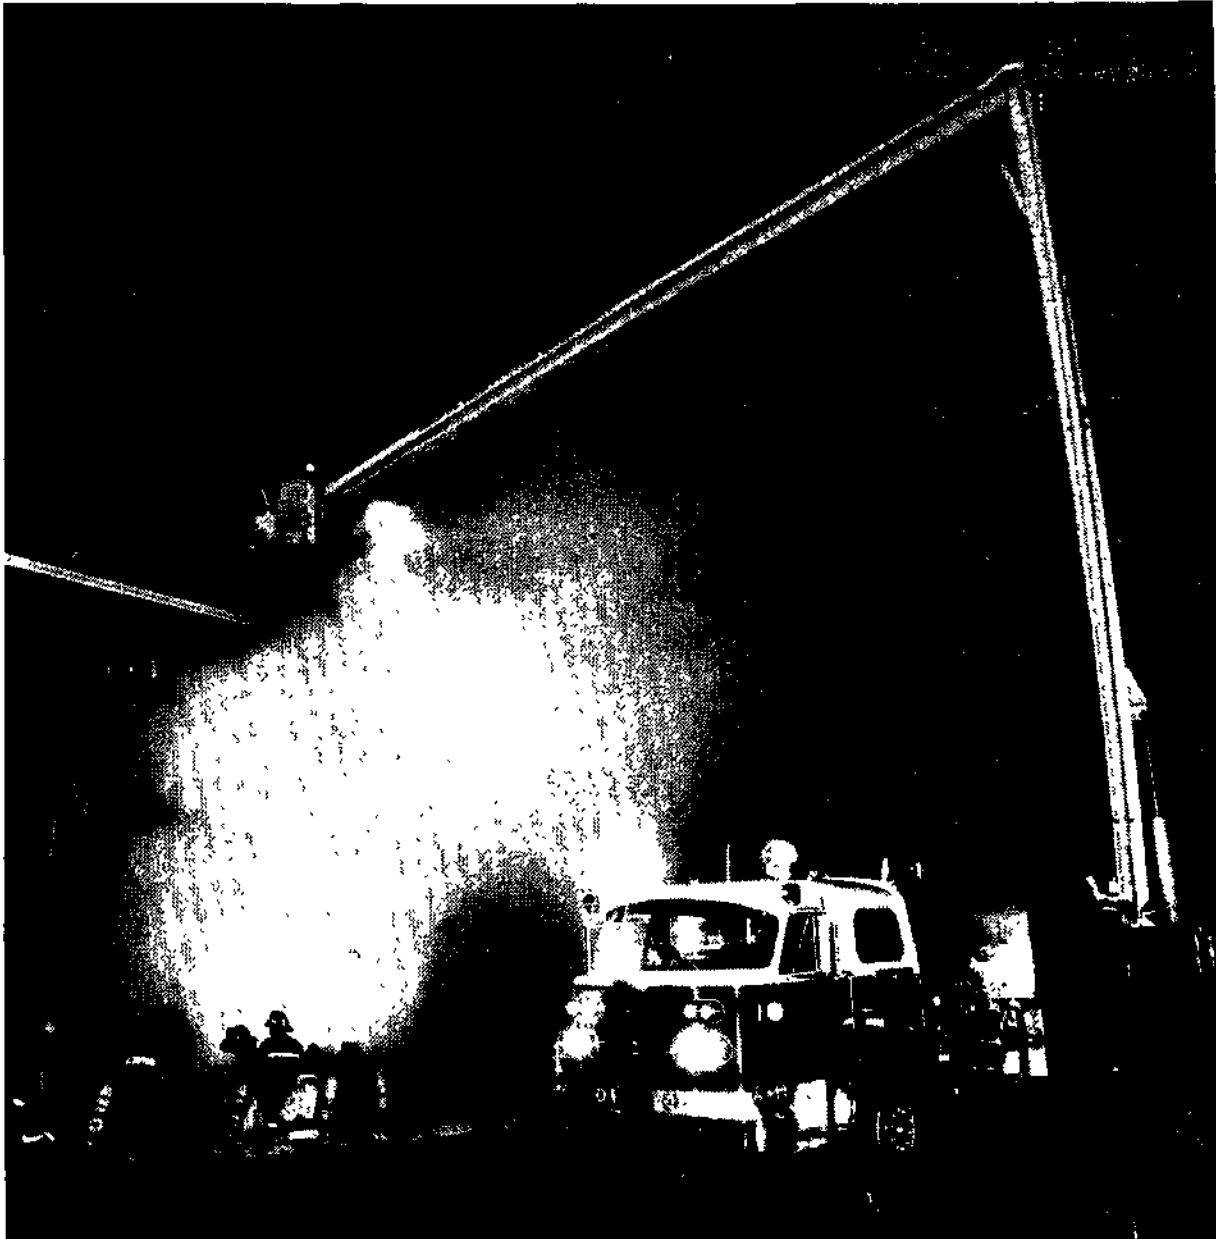

"I WOULD NOT expect a hospital with religious affiliation, or a doctor with personal or religious beliefs that are opposed to abortion to participate," she said.

Some doctors at Northwest Community Hospital voted in favor of performing abortions there last April. However, the hospital's board of directors in June agreed not to alter their previous policy.

MacCoun said yesterday there probably have been fewer abortion inquiries at Northwest Community since the Supreme Court decision was announced a year ago than before the highly-publicized ruling.

Fire left 24 families homeless last night at Dryden Apartments.

Fire Chief suspects arson

by DOUG RAY

Fire swept through an apartment building at the Dryden Apartments in Arlington Heights last night totally destroying several of the units on the first floor and leaving 24 families homeless. Arson is suspected.

The fire apparently began in the basement storage area of the 3-story apartment building across from the Arlington Market Shopping Center. Firemen with masks and oxygen units on their backs went into the basement but were forced out when the floor of a first floor apartment collapsed, according to one of the firemen who fought the blaze. The fire began at about 7:30 p.m. and firemen from a half dozen communities were attempting to contain it two hours later.

Fire Chief John Hayden said "definitely we suspect arson." He confirmed the fire began in the basement and ran up the walls "just like the last time." He estimated the damage to the building itself at $25,000.

Last May, fire hit another apartment building in the complex. All families in that fire were relocated and fire officials estimated the damage at $100,000. Fire officials suspected arson in that fire.

Last night's blaze struck while most of the families were having dinner, and although all persons were removed, the flames spread rapidly. After about an hour of fighting the fire, fire officials were forced back by a small explosion.

Firemen said a "three-box alarm" was called and dozens of firemen responded, including those from Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Palatine, Prospect Heights, and Rolling Meadows.

Red Cross officials at the scene said two elderly persons were taken from the burning building, one who fell trying to leave the darkened building.

FIREMEN USED chain saws to break through the roof as flames shot out of the first floor apartments.

The apartment residents were warned of the fire and evacuated their homes when a person began running down the hallways knocking on the doors.

"We couldn't do anything except get ourselves out," said Mrs. Bill Doty, one of the first floor residents.

Residents said firemen responded to several calls at the complex over the weekend. They said two mailboxes were set afire and a wicker basket on a child's bicycle in the hallway. A fire in a trash container outside was reported on Sunday.

Smoke damage was extensive in the blaze.

Signup on for Bulls game

Area basketball fans may sign up for this Friday's Palatine Park District outing to see the Chicago Bulls against Seattle. Tickets for admission and transportation are $5 per person, and a bus will leave from the park administration building at 6 p.m., returning at approximately 11 p.m.

More details of the trip to the Chicago Stadium are available by calling 359-0333.

'Christian living' courses set

A school of Christian living begins Wednesday for four consecutive weekly sessions at Christ Lutheran Church, 41 S. Rohlwing Rd., Palatine.

Areas of study will include "Marriage and Family Communication," led by Orville McElfresh, psychiatric counselor at Lutheran General Hospital; "Why Do Christians Break Down?" led by the Rev. Jack Nordgaard, based on William Miller's book; and "In God We Trust," a study of the Book of Revelation, led by the Rev. Dennis Griffin.

Sessions start at 7:45 p.m., and are offered for parishioners and the public. Reservations for the classes may be made by phoning the church office at 359-4600. Classes are free, with the exception of class materials which participants may purchase.

Brent Wheat Derby champ

Brent Wheat placed first in the Cub Scout Pack 321 Annual Pinewood Derby Race last Friday.

The second-place winner was Rick Ro-ray and Mike Moncek and Mike Kiehler were runnersup.

Wayne Rau won the award for the nicest-looking car, and the award for the most typical pinewood derby car went to Joey Trager.

Wheat is now eligible to compete in the Signal Hill district finals of the Pinewood Derby Race.

The almanac

Today is Tuesday, Jan. 22, the 22nd day of 1974 with 343 to follow.

The moon is approaching its new phase.

Technically there is no morning star.

The evening stars are Mercury, Venus, Mars and Jupiter.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Aquarius.

British poet Lord Byron was born Jan. 2, 1789.

On this day in history:

In 1789, the first American novel, "The Power of Sympathy" by Sarah Morton, was published in Boston.

In 1963, the nations of France and Germany — old foes — signed a treaty pledging cooperation in foreign policy, defense and cultural affairs.

In 1968, Communist North Korea seized the U. S. intelligence ship "Pueblo" in the Sea of Japan and took 83 crewmen captive. The crew was released 11 months later and North Korea kept the vessel.

In 1973, former President Lyndon B. Johnson died at the age of 64.

Fund-drive honchos

Girl Scouts fun for dads, too

by REGINA OEHLER

Girl Scouts isn't only for girls. Dads also can get involved and many fathers will be doing just that this month.

The fathers, as part of a money-raising project to support two Wisconsin Girl Scout camps, will be knocking on the doors of other Girl Scout families from Jan. 26 to Feb. 10, asking for contributions of about $10 per family.

They are participating in an annual fund drive which provides about 7 per cent of all Girl Scout funds. Most of the money is earmarked for Happy Hollow and NORWESCO camps. The rest goes towards the general Girl Scout fund.

While not all of the representatives will be men, the Girl Scouts have encouraged male participation as a means by which fathers can get involved.

Two fathers are serving as co-chairmen of the area drive. Phil McDonald, 839 N. Stark, is spending his second year on the enrollment drive and Ken White, 670 Wren Ave., is the other chairman. White was one

Palatine Township board to weigh Crossroads funding

Crossroads Clinic, a Palatine-based venereal disease test and birth control clinic for teen-agers, will be the sole subject of tonight's Palatine Township board meeting at Sanborn School, 101 N. Oak St., Palatine.

The meeting, which begins at 8 p.m., is to review Palatine Township officials' decision to grant $5,000 in federal revenue-sharing funds to the clinic. The money may be used to buy medical equipment and supplies, but none of the $5,000 has yet been released pending the conclusion of the funding controversy.

Township officials are expected to make a decision whether or not to revoke the funding at tonight's meeting. The controversy centers on clinic supporters who say the work of the clinic is crucial to total teen-age health care, and clinic opponents who dislike the clinic's policy of distributing contraceptives to teen-agers without parental consent.

Funding for the clinic was approved Oct. 8 without opposition, although critics had objected to the possible funding at a series of earlier meetings. A serious campaign to get the funding revoked began last month.

Tonight's discussion was postponed from last Monday's regular township meeting, when an overflow crowd jammed into the township hall basement and parking lot to hear and participate in the Crossroads issue.

Petitions with more than 3,000 signatures are expected to be submitted at tonight's meeting signed by persons objecting to the township funding of the clinic.

Officials in Schaumburg, Elk Grove and Barrington townships also have granted federal revenue-sharing money to the Crossroads clinic, without serious controversy. Wheeling Township officials are considering a similar request for clinic funding.

Trade center promoter vows to meet deadline

by KURT BAER

The promoter of the Chicago-O'Hare International Trade Center says he will meet an April deadline on financing the $45 million complex.

Groundbreaking for the trade center is expected about mid-April, with completion of the first construction phase planned for September, 1975, said Anthony R. Finocchio, president and general manager of the trade center.

Previously, the trade center had been scheduled to open about January, 1975.

Finocchio said he has "one solid, concrete financing proposal" pending right now, and is negotiating several others.

A lease agreement with the late Carl Klehm for the use of a 65-acre site at the southeast corner of Arlington Heights Road and the Northwest Tollway requires that proof of financing be established by April.

Zoning and annexation of the property still is pending before the Arlington Heights Village Board.

FREDERICK CAPETTA, attorney for the Klehm family, said he still plans to pursue the annexation and zoning petition. The last village board meeting on the proposed annexation was Aug. 20, 1973.

Details of settling Klehm's estate, which was valued in probate court at $21 million, have kept him from following up on the annexation matter, Capetta said.

Financing for the trade center complex, which initially will include a 400,000 square foot convention center and a 500-room hotel, has been delayed by fluctuating money market conditions, Finocchio said. But since Jan. 1, the situation has improved dramatically, he added.

"Where before we couldn't talk to more than one person at a time, we're now in the unique position where they all want to get on the band wagon," Finocchio said.

"We definitely have to get into the ground by mid-April."

A NUMBER OF unanswered questions still surround the development. Included are:

- Whether the remaining 55 acres of undeveloped property at the site will be annexed and zoned for commercial use without a requirement for a specific development plan.

- A request from the trade center builder, D. J. Rintz & Co., Elk Grove Village, for variations in the village building code relating to fire protection.

- The possibility that Elk Grove Village will file a lawsuit to block the land annexation and trade center development. The village already has filed its objection with the Arlington Heights Village Board.

Plans for an additional 500 hotel rooms and the possibility of a suburban merchandise mart also have been discussed in connection with the Chicago-O'Hare International Trade Center.

9 CD director hopefuls to be interviewed

Nine candidates are expected to be interviewed this weekend for the new Palatine Civil Defense director position.

The nine candidates were selected from a list of 85 names submitted to Trustee Robert J. Guss Jr. for consideration. An additional six candidates are expected to be considered when names are submitted by homeowners' groups.

The candidates will be interviewed by a four-member committee consisting of Trustees Guss and Bryan P. Coughlin Jr., acting Village Mgr. James Bennett and John Fascia of the Illinois Civil Defense Agency and Office of Emergency Preparedness.

Guss said the committee hoped to name a new Civil Defense director, subject to board approval, by the end of the month.

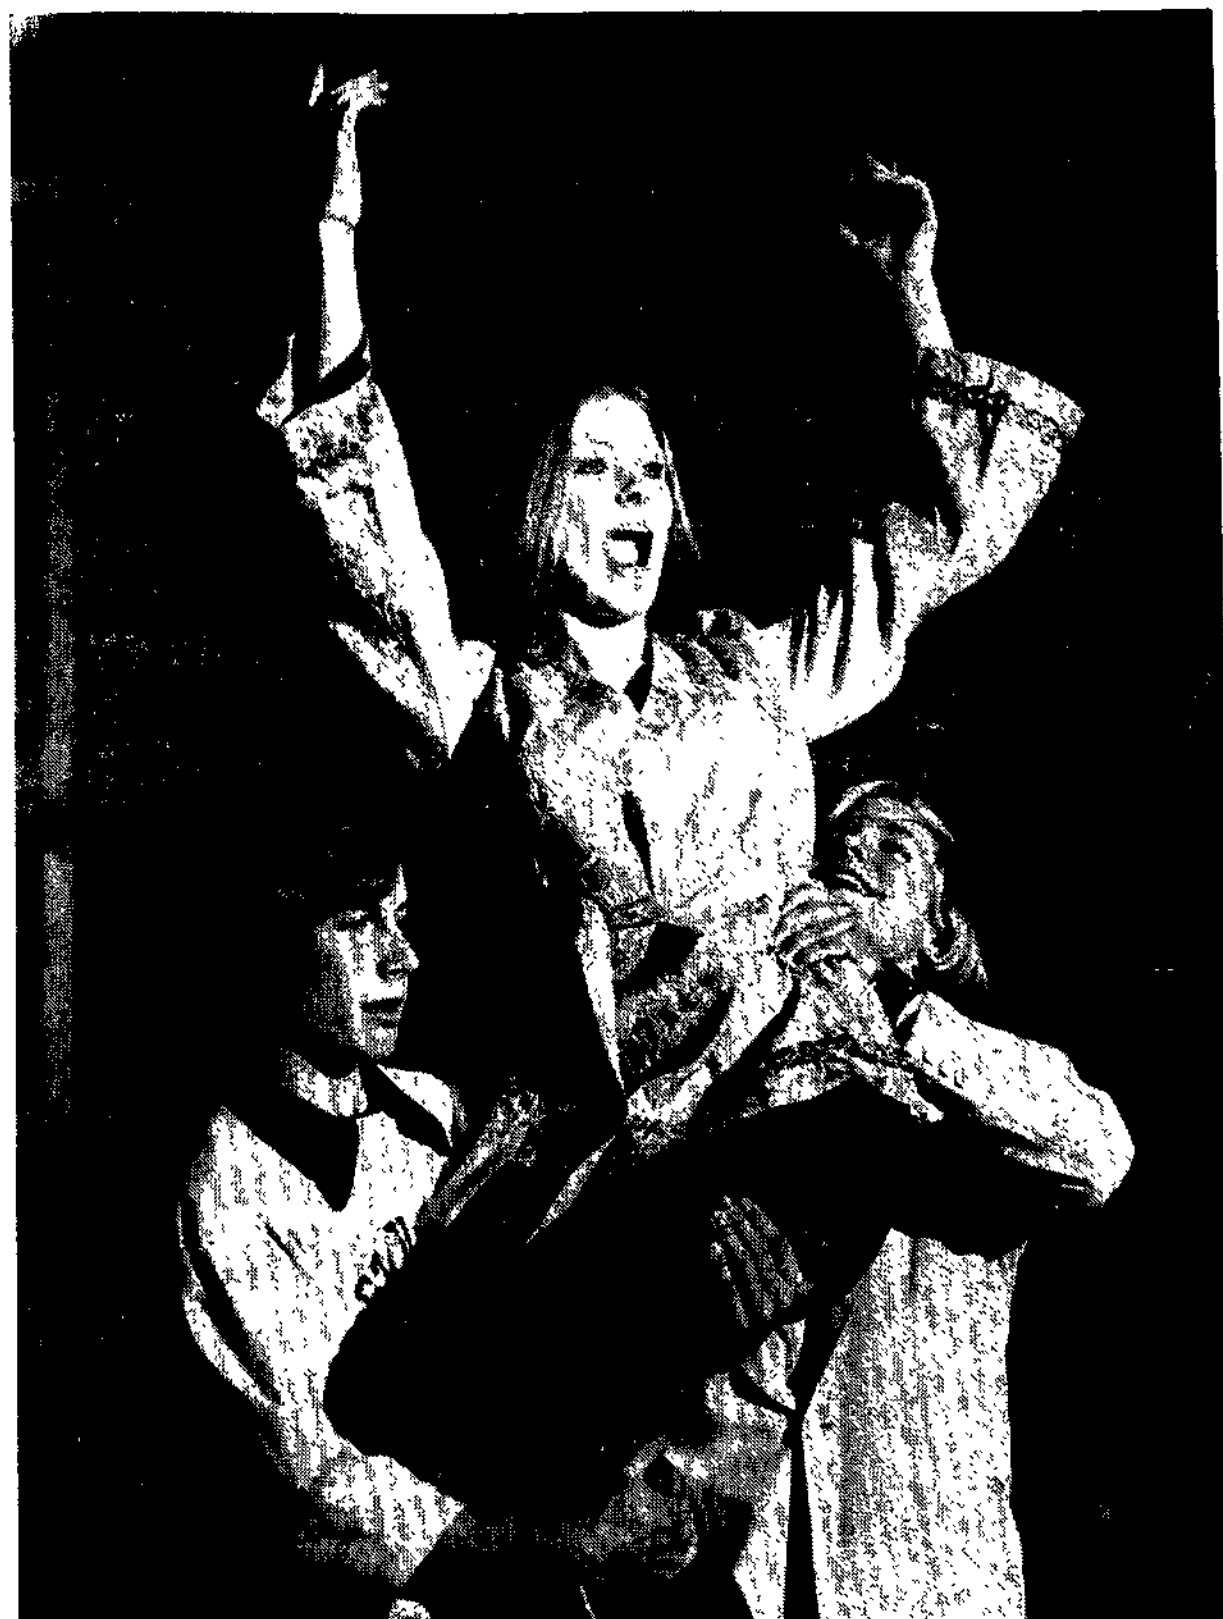

Applications for the Civil Defense director position are still being accepted at village hall, 54 S. Brockway St. The new director must be a resident of Palatine, be interested in the community and have some expertise in organization and management training. The position is a non-paying one which requires a considerable amount of time, according to Guss.

Portnoy to produce, host radio series

Kenneth Portnoy, 1130 Randville, Palatine, has been appointed producer and program host of "This Is Your College," weekly radio series of the City Colleges of Chicago.

Portnoy is chairman of the history department at Mundelein College in Chicago. He is a member of the Renaissance Seminar of Chicago, the Cambridge Historical Society, and Phi Alpha Theta. He has a doctorate degree from the University of Cambridge, Cambridge, England.

The radio program can be heard on Sundays at 8 a.m. on WJJD.

LYNN LONGOSZ IS "MAME" in musical performances to be presented by St. Viator and Sacred Heart high schools on Feb. 1, 2, 8, 9, 15 and 16 at the St. Viator auditorium, 1213 E. Oakton, Arlington Heights. Performances will begin at 8 p.m. A matinee on Feb. 10 will begin at 2:30 p.m. Tickets are $3 each for evening performances and $1.50 each for the matinee. Reservations may be made by calling St. Viator School at 392-4050 or Sacred Heart School at 392-6880 between 8:30 a.m. and 4 p.m. weekdays.

Rollbacks ordered for 3 suburb stations

by JOE FRANZ

Three gasoline stations in the Northwest suburbs are among 17 in the Chicago area that have been ordered by the Internal Revenue Service to refund overcharges to customers by rolling back prices.

The stations are Dan's Ranch Mart Mobil, Dundee and Buffalo Grove roads in Buffalo Grove; Wheeling 400 Car Wash, 400 N. Milwaukee Ave., Wheeling, and Bob's Marathon, Roselle Road and Weathersfield Way, Schaumburg.

"The stations were found to be overcharging and they voluntarily agreed to return to prices that will make up the amount they had overcharged their customers," an IRS spokesman said yesterday. "After the overcharges are made up they can reestablish their prices at the proper level."

ALL 17 OF THE gas stations have been ordered to cut prices by varying amounts to make up the overcharges, which the IRS estimates at $25,000. Most of the gas stations have rolled back prices several cents.

Spokesmen for the Wheeling 400 Car Wash and Bob's Marathon refused comment yesterday on the recent IRS order. However, Dan Rutkowski, owner of the Mobil station in Buffalo Grove said he was ordered to cut prices to make up for $2,500 in overcharges.

"I have been overcharging, but it wasn't intentional," Rutkowski told the Herald yesterday. "I have agreed to lower my prices until I can make up for it."

Rutkowski said the IRS came to his station Jan. 15 investigating a complaint that he had been selling gasoline for $1 a gallon Dec. 29. He said he never sold gas for that price and in fact was not even open Dec. 29.

At that time, however, the IRS discovered Rutkowski did not have certain forms that are required to be filled out for every price increase. The IRS also discovered that he apparently had been overcharging customers varying amounts since last November.

RUTKOWSKI SAID the regulations governing price increases and profit margins are confusing and that he did not think he was charging too much for gasoline. "I've taken surveys of other gas stations in the area and I've always managed to stay lower than most of my competitors," he said.

As for the required forms, Rutkowski said he was not aware he was supposed to have them. "If I'm supposed to do something I should be given written notice by the government," he added.

The IRS has supplied Rutkowski with the needed forms and has given him until Feb. 16 to refund the overcharges.

Prior to the rollback, Rutkowski said he was charging 49.9 cents a gallon for regular and 53.9 cents for premium. The station is now charging 43.2 cents a gallon for regular and 47.4 for premium. After the overcharges are made up the prices will go up to 48.2 cents per gallon for regular and 52.4 for premium.

The IRS spokesman said agents had either received complaints or were making spot checks when they discovered the stations were overcharging. In the last several weeks, the spokesman said the incidents of price gouging among station owners has decreased substantially.

80-acre annexation, nursing home on agenda

City council to conduct 3 public hearings tonight

Three public hearings are scheduled to be conducted tonight before Rolling Meadows aldermen.

The hearings will concern annexation of 80 acres of land west of the city for a townhouse development; rezoning of 3½ acres of property on Kirchhoff Road west of Ill. Rte. 53 for a nursing home; and whether the status of the Zoning Board of Appeals as a final board of action should be changed to an advisory board to the council.

All the matters already have been heard by special city zoning commissions. A commission recommended the council approve the 80-acre development planned for an area near Harper College. The development would house a 1,000-unit townhouse and apartment complex.

THE PLANS for a nursing home on Kirchhoff Road were not approved by another commission after about 50 residents from the Plum Grove Countryside and Winthrop Village subdivisions turned out last week to oppose the plan.

Robert Roskamp, who has proposed the plan on behalf of his Roskamp Enterprises, is seeking to have the land rezoned for use as a sheltered care facility and limited apartment housing area for the elderly.

Residents living near the proposed site have said they do not want the land developed by Roskamp.

THE THIRD proposal has been heard by a commission which recommended the zoning board's status remain a final board of action. The zoning board hears requests for variations of zoning codes and rules upon them accordingly. The board has the final word in such actions and, unlike every other city committee and commission, does not require city council approval on its rulings.

Several aldermen have indicated they would like to see the zoning board changed to an advisory board to the council.

The council tonight is also expected to act on a request from the Recycling, Ecology and Beautification Committee for $1,150 to participate in the Chicago Flower and Garden Show in March. The city has been offered booth space at the show, which is held in McCormick Place.

The meeting is scheduled to begin at 8 p.m. in the city hall.

Young cleanup crew does job

by TONI GINETTI

Cleaning house is woman's work at 3600 Kirchhoff Rd. and 3110 Martin Ln., Rolling Meadows. But if that reeks of male chauvinism, don't bother sending in a women's lib rescue team.

The addresses belong to the Rolling Meadows City Hall and public library where the janitorial chores are handled by Gail Eaker, 19, Nancy Halverson, 19, and Rayanne Hitzeman, 16.

Sweeping, waxing floors, dusting, cleaning bathrooms, washing windows, moving furniture and shoveling snow are all routine in a day's work for the girls.

"Anything that needs cleaning, we clean," says long-haired blue-eyed Gail. "If something has to be moved, we move it. This week we'll be working from 10 p.m. to 10 a.m. stripping and waxing the floors."

GAIL AND NANCY have worked at the city hall for the past year, while Rayanne is a newcomer assigned to the library.

The girls don't regard their jobs as unusual, but there have been awkward moments.

"I was cleaning the men's washroom one night and a man walked in," Gail laughs. "I had my back to him at first, but when I turned around and he saw my earrings and makeup, he looked at me, walked out and looked at the door again and then back at me and just walked out without ever saying a word."

For all three, taking a janitor's job was more a matter of economics than a quest for equal rights.

"I grew up with Steve Eberhard Jr., the alderman's son, and he suggested that I apply," Gail said. The work wasn't new to either Gail or Nancy, who had both spent several summers working as janitors for Davco Inc. in Rolling Meadows.

"MY DAD WAS working as a supervisor there," Gail says. Since no other job opportunities were available, Gail and Nancy were hired there. "Until then they hired only men as janitors," the girls said.

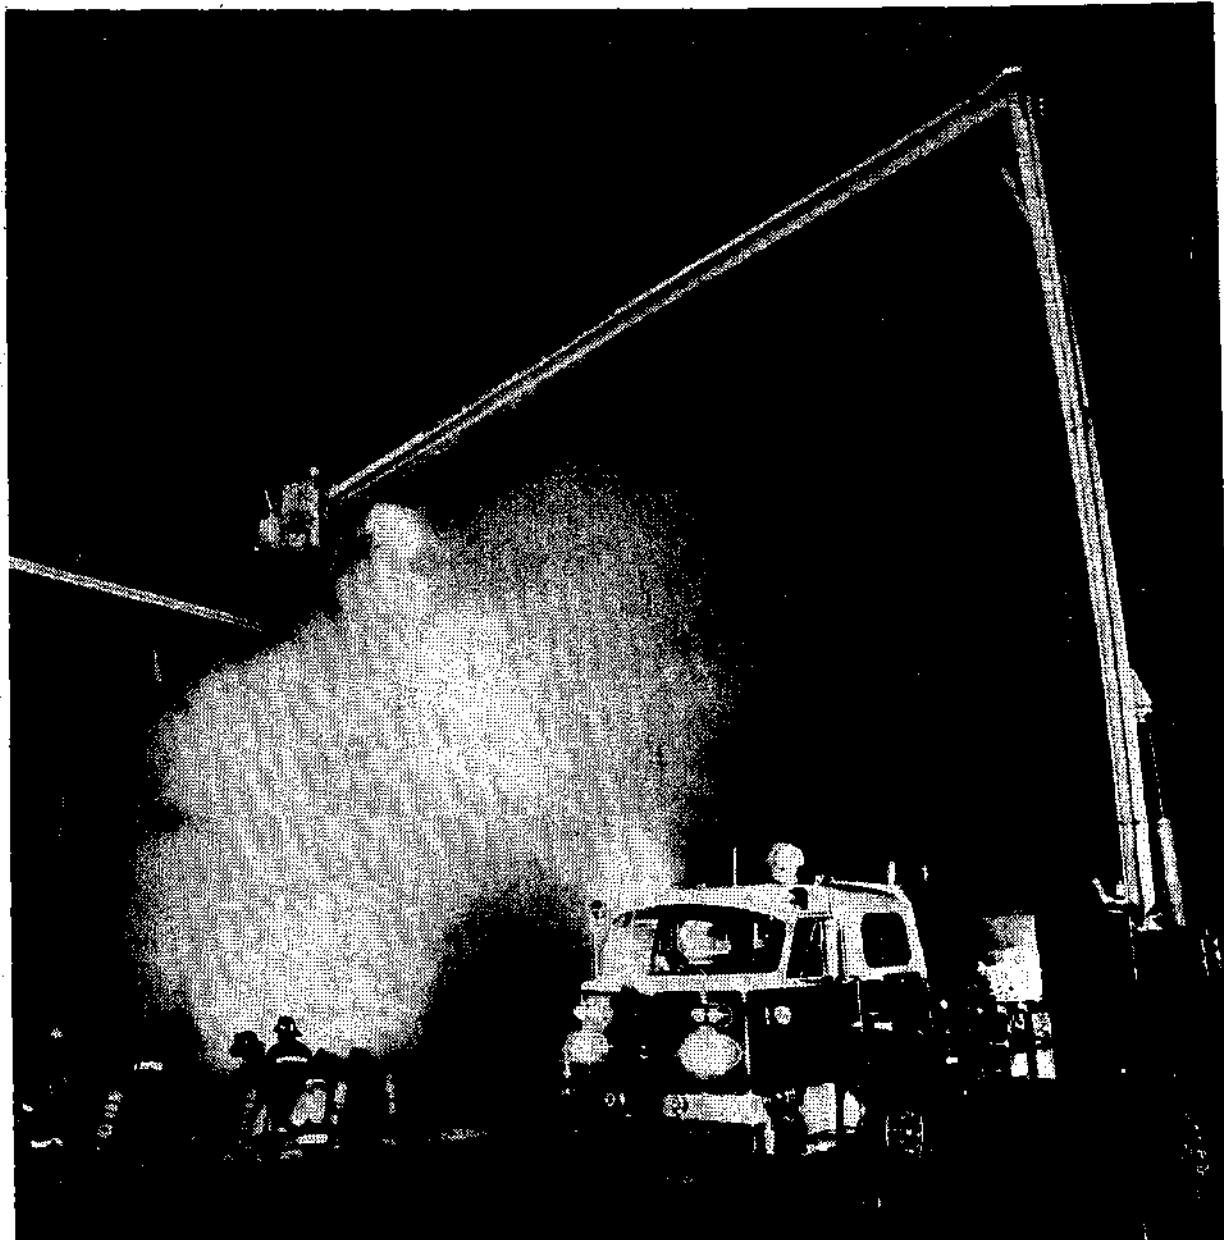

"They broke us in doing floors," Gail recalls. Their job duties soon expanded and the standards expected of the girls got tougher than for the men on the job. "They used to give us the 'white glove' treatment and the guy just got the once-over," she said. But the experience paid off when the city jobs became available and the girls applied.

"I had two older gentlemen working at the time," says Building and Grounds Supervisor Randy Ritter. "One of them passed away. Gail came up here and applied and, seeing that she had the ability and experience, we hired her."

That Gail was a girl didn't prejudice Ritter's decision, he says, but when he recommended her hiring to Supt. of Public Works John Hennessy, Ritter admits "I kept using the word 'applicant.' I told Mr. Hennessy we had a qualified applicant. When he found out she was a girl, all he said was 'as long as she can do the work.'"

Nancy was hired shortly after Gail when another opening became available. RAYANNE, WHO WAS hired several weeks ago, took the job at the recom-

Area hospitals snub abortions

by KURT BAER

A year after the U.S. Supreme Court's decision legalizing abortion, the doors of Northwest area hospitals remain closed to women seeking their Constitutional right.

The board of directors of Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights has made no move to reconsider its policy permitting abortions only in cases where the mother's life or health are threatened, said Hospital Pres. Malcolm MacCoun yesterday.

Lutheran General Hospital in Park Ridge reportedly is still studying the issue.

And area Catholic hospitals, Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village and Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines, of course, remain opposed to abortion on demand.

THE LACK OF abortion facilities in the suburbs is still a matter of concern to State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights.

"We have now a U.S. Supreme Court decision which makes it clear that laws cannot interfere with a woman's right to privacy when hospitals are funded by the public as Northwest Community Hospital was," Mrs. Chapman said yesterday.

"Hospitals that do not permit a woman and her doctor to make a medical decision of this nature are not being responsive to the public they serve," she said.

Every public opinion poll by 3rd District legislators has shown that 75 to 80 per cent of the people in the district think that abortion should be a matter of individual decision between a woman and her doctor, Mrs. Chapman said.

Ultimately the legality of a hospital refusing to perform abortions for other than religious reasons will be decided by the Supreme Court, she said. There are cases in the courts right now to test the hospital policies.

"I WOULD NOT expect a hospital with religious affiliation, or a doctor with personal or religious beliefs that are opposed to abortion to participate," she said.

Some doctors at Northwest Community Hospital voted in favor of performing abortions there last April. However, the hospital's board of directors in June agreed not to alter their previous policy.

MacCoun said yesterday there probably have been fewer abortion inquiries at Northwest Community since the Supreme Court decision was announced a year ago than before the highly-publicized ruling.

A special study committee at Lutheran General Hospital has submitted its secret report to the hospital's president, a spokesman there said.

The recommendations will be submitted to the hospital's board for consideration soon, the spokesman said.

Township officials are expected to make a decision whether or not to revoke the funding at tonight's meeting. The controversy centers on clinic supporters who say the work of the clinic is crucial to total teen-age health care, and clinic opponents who dislike the clinic's policy of distributing contraceptives to teen-agers without parental consent.

Funding for the clinic was approved Oct. 8 without opposition, although critics had objected to the possible funding at a series of earlier meetings. A serious campaign to get the funding revoked began last month.

Tonight's discussion was postponed from last Monday's regular township meeting, when an overflow crowd jammed into the township hall basement and parking lot to hear and participate in the Crossroads issue.

Petitions with more than 3,000 signatures are expected to be submitted at tonight's meeting signed by persons objecting to the township funding of the clinic.

Officials in Schaumburg, Elk Grove and Barrington townships also have granted federal revenue-sharing money to the Crossroads clinic, without serious controversy. Wheeling Township officials are considering a similar request for clinic funding.

The Rev. William H. Herman of the Community Church in Rolling Meadows will give the sermon.

The Ecumenical Prayer Service is part of the Week of Prayer for Christian Unity held annually by American Protestants, Orthodox and Roman Catholic. It first started in 1966.

3 suburban gas stations ordered: roll back prices

by JOE FRANZ

Three gasoline stations in the Northwest suburbs are among 17 in the Chicago area that have been ordered by the Internal Revenue Service to refund overcharges to customers by rolling back prices.

The stations are Dan's Ranch Mart Mobil, Dundee and Buffalo Grove roads in Buffalo Grove; Wheeling 400 Car Wash, 400 N. Milwaukee Ave., Wheeling, and Bob's Marathon, Roselle Road and Weathersfield Way, Schaumburg.

"The stations were found to be overcharging and they voluntarily agreed to return to prices that will make up the amount they had overcharged their customers," an IRS spokesman said yesterday. "After the overcharges are made up they can reestablish their prices at the proper level."

ALL 17 OF THE gas stations have been ordered to cut prices by varying amounts to make up the overcharges, which the IRS estimates at $25,000. Most of the gas stations have rolled back prices several cents.

Spokesmen for the Wheeling 400 Car Wash and Bob's Marathon refused comment yesterday on the recent IRS order. However, Dan Rutkowski, owner of the Mobil station in Buffalo Grove said he was ordered to cut prices to make up for $2,500 in overcharges.

"I have been overcharging, but it wasn't intentional," Rutkowski told the Herald yesterday. "I have agreed to lower my prices until I can make up for it."

Rutkowski said the IRS came to his station Jan. 15 investigating a complaint that he had been selling gasoline for $1 a gallon Dec. 29. He said he never sold gas for that price and in fact was not even open Dec. 29.

At that time, however, the IRS discovered Rutkowski did not have certain forms that are required to be filled out for every price increase. The IRS also discovered that he apparently had been overcharging customers varying amounts since last November.

RUTKOWSKI SAID the regulations governing price increases and profit margins are confusing and that he did not think he was charging too much for gasoline. "I've taken surveys of other gas stations in the area and I've always managed to stay lower than most of my competitors," he said.

As for the required forms, Rutkowski said he was not aware he was supposed to have them. "If I'm supposed to do

Murder suspect to get another sanity hearing

Another sanity hearing has been granted at the request of the defense for murder suspect Israel Pequeno, 19, of Palatine.

Pequeno, charged with the March 26 shooting death of Sharon Soyka, 17, of Rolling Meadows, will appear at the hearing at a yet to be determined date.

The hearing will be the third ordered for the youth as his defense attorneys apparently attempt to establish a sanity defense, police said. Assistant state's attorneys prosecuting the case say the new hearing will put off again for an indefinite period the start of a trial in the almost year-old case.

mendment of a friend, Nancy Herzog, who held the position recently.

"She kept teasing me and saying 'why don't you take my job,'" said Rayanne, a student at Rolling Meadows High School. "I didn't take it for the money. I needed a job and I couldn't see getting a job in a department store or as a secretary."

Both Gail and Nancy echo Rayanne's thoughts about the job. "I like working by myself," Nancy says. "This is a better paying job. (The girls get $6,873 yearly.) I can make more picking up a secretary's mess than she gets making it."

"I tried the route that most girls do and I didn't like it," says Gail. "Just pushing buttons at a cash register all day isn't my idea of a job. With this, you know what has to be done."

THE GIRLS SAY THEY don't have strong feelings about the woman's rights movement, but they do share the philosophy that, as Nancy puts it, "if you can do the work, you should be able to have the job." The city still employs some men as janitors, but according to Ritter, the girls are in some respects better than the older men who usually become custodians. "The reason I stick with the girls is they're younger and a little healthier," he says.

The three haven't had any problems getting along with their fellow male co-workers. "The guys all treat us well," they agree. "It's not that they think we're one of the guys. They watch what they say around us, but we get along."

"Randy's been fair with us," adds Nancy. "We get yelled at like the guys do when we deserve it, but so far we've never run off crying."

Chamber director candy sales head

Rolling Meadows Chamber of Commerce director Harry O'Brien has been named candy sale chairman for the 1974 fund-raising effort by the Camp Fire Girls of Metropolitan Chicago.

O'Brien has been active in the organization and will be the first male chairman of the candy sale.

The candy sale will run throughout the Chicago area from March 1 to March 15. Boxes of mint and toffee candy are sold for $1 per box. The organization's goal this year is $260,000 in sales.

Money raised from the annual drive is used to fund 35 per cent of the organization's budget as well as support the Camp Fire Girls camp in Wisconsin.

O'Brien, named director of the Rolling Meadows chamber in June, is a former

3 suburban gas stations ordered to roll back prices

by JOE FRANZ

Three gasoline stations in the Northwest suburbs are among 17 in the Chicago area that have been ordered by the Internal Revenue Service to refund overcharges to customers by rolling back prices.

The stations are Dan's Ranch Mart Mobil, Dundee and Buffalo Grove roads in Buffalo Grove; Wheeling 400 Car Wash, 400 N. Milwaukee Ave., Wheeling, and Bob's Marathon, Roselle Road and Weathersfield Way, Schaumburg.

"The stations were found to be overcharging and they voluntarily agreed to return to prices that will make up the amount they had overcharged their customers," an IRS spokesman said yesterday. "After the overcharges are made up they can reestablish their prices at the proper level."

ALL 17 OF THE gas stations have been ordered to cut prices by varying amounts to make up the overcharges, which the IRS estimates at $25,000. Most of the gas stations have rolled back prices several cents.

Spokesmen for the Wheeling 400 Car Wash and Bob's Marathon refused comment yesterday on the recent IRS order. However, Dan Rutkowski, owner of the Mobil station in Buffalo Grove said he was ordered to cut prices to make up for $2,500 in overcharges.

"I have been overcharging, but it wasn't intentional," Rutkowski told the Herald yesterday. "I have agreed to lower my prices until I can make up for it."

Rutkowski said the IRS came to his station Jan. 15 investigating a complaint that he had been selling gasoline for $1 a gallon Dec. 20. He said he never sold gas for that price and in fact was not even open Dec. 20.

At that time, however, the IRS discovered Rutkowski did not have certain forms that are required to be filled out for every price increase. The IRS also discovered that he apparently had been overcharging customers varying amounts since last November.

RUTKOWSKI SAID the regulations governing price increases and profit margins are confusing and that he did not think he was charging too much for gasoline. "I've taken surveys of other gas stations in the area and I've always managed to stay lower than most of my competitors," he said.

As for the required forms, Rutkowski said he was not aware he was supposed to have them. "If I'm supposed to do something I should be given written notice by the government," he added.

The IRS has supplied Rutkowski with the needed forms and has given him until Feb. 15 to refund the overcharges.

Prior to the rollback, Rutkowski said he was charging 49.9 cents a gallon for regular and 53.9 cents for premium. The station is now charging 43.2 cents a gallon for regular and 47.4 for premium. After the overcharges are made up the prices will go up to 48.2 cents per gallon for regular and 52.4 for premium.

The IRS spokesman said agents had either received complaints or were making spot checks when they discovered the stations were overcharging. In the last several weeks, the spokesman said the incidents of price gouging among station owners has decreased substantially.

Alexian I-90 interchange said to be 2 years away

by BOB GALLAS

The Interstate 90 interchange that Alexian Brothers Medical Center wants so badly is more than two years away, according to a spokesman for the Illinois Department of Transportation.

Alexian Brothers is leading the drive for the interchange, which would be located at Biesterfeld Road in Elk Grove Village, because it would provide faster, more direct access to the hospital.

The spokesman for the state said the reason for the delay was due to the many steps which must be taken before federal approval for the project can be obtained.

ONE OF THE stumbling blocks to the intersection is a commitment needed from Cook County to upgrade Biesterfeld Road and extend it from Rohlwing Road to Roselle Road. Such action would give the interchange "an extremely better chance to get federal approval," according to the spokesman.

It's not known at this time what the county's reaction to the state proposal will be.

According to a letter from Illinois Department of Transportation Sec. Langhorne Bond, to State Sen. David Regner, R-Mount Prospect, if such a commitment is secured from the county, public hearings would then be held in Elk Grove Village to obtain the views on location of the interchange from residents along Biesterfeld Road.

The next step would be to request an additional access point along I-90 from the Federal Highway Administration in Washington, according to Bond.

IF APPROVED, the state would begin interchange location studies. Also necessary would be approval from the secretary of the U.S. Department of Transportation, since some forest preserve land would be required if the interchange were to be constructed at Biesterfeld Road.

According to the state spokesman, the two key issues which could decide the fate of the interchange are the upgrading and extension of Biesterfeld Road and the approval to use forest preserve land. The failure to secure either one would probably mean that hopes for the interchange would be extremely dim, according to the spokesman.

"We figured it would be at least a two year process," said Steve Skorcz, vice president of planning at Alexian Brothers. Skorcz said he was encouraged, however, by the state department of transportation's interest in the matter.

The hospital plans to step up its drive for the interchange, which is estimated to cut about five minutes traveling time for those approaching the hospital from the northwest along I-90.

Skorcz said the drive to attract attention to the need for an interchange would be conducted at shopping centers, such as Woodfield Mall. Skorcz added the hospital is trying to arrange a meeting with Gov. Daniel Walker in March to discuss the matter.

Village rejects Starck petition, OKs prosecutor

by DOUG RAY

The Hoffman Estates Village Board last night voted to deny rezoning of residential property on Apple Street for a Starck Realty Office and approved filling a village prosecutor position vacant since August.

The board concurred with its plan commission in denying the Starck rezoning, apparently because protective covenants restrict use of the land for residential purposes only. Plan commission Chairman Richard Regan indicated he feels Robert Starck, owner of the realty firm, may file a lawsuit contesting the board's ruling, but this is the second time the board has denied the request. Starck said he purchased the lot at 101 Apple St. in "1968 or 1969" and has leased it since then.

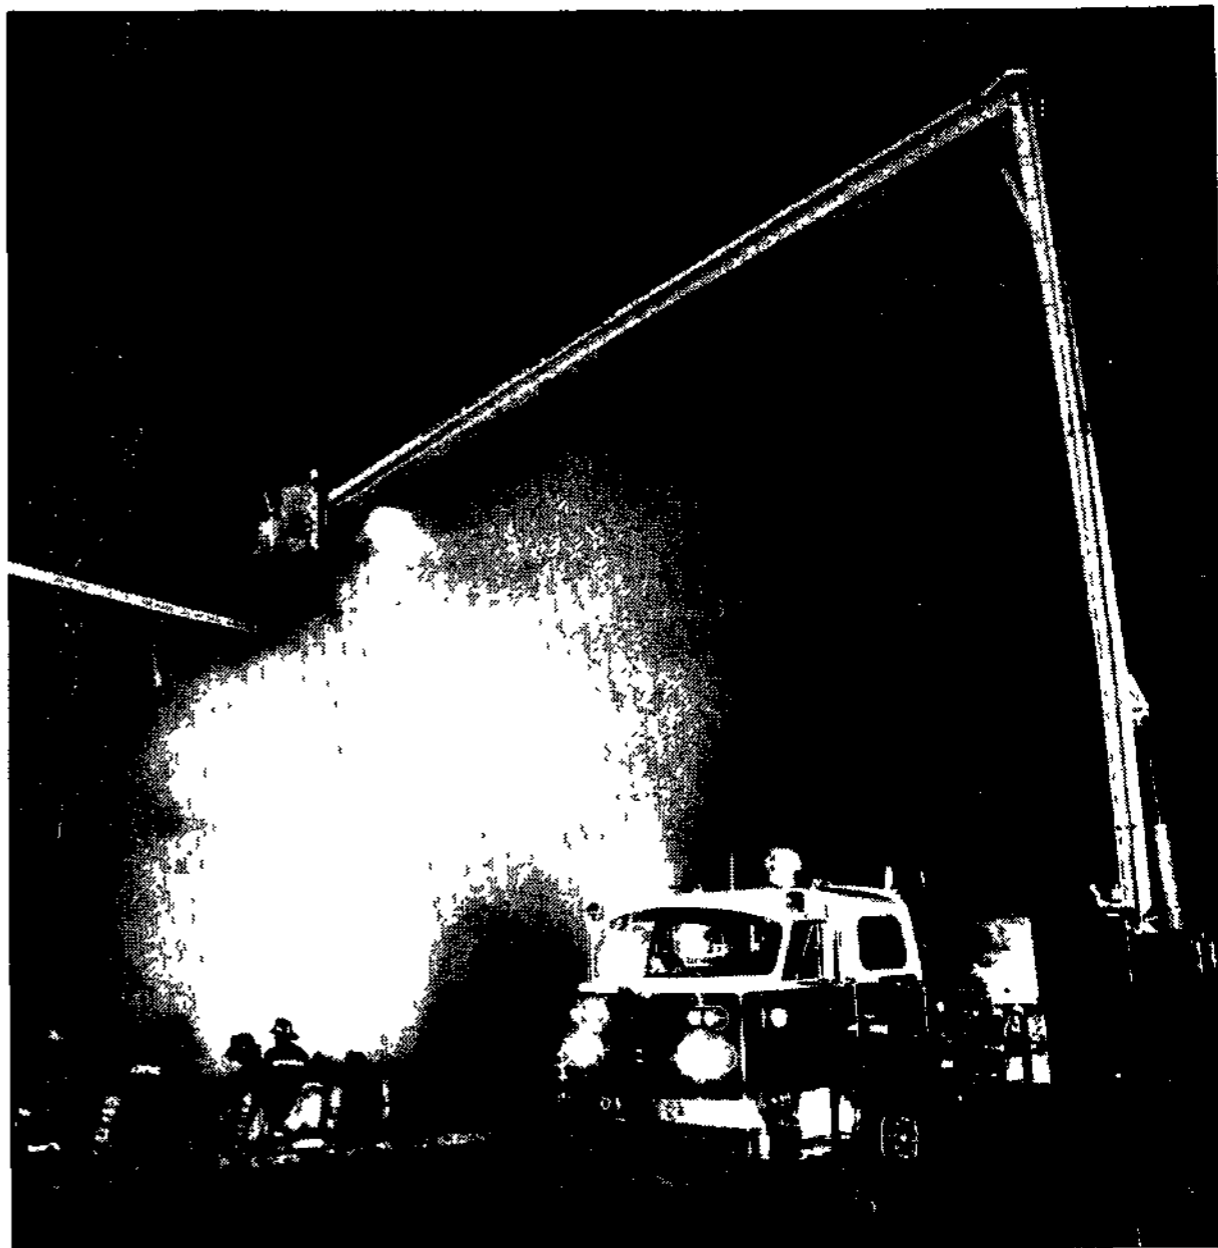

STARCK'S PROPOSAL met strong objections from an estimated 350 residents of the area who claimed commercial zoning on that lot could encourage strip commercial zoning along Golf Road. The lot has 200 feet of Golf Road frontage.

Starck was joined in his petition by Gerrit Vanderzell, owner of the adjoining lot, 107 Apple St., who did not yet have an intended use for his property.

The new prosecutor, James A. Calabrese, moved to 1967 W. Hancock Dr., Hoffman Estates, last August. He is associated with Pratt and Wertz, an Arlington Heights law firm handling general legal responsibilities.

The 26-year-old lawyer has not served previously as a village prosecutor, but does now work on traffic and misdemeanor cases. He was graduated in January, 1972, from DePaul University College of Law. He has been with Pratt and Wertz since 1971, having started as a law clerk.

Calabrese will join Richard Williams who was appointed prosecutor last September. The two prosecutor positions became vacant when the board fired Charles Zimmerman and William Stukas for failure to attend court. The board later rescinded the firings to permit the men to resign.

Fire Chief suspects arson

by DOUG RAY

Fire swept through an apartment building at the Dryden Apartments in Arlington Heights last night totally destroying several of the units on the first floor and leaving 24 families homeless. Arson is suspected.

The fire apparently began in the basement storage area of the 3-story apartment building across from the Arlington Market Shopping Center. Firemen with masks and oxygen units on their backs went into the basement but were forced out when the floor of a first floor apartment collapsed, according to one of the firemen who fought the blaze. The fire began at about 7:30 p.m. and firemen from a half dozen communities were attempting to contain it two hours later.

Fire Chief John Hayden said "definitely we suspect arson." He confirmed the fire began in the basement and ran up the walls "just like the last time." He estimated the damage to the building itself at $25,000.

Last May, fire hit another apartment building in the complex. All families in that fire were relocated and fire officials estimated the damage at $100,000. Fire officials suspected arson in that fire.

Last night's blaze struck while most of the families were having dinner, and although all persons were removed, the flames spread rapidly. After about an hour of fighting the fire, fire officials were forced back by a small explosion.

Firemen said a "three-box alarm" was called and dozens of firemen responded, including those from Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Palatine, Prospect Heights, and Rolling Meadows.

Red Cross officials at the scene said two elderly persons were taken from the burning building, one who fell trying to leave the darkened building.

FIREMEN USED chain saws to break through the roof as flames shot out of the first floor apartments.

The apartment residents were warned of the fire and evacuated their homes when a person began running down the hallways knocking on the doors.

"We couldn't do anything except get ourselves out," said Mrs. Bill Doty, one of the first floor residents.

Residents said firemen responded to several calls at the complex over the weekend. They said two mailboxes were set afire and a wicker basket on a child's bicycle in the hallway. A fire in a trash container outside was reported on Sunday.

Smoke damage was extensive in the blaze.

Palatine Township board to weigh Crossroads funding

Crossroads Clinic, a Palatine-based venereal disease test and birth control clinic for teen-agers, will be the sole subject of tonight's Palatine Township board meeting at Sanborn School, 101 N. Oak St., Palatine.

The meeting, which begins at 8 p.m., is to review Palatine Township officials' decision to grant $5,000 in federal revenue-sharing funds to the clinic. The money may be used to buy medical equipment and supplies, but none of the $5,000 has yet been released pending the conclusion of the funding controversy.

Township officials are expected to make a decision whether or not to revoke the funding at tonight's meeting. The controversy centers on clinic supporters who say the work of the clinic is crucial to total teen-age health care, and clinic opponents who dislike the clinic's policy of distributing contraceptives to teen-agers without parental consent.

Funding for the clinic was approved Oct. 8 without opposition, although critics had objected to the possible funding at a series of earlier meetings. A serious campaign to get the funding revoked began last month.

Tonight's discussion was postponed from last Monday's regular township meeting, when an overflow crowd jammed into the township hall basement and parking lot to hear and participate in the Crossroads issue.

Petitions with more than 3,000 signatures are expected to be submitted at tonight's meeting signed by persons objecting to the township funding of the clinic.

Officials in Schaumburg, Elk Grove and Barrington townships also have granted federal revenue-sharing money to the Crossroads clinic, without serious controversy. Wheeling Township officials are considering a similar request for clinic funding.

Girl's inquest delayed; driver fails to appear

A Cook County Coroner's inquest into the recent death of Robyn Bradshaw, 5, Hanover Park, was postponed yesterday until 2 p.m. Feb. 11 in the Cook County Morgue, 1828 W. Polk St., Chicago.

Sidney Berman, a deputy coroner, said the inquest was continued because Mildred Daniels of Roselle, the driver of the bus that struck the Bradshaw girl, did not appear at the hearing.

Charge Arlington man with theft, battery

A 57-year-old Arlington Heights man was charged with theft and battery Sunday after he allegedly struck a camera store manager who tried to stop the man in Woodfield Shopping Center.

Charged was Leo C. Zarnecki, 1002 E. Oakton. Police said the man went behind the counter at the Woodfield Camera store and reportedly took three boxes of camera lenses. He walked out the door and the manager, attempting to stop him, was struck in the face, police reported.

Woodfield security agents retained the man. Zarnecki was released after posting 10 per cent of a $5,000 bond and is scheduled to appear Jan. 30 in Schaumburg branch of Cook County Circuit Court.

Reintroduction of a native prairie, tree plantings, building restoration and trail work are among projects planned for the area.

Residents interested in promoting the development of Spring Valley are invited to attend the meeting at 8 p.m. at Meike Community Center, 220 E. Weathersfield Way.

School bids approved

Bids for equipment for schools in Schaumburg Township School Dist. 54 were approved last week by the board of education.

The board members approved a bid of $24,054 by Slater Co., Chicago, for purchase and installation of about 3,800 square yards of carpeting at Albert Einstein School, Hanover Park.

The board also accepted bids of $20,296 from Larson Equipment & Furniture Co., Elk Grove Village, $7,738 from Modern Doors, Oak Brook, and $9,685 from United Builders, Hinsdale, for installation of various operable walls and partitions at Einstein, Hanover Highlands and John Muir schools.

For intercommunication systems at Helen Keller, Robert Frost and Jane Adams junior high schools, the board accepted a bid of $8,965 from Rich Engineering, Franklin Park.

Silver Beaver winner

George Bond, 144 Dennison Rd., Hoffman Estates, has been awarded the Silver Beaver Award from the Northwest Suburban Council of the Boy Scouts of America.

The Silver Beaver Award is the council's highest honor for an adult male volunteer. Candidates for the award must have at least 10 years of service and participated in the council's financial campaign.

Conant play opens Feb. 2

A dramatic presentation for young people, "Due to a Lack of Interest Tomorrow Has Been Canceled," will be presented Feb. 2 by Conant High School students.

Performances have been scheduled for 1 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. at Conant High School, Cougar Trail, Hoffman Estates. Admission is 50 cents for children under 10 and $1 for others.

for residents or businesses now in the district but outside village limits. These areas will receive service although the agency and procedure still remain uncertain, said the mayor.

The question took on more than hypothetical significance when the Jan. 6 death of Mrs. Gary (Jean) Pettee, 36, of 277 Martha St., unincorporated Elk Grove Township. Mrs. Pettee's husband called the Elk Grove Village Fire Department, although he had contracted for fire and ambulance service with the Roselle Fire Protection District.

AN ELK GROVE ambulance was dispatched, but was recalled before it reached the Pettee home when it was learned the Pettee's had contracted with Roselle, and a Roselle ambulance then was dispatched to the home.

The Elk Grove tragedy will not repeat itself in Hoffman Estates, even after the municipal department is formed and the fire district is dissolved, said Mayor Hayter. "Elk Grove was a learning experience. I'm sure that what happened there will probably never happen again," she said.

Actually, in Hoffman Estates, few homes are potentially involved. An unincorporated section at Schaumburg and Barrington roads is in the fire district, but it contains only a few farm homes. Hoffman Estates FPD Chief Carl Selke said the district has responded to three or four brush fire calls in that area in recent years, but recalled no serious alarms.

Another unincorporated section of the fire district is near the Northwest Tollway exit ramp to Barrington Road. It includes no homes, but two businesses with relatively large numbers of employees or visitors are within its borders, said the chief. The Barrington Tennis Club has a significant number of patrons and the Rose Packing Co., with general offices there, has enough employees to have its own dining facilities, he said.

IT HAS NOT yet been decided what will happen to those sections when the village assumes responsibility for fire and ambulance service. If the property remains outside of village limits, would it be served by the village department, or by another fire protection district? If it receives village service, how will the land owners pay for the service? These questions are being studied now.

"I assume when we go into court (to effect the change from fire district to fire department) we will have to assume the responsibilities of the fire district as it was before, or make some kind of agreement," said Mayor Hayter.

Elected officials of the fire district did not comment on the question, but they did sign a mutual agreement between the district and village last fall. The agreement supports formation of a single fire department to serve the village, which now is covered by four fire protection districts. It addresses itself to the unincorporated areas, suggesting they "must continue to receive the equal level of protection that they are currently receiving."

Village Atty Edward Hofert is conducting a preliminary study of legal aspects of the changeover. Hofert said he does not yet know if there are any unincorporated sections of the fire district because he does not have overlapping maps of the two governmental units and their boundaries. He is "making very general maps to see" if such areas exist, he said.

HOFERT PREDICTED that the courts, which must approve formation of the village department and dissolution of the district, "will be much more cautious" about permitting unincorporated land to remain outside a fire service agency.

Hofert plans to meet "about Jan. 24" with the joint district-village committee that approved the agreement last fall to discuss the preliminary report. It will deal only with general legal and boundary questions, he said. He declined to estimate when the final report answering the question of the future of the unincorporated land will be ready.

Transit study first step toward busline

Schaumburg Jaycees will be asked to survey residents' mass transportation needs as the first step toward establishing a village bus line.

Mass transportation committee members met this week to map strategy for a busing feasibility study.

The investigation, assigned to the committee recently by Mayor Robert O. Atcher, will determine the necessity of village purchase of four mini-buses for runs to commuter stations and shopping centers.

Fred Deitrich, committee chairman, said the survey will be scientifically planned to determine residents' public transportation needs, attitudes and potential usership.

AT THE SAME time, committee members will research both bus purchase prices, maintenance, engineering and driver pay scales, Deitrich said.

The committee will also contact Elk Grove Village, Downers Grove, Arlington Heights and other nearby communities operating bus lines.

The idea, Atcher said, stemmed from recent news that the Schaumburg Transportation Co. commuter service to the Milwaukee Road Ry. station in Roselle has increased nearly 60 per cent since November, making it possible for the company to show a profit for the first time in its 20-year history.

BUT WALTER FIENE, owner of the bus company, does not want to expand operations until it has been determined that the fuel crisis is bona fide, Atcher said.

"What we can do, I believe, is supplement what STC is now doing as the first step in our transportation plan," Atcher said.

Schaumburg is "a municipality different from anything else in the nation" and is developing as "something other than a bedroom to the City of Chicago," he added.

Atcher said less than 4 per cent of the work force goes to Chicago, noting that the community is still only "partially built."

Revenue from sewer and water tap-outs and building permit fees increased $53,000 in 1973, he said.

"This is the reason for us to look at mass transportation for reasons other than moving people to and fro," Atcher said.

He contended Schaumburg can become "an even more desirable place to live" if developers and local business people can advertise the community as having public transportation.

THE MAYOR indicated the proposed Regional Transit Authority may be an eventual answer. He said he is not totally satisfied with the RTA proposal though he considers it better than none.

"I intend to stay neutral on this," he said, but commended suburban legislators for "preaching fine gospel to get RTA amendments through."

The transportation committee will meet at 8 p.m. Feb. 6 in the Great Hall, 231 S. Civic Dr., unless a special meeting is required before then, Deitrich said.

NW suburban hospitals still closed to abortions

by KURT BAER

A year after the U.S. Supreme Court's decision legalizing abortion, the doors of Northwest area hospitals remain closed to women seeking their Constitutional right.

The board of directors of Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights has made no move to reconsider its policy permitting abortions only in cases where the mother's life or health are threatened, said Hospital Pres. Malcolm MacCoun yesterday.

Lutheran General Hospital in Park Ridge reportedly is still studying the issue.

And area Catholic hospitals, Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village and Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines, of course, remain opposed to abortion on demand.

THE LACK OF abortion facilities in the suburbs is still a matter of concern to State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights.

"We have now a U.S. Supreme Court decision which makes it clear that laws cannot interfere with a woman's right to privacy when hospitals are funded by the public as Northwest Community Hospital was," Mrs. Chapman said yesterday.

"Hospitals that do not permit a woman and her doctor to make a medical decision of this nature are not being responsive to the public they serve," she said.

Every public opinion poll by 3rd District legislators has shown that 75 to 80 per cent of the people in the district think that abortion should be a matter of individual decision between a woman and her doctor, Mrs. Chapman said.

Ultimately the legality of a hospital refusing to perform abortions for other than religious reasons will be decided by the Supreme Court, she said. There are cases in the courts right now to test the hospital policies.

"I WOULD NOT expect a hospital with religious affiliation, or a doctor with personal or religious beliefs that are opposed to abortion to participate," she said.

Some doctors at Northwest Community Hospital voted in favor of performing abortions there last April. However, the hospital's board of directors in June agreed not to alter their previous policy.

MacCoun said yesterday there probably have been fewer abortion inquiries at Northwest Community since the Supreme Court decision was announced a year ago than before the highly-publicized ruling.

A special study committee at Lutheran General Hospital has submitted its secret report to the hospital's president, a spokesman there said.

The recommendations will be submitted to the hospital's board for consideration soon, the spokesman said.

Prospect Cab Co. cites rising costs

Request for boost in cab fares favorably received

Mount Prospect taxicab riders can expect to pay an extra 35 cents for a typical 2½-mile ride beginning around March 1.

A request by Prospect Cab Co. for a boost in taxi fares was received favorably last night by the village board's finance committee.

The three-member committee did not vote on the request, but appeared sympathetic to rising costs cited by Robert Birks, cab company president.

"I don't like to raise rates," Birks said. "But I can't just sit back... Gasoline is now 40.7 cents a gallon. When is it going to stop?"

Birks is seeking an increase in the flat rate from 45 to 55 cents, and an increase in the distance rate from 60 to 70 cents a mile.

IF GRANTED THE rate hike, Prospect Cab Co. would charge $2.30 for what Birks described as an average trip — 2½ miles. The present rate is $1.95.

Any increase in cab fares would not affect the flat 30 cents a ride program for senior citizens.

Trustee Kenneth V. Scholten, chairman of the finance committee, said after the meeting he concurs with Birks' request for higher rates.

Even with the increase, Mount Prospect cab fares "would still be lower than surrounding communities," Scholten said. "I feel it's reasonable. The residents are still getting a bargain."

BIRKS LISTED THREE reasons for seeking the additional revenue: An increase in the cost of gasoline from 27.2 cents a gallon to 40.7 in the past four months; the need to provide drivers, who work on a 40 per cent commission, a cost of living pay raise; and increases in the cost of auto parts and labor amounting to more than 30 per cent since the last rate hike was granted in 1970.

"To me," Birks said, "the gasoline in itself is what's hurting. Our whole business is gasoline." He said his 18 vehicles burn up 3,500 to 4,000 gallons of gas a week, and get 13 to 14 miles to the gallon.

The finance committee, which includes Trustees Patrick J. Link and E. F. Richardson in addition to Scholten, asked Birks to provide a profit and loss statement for them to review before making a recommendation on the rate hike request to the full village board.

The new rates would go into effect about two weeks after village board approval, Birks indicated, to allow time to adjust the meters — which itself costs $1,000.

School evaluators find only minor problems here

by BOB GALLAS

A preliminary report, filed by state evaluators on School Dist. 59, turned up only minor deficiencies in the district's operation.

Representatives from the Office of the State Superintendent of Public Instruction spent four days last week visiting the 21 schools in the district, which covers parts of Elk Grove Village, Des Plaines, Mount Prospect and Arlington Heights.

The evaluators interviewed principals, teachers and administrators along with sitting in on classes and checking some district business records. Their findings will be compiled into a report to the State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

DIST 59 SUPT. James Erviti said he plans to act on some of the "concerns" listed by evaluators right away.

Erviti said he was confident most of the problem areas over which the evaluators expressed concern could be corrected immediately since the problems mainly concerned documentation of certain programs in the district, not the programs as a whole.

Some of the "areas of concern" of the evaluators included:

- The district's health program was modernized and comprehensive. Erviti said follow-up written documentation of the program, which will be done by the district, would probably show the program to be satisfactory.

- Titles given to district employees match their certification. For example, Learning Center Directors should actually be called learning center teachers, according to Erviti, since they are certified teachers, but not accredited learning center directors.

- The career education program be more clearly identified. The district presently has such a program, according to Erviti, but it is part of the social studies curriculum, which is presently being reevaluated.

- The sequence and coordination of art programs and level of help to teachers. The district currently operates an art program under Forman Onderdanek. The organization and sequence of the program hasn't really been documented in written form, however, according to Erviti.

- Coordination of consumer education program. Such a program is taught in the district, according to Erviti, but it is part of several different programs and ought to be organized better, he said.

The preliminary report praised the overall general management of the district along with teachers and principals in general, saying the staff was "dedicated with a sincere desire to perform with professionalism."

Also complemented was the Dist. 59 School Board, which was termed "sophisticated and concerned" by the preliminary report.

EQUIPMENT and supplies are abundant in the district, according to the evaluators, who also praised the district's financial planning.

The report, issued orally following the evaluator's visit, was only preliminary, according to Erviti. A more detailed report will be compiled by the evaluators at a later date.

Maryville soil tests topic of school panel

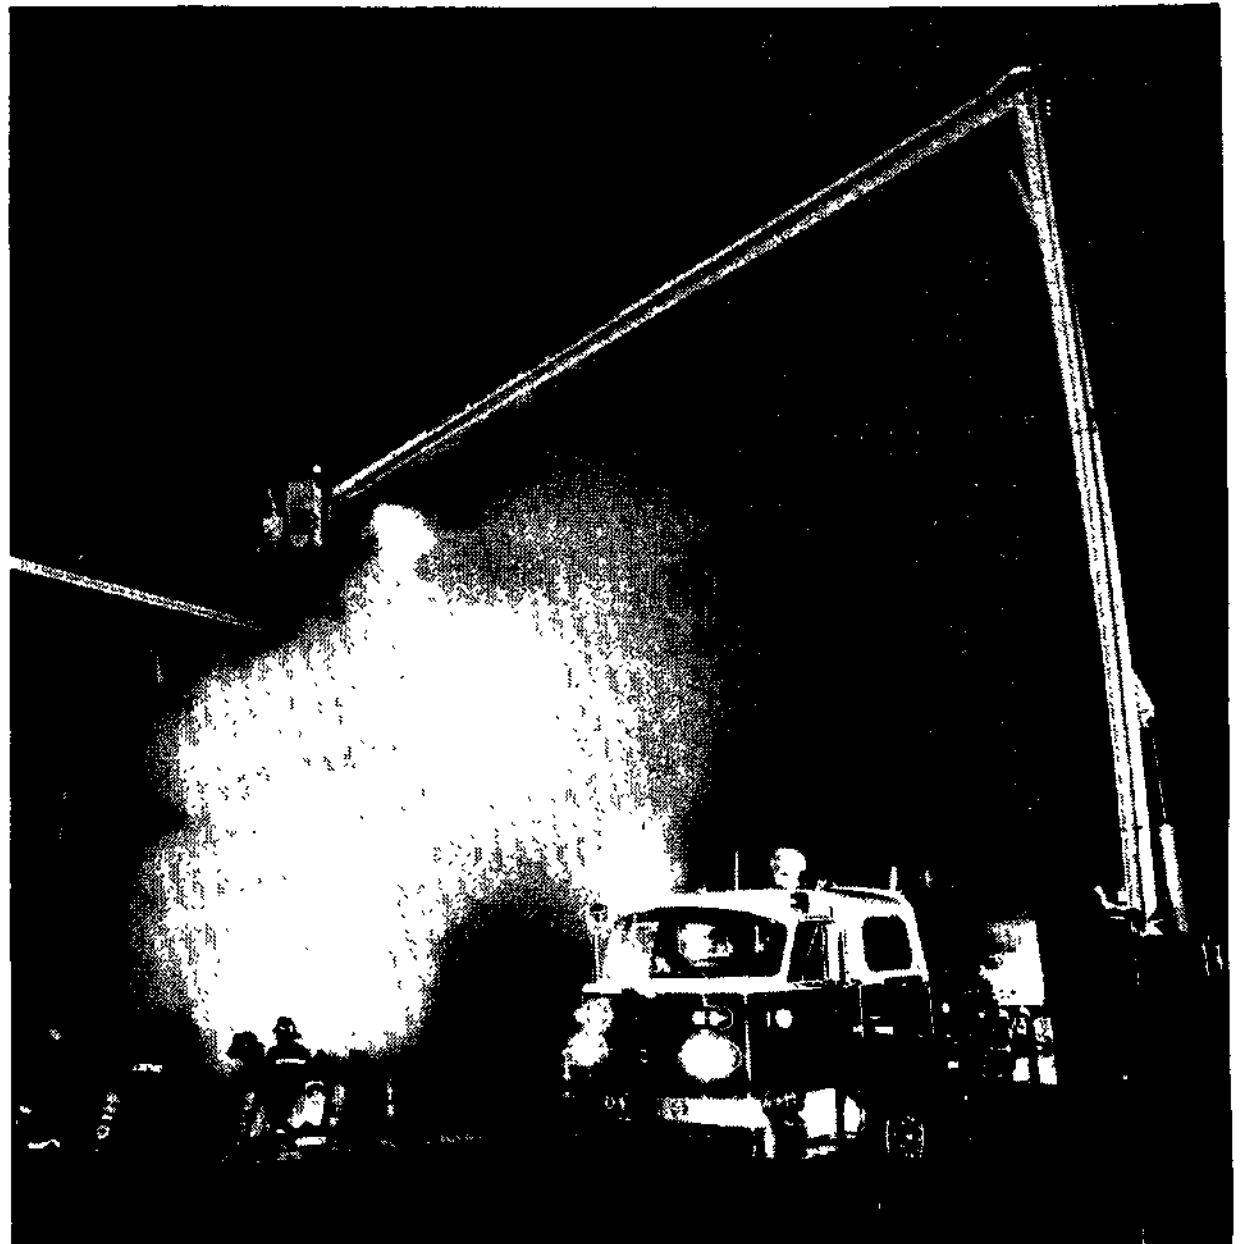

The River Trails Dist. 26 School Board tonight will discuss results of a second set of soil tests made last week at the Maryville Academy grounds, proposed site of the new Maryville School.

Also on the agenda is a report on the district's results in SRA testing, including growth-scale curves, percentile rankings and a comparison of this year's rankings to last year's standings.

The board meeting will begin at 8 p.m. in the Library of the River Trails Junior High School, 1000 Wolf Rd., Mount Prospect.

Fire left 24 families homeless last night at Dryden Apartments.

Fire Chief suspects arson

by DOUG RAY

Fire swept through an apartment building at the Dryden Apartments in Arlington Heights last night totally destroying several of the units on the first floor and leaving 24 families homeless. Arson is suspected.

The fire apparently began in the basement storage area of the 3-story apartment building across from the Arlington Market Shopping Center. Firemen with masks and oxygen units on their backs went into the basement but were forced out when the floor of a first floor apartment collapsed, according to one of the firemen who fought the blaze. The fire began at about 7:30 p.m. and firemen from a half dozen communities were attempting to contain it two hours later.

Fire Chief John Hayden said "definitely we suspect arson." He confirmed the fire began in the basement and ran up the walls "just like the last time." He estimated the damage to the building itself at $25,000.

Last April, fire hit another apartment building in the complex. All families in that fire were relocated and fire officials estimated the damage at $100,000. Fire officials suspected arson in that fire.

Last night's blaze struck while most of the families were having dinner, and although all persons were removed, the flames spread rapidly. After about an hour of fighting the fire, fire officials were forced back by a small explosion.

Firemen said a "three-box alarm" was called and dozens of firemen responded, including those from Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Palatine, Prospect Heights, and Rolling Meadows.

Red Cross officials at the scene said two elderly persons were taken from the burning building, one who fell trying to leave the darkened building.

FIREMEN USED chain saws to break through the roof as flames shot out of the first floor apartments.

The apartment residents were warned of the fire and evacuated their homes when a person began running down the hallways knocking on the doors.

"We couldn't do anything except get ourselves out," said Mrs. Bill Doty, one of the first floor residents.

Residents said firemen responded to several calls at the complex over the weekend. They said two mailboxes were set afire and a wicker basket on a child's bicycle in the hallway. A fire in a trash container outside was reported on Sunday.

Smoke damage was extensive in the blaze.

Five compete for two top Jaycee honors

Three teachers and two students are in the running for Mount Prospect Jaycees awards for Outstanding Young Educator and Outstanding Junior citizen.

The Jaycees' third award, for Distinguished Service, will be given in a special presentation to a Mount Prospect resident.

The three awards will be given at the Jaycees annual public affairs banquet tomorrow night at the Old Orchard Country Club.

Candidates for the Outstanding Young Educator Award are:

- Mrs. Karen Marie Krok, a first-grade teacher at William Busse School in Dist. 57 for five years.

- Loren D. McClendon, a science teacher at Lincoln Junior High School in Dist. 57 for seven years.

- Mrs. Sherry Zaugh, a sixth-grade teacher at Euclid School in Dist. 26 for five years.

The three finalists were selected from a field of 10 nominees.

THE TWO STUDENTS contending for the Outstanding Junior Citizen award are:

- Karen Carley, a senior at Prospect High School, where she is president of the senior class and a member of several clubs.

- Bruce Metge, also a senior at Prospect High, where he is president of the student council, as well as president of the Illinois Assn. of Student Councils.

The two finalists were selected from three students who were nominated for the award. A fourth entry was ruled ineligible because he is a high school junior.

Judges in the selection are Mayor Robert D. Teichert; Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley, and Mrs. Ruth Patterson, principal of Hammerschmidt School in Lombard.

Tickets for the public affairs banquet will be available at the Old Orchard Country Club, 700 W. Rand Rd., Mount Prospect, tomorrow night. Cocktails will be served at 6:30 p.m., followed by dinner at 7:45 and the program afterwards. Robert Novy, president of the Dist. 57 Board of Education will be guest speaker.

Lil Floros

Robert Price, science teacher at Lincoln Junior High School, made a fascinating trip to Mexico last October. He and a friend spent two weeks in the Yucatan peninsula touring an "archeological dig." The ruins are those of the Mayans, Mexican Indians, who lived at the site from 200 to 1500 A.D.

"They apparently had a fantastic ability to plan buildings," said Price. "They must have used a calendar to figure their work, but it looks like they used a computer. The ruins are in a rough state of restoration, extremely interesting." Price is currently teaching physics, so he was particularly excited over their building abilities.

While in Mexico, the two also managed to visit the National Museum of Anthropology at Mexico City and did some deep-sea fishing.

Price has a fantastic collection of slides of the trip that he is donating to the Resource Center at Lincoln. He is available to speak to clubs and organizations about the trip. Contact him at Lincoln.

Lamonica, in addition, learned that he has been named as a nominee by Sen. Charles Percy for the Merchant Marine Academy at Kings Point, N.Y. And, he received a NROTC 4-year scholarship for Northwestern University or Illinois Institute of Technology, which he will use if the academy nominations don't come through.

HAVE ANY JEWELRY that you don't need or want any more? It can be new, old, used or needing repair — men's items as well as women's (cufflinks, tie-clasps). The Women's Auxiliary of the Lutheran Home and Service for the Aged in Arlington Heights is collecting the pieces. They'll repair, clean and sparkle up the items and then distribute them to residents of the Home at picnics or birthday parties. You will be contributing something that will be much appreciated. DEBBIE RUBNER, 500 See-Grun, and Michael Keller, 504 Tomah, made a perfect 4.0 grade point average for the fall quarter at Colorado State University for the fall quarter. Both are in the school's college of humanities and social sciences.

BECKIE HYSSELL, daughter of Fred Hysells of 800 S. William, is a member of the cast of Illinois Wesleyan University's production of "Richard Harding Bush, or the Rocooco Coco Bean." The Children's Theatre Play was presented last weekend and will be presented again this coming weekend at the school's McPherson Theatre.

Miss Hysell is a sophomore drama major at IWU.

FOUR MOUNT PROSPECT boys have been nominated by U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, for appointments to service academies. These boys will now compete with other nominees from across the country and final selections will be made in the late spring.

Thomas Hayes, 317 N. Elmhurst Ave., was nominated for the U.S. Military Academy at West Point. Mark Kaspar, 1759 Wood Ln., was nominated for the Air Force Academy at Colorado Springs, Colorado. Theodore Maas, 2004 Bonita, and Philip Lamonica, 1818 Rosetree Ln., were nominated for appointments to the Naval Academy at Annapolis.

NW suburban hospitals still closed to abortions

by KURT BAER

A year after the U.S. Supreme Court's decision legalizing abortion, the doors of Northwest area hospitals remain closed to women seeking their Constitutional right.

The board of directors of Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights has made no move to reconsider its policy permitting abortions only in cases where the mother's life or health are threatened, said Hospital Pres. Malcolm MacCoun yesterday.

Lutheran General Hospital in Park Ridge reportedly is still studying the issue.

And area Catholic hospitals, Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village and Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines, of course, remain opposed to abortion on demand.

THE LACK OF abortion facilities in the suburbs is still a matter of concern to State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights.

"We have now a U.S. Supreme Court decision which makes it clear that laws cannot interfere with a woman's right to privacy when hospitals are funded by the public as Northwest Community Hospital was," Mrs. Chapman said yesterday.

"Hospitals that do not permit a woman and her doctor to make a medical decision of this nature are not being responsive to the public they serve," she said.

Every public opinion poll by 3rd District legislators has shown that 75 to 80 per cent of the people in the district think that abortion should be a matter of individual decision between a woman and her doctor, Mrs. Chapman said.

Ultimately the legality of a hospital refusing to perform abortions for other than religious reasons will be decided by the Supreme Court, she said. There are cases in the courts right now to test the hospital policies.

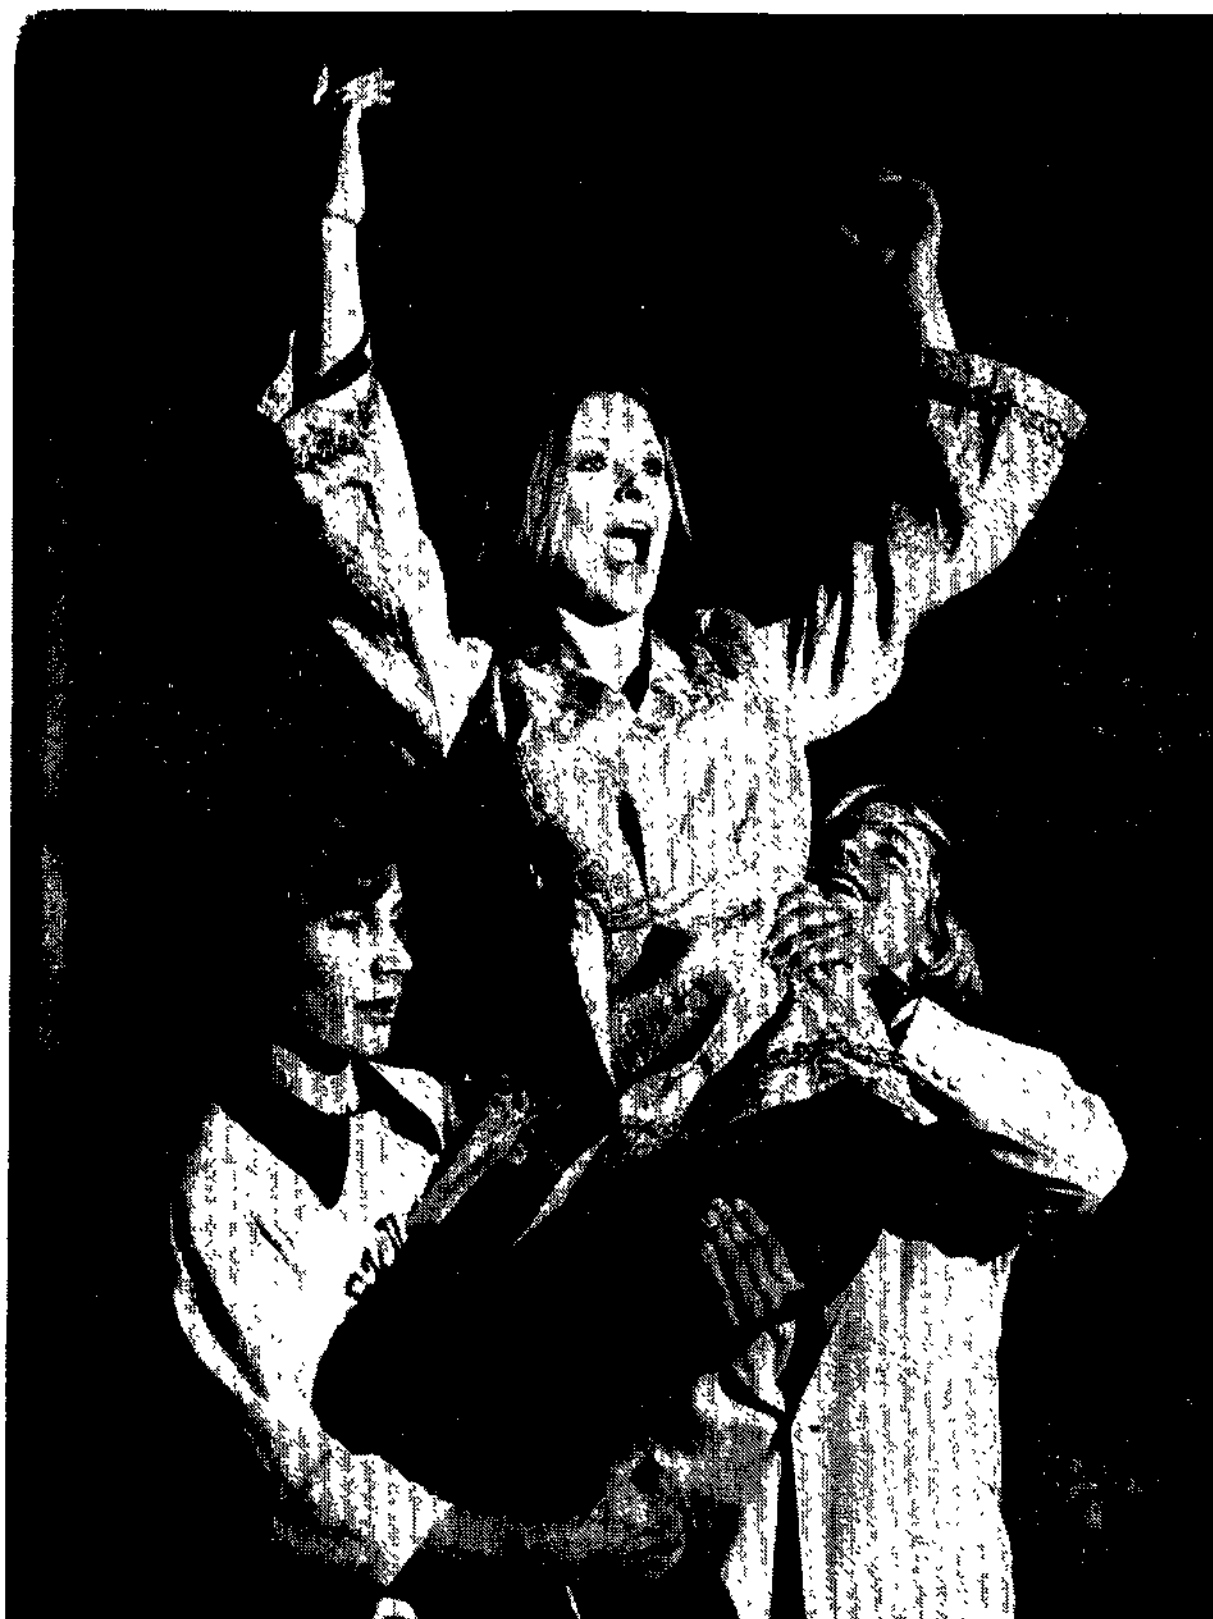

"I WOULD NOT expect a hospital with religious affiliation, or a doctor with personal or religious beliefs that are opposed to abortion to participate," she said.

Some doctors at Northwest Community Hospital voted in favor of performing abortions there last April. However, the hospital's board of directors in June agreed not to alter their previous policy.

MacCoun said yesterday there probably have been fewer abortion inquiries at Northwest Community since the Supreme Court decision was announced a year ago than before the highly-publicized ruling.

A special study committee at Lutheran General Hospital has submitted its secret report to the hospital's president, a spokesman there said.

The recommendations will be submitted to the hospital's board for consideration soon, the spokesman said.

Fred Dornbeck, chief psychologist for the North Suburban Special Education Department, will speak on "Communicating with Youth" in a meeting of the Indian Grove PTA at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the school gym, 1340 Burning Bush, Mount Prospect.

Residents to pay part of sewer bill

Mount Prospect taxpayers will foot the bill for a third of the cost of extending village sewer-and-water service to the Prospect Gardens subdivision.

Residents of the southern section of the subdivision just east of the Mount Prospect Plaza, will pay $45,589.50 toward the changeover from wells and septic tanks.

The village will pay the remaining $22,510.50 of the overall $68,100 project.

Mayor Robert D. Teichert described the village share as "a healthy contribution," but said the village as a whole will benefit from looping the water system to Well No. 13.

The residents' share will be split among the 16 property owners on the basis of lot size, at rates ranging from $1,869 to $5,077, and averaging $2,849.

The work will be done by Bari Sewer and Water Contractor, Bensenville. The northern sector of the Prospect Gardens subdivision will make the switch from wells and septic tanks to the village water and sewer system at a later date.

School goals gain approval of county

by LUISA GINNETTI

A plan outlining student and administrative goals for Mount Prospect Dist. 57 has received approval from the Cook County Superintendent's office and is expected to be okayed by the state superintendent's office soon.

The A160 plan, as it is called by the state Office of the Superintendent of Public Instruction, is a 17-page document adopted by the school board in November.

The plan, which outlines 13 major goals for the district, was required by the OSPI as part of State Schools Supt. Michael Bakalis' Action Goals for the Seventies. The plan for Dist. 57 was more than a year in the making, according to Assistant Supt. Dwight Hall.

Many of the district's goals outlined in the plan have already been accomplished or are in the process of being done. Hall said the reason is that when the OSPI's directive was issued in 1972 ordering all districts to develop an educational plan, Dist. 57 had already begun a review of its curriculum and educational objectives.

AMONG THE PROJECTS already completed by the district are:

- A revision of the policy manual.
- A procedure by which schools can institute program modifications.
- A system for identifying special educational needs of students.
- Establishment of lunch facilities at closed-campus schools and free lunches for students who are eligible.
- A policy to provide transportation for students in the district.
- A series of in-service teacher workshops designed to enrich and update teaching methods.

THE PLAN ALSO sets target dates for such goals as formulating a student code of rights; developing a plan for an interdisciplinary team approach for teaching special ed students that would coordinate the work of psychologists, social workers and teachers, and surveying the needs of bilingual and economically deprived students.

All of the goals outlined in the plan are to be accomplished by 1975.

The plan also outlines in more general terms six student goals, which call for students to develop positive attitudes toward learning, practice democratic principles, improve communication and math skills, and develop an understanding of their cultural and environmental heritage.

The procedure for attaining these goals calls for the establishment of committees comprising teachers and principals to develop objectives for each goal. The committees are to consult with staff members, students and parents and submit their reports to the administration for review by June.

THE DISTRICT plans to mail a newsletter to residents within the next few weeks detailing the plan and providing an in-depth explanation of the goals and how they are to be achieved. Copies of the plan are now available for study by residents at the district office, 701 Gregory St.

Hall says the plan will be used by the OSPI as a worksheet to help evaluate the district in the future. The plan may be updated periodically by the board.

"The goals in the plan were written in general terms so they could be developed as we go along," Hall said. He added that having a written plan outlining where the district intends to go with its educational programs provides a good means of updating and analyzing the curriculum.

Prospectus openings available for women

Openings still are available in a personal growth series for women, sponsored by the Mount Prospect Prospectus.

Women of all ages, backgrounds and careers will meet to discuss topics of mutual interest, and to explore ways of achieving growth, fulfillment and authenticity in their lives, according to Prospectus.

The group will meet from 9 to 11 a.m. Wednesdays at Prospectus, 110 E. Northwest Hwy. The series is free.

Interested residents are asked to call Prospectus, 394-8480, to sign up.

Steven Daich wins Silver Beaver Award

Steven Daich of Mount Prospect has been awarded the Silver Beaver Award from the Northwest Suburban Council of the Boy Scouts of America. The award was presented to Daich at the Scouts' annual appreciation dinner meeting held recently.

The Silver Beaver is the Council's highest award for adult male volunteers. A recipient must have a minimum of 10 years active volunteer service and must have participated in the council's financial campaign to qualify for the award.

Winners are selected by a formal committee comprised of former recipients of the award.

Many homeless in apartment blaze: arson?

by DOUG RAY

Fire swept through an apartment building at the Dryden Apartments in Arlington Heights last night totally destroying several of the units on the first floor and leaving 24 families homeless. Arson is suspected.

The fire apparently began in the basement storage area of the 3-story apartment building across from the Arlington Market Shopping Center. Firemen with masks and oxygen units on their backs went into the basement but were forced out when the floor of a first floor apartment collapsed, according to one of the firemen who fought the blaze. The fire began at about 7:30 p.m. and firemen from a half dozen communities were attempting to contain it two hours later.

Fire Chief John Hayden said "definitely we suspect arson." He confirmed the fire began in the basement and ran up the walls "just like the last time." He estimated the damage to the building itself at $25,000.

Last April, fire hit another apartment building in the complex. All families in that fire were relocated and fire officials estimated the damage at $100,000. Fire officials suspected arson in that fire.

Last night's blaze struck while most of the families were having dinner, and although all persons were removed, the flames spread rapidly. After about an hour of fighting the fire, fire officials were forced back by a small explosion.

Firemen said a "three-box alarm" was called and dozens of firemen responded, including those from Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Palatine, Prospect Heights, and Rolling Meadows.

Red Cross officials at the scene said two elderly persons were taken from the burning building, one who fell trying to leave the darkened building.

FIREMEN USED chain saws to break through the roof as flames shot out of the first floor apartments.

The apartment residents were warned of the fire and evacuated their homes when a person began running down the hallways knocking on the doors.

"We couldn't do anything except get ourselves out," said Mrs. Bill Doty, one of the first floor residents.

Residents said firemen responded to several calls at the complex over the weekend. They said two mailboxes were set afire and a wicker basket on a child's bicycle in the hallway. A fire in a trash container outside was reported on Sunday.

Fire, evacuation echo scene of similar blaze last year

by TOM WELLMAN

It was a familiar scene in the manager's office of Dryden Apartments, the Arlington Heights complex which suffered severe fire damage to one of its six buildings last night.

Helmeted Red Cross officials, working with clipboards, counted the residents of the building which was still burning. Residents, some clad only in night clothes and bathrobes, huddled in the office — only 40 feet away from the burning building.

Some were angry. Some were stunned. All of them waited to be assigned to overnight quarters by the Red Cross officials.

On April 29, 1973, a similar scene had occurred at Dryden Apartments, as a stubborn blaze caused severe damage to the northernmost building in the complex. Dryden Apartment residents in that fire, too, clustered in the manager's office as the fire raged and were told what would happen next.

Anger, not bewilderment, was a first emotion last night. One man shouted at a building official, "I want my deposit back!"

OTHERS COMPLAINED that a series of small fires over the weekend had culminated in last night's fire, which emptied all 24 units in the complex, filled the air with black smoke and brought dozens of firemen and policemen and hundreds of spectators to the scene.

Building residents reported that three other fires had occurred over the weekend. The first on Saturday afternoon, resulted in damage to a mailbox in the building which burned last night.

Residents said two fires occurred Sunday, one in a trash container near the burned building and another somewhere in the five-building complex.

Some complained about the lack of security around the buildings. Others said that the buildings' doors should have locks on them to prevent "undesirable" persons from entering the building.

The fire began for most shortly after the dinner hour. Smoke quickly filled the halls of the three-story building. One elderly man, who left the building quickly did not have time to retrieve his dentures.

"He wanted to go back and get his teeth," his wife said.

Mrs. Shirley Holst, manager of the complex, had been manager of the building for only 2½ weeks. She was notified of the fire by her answering service.

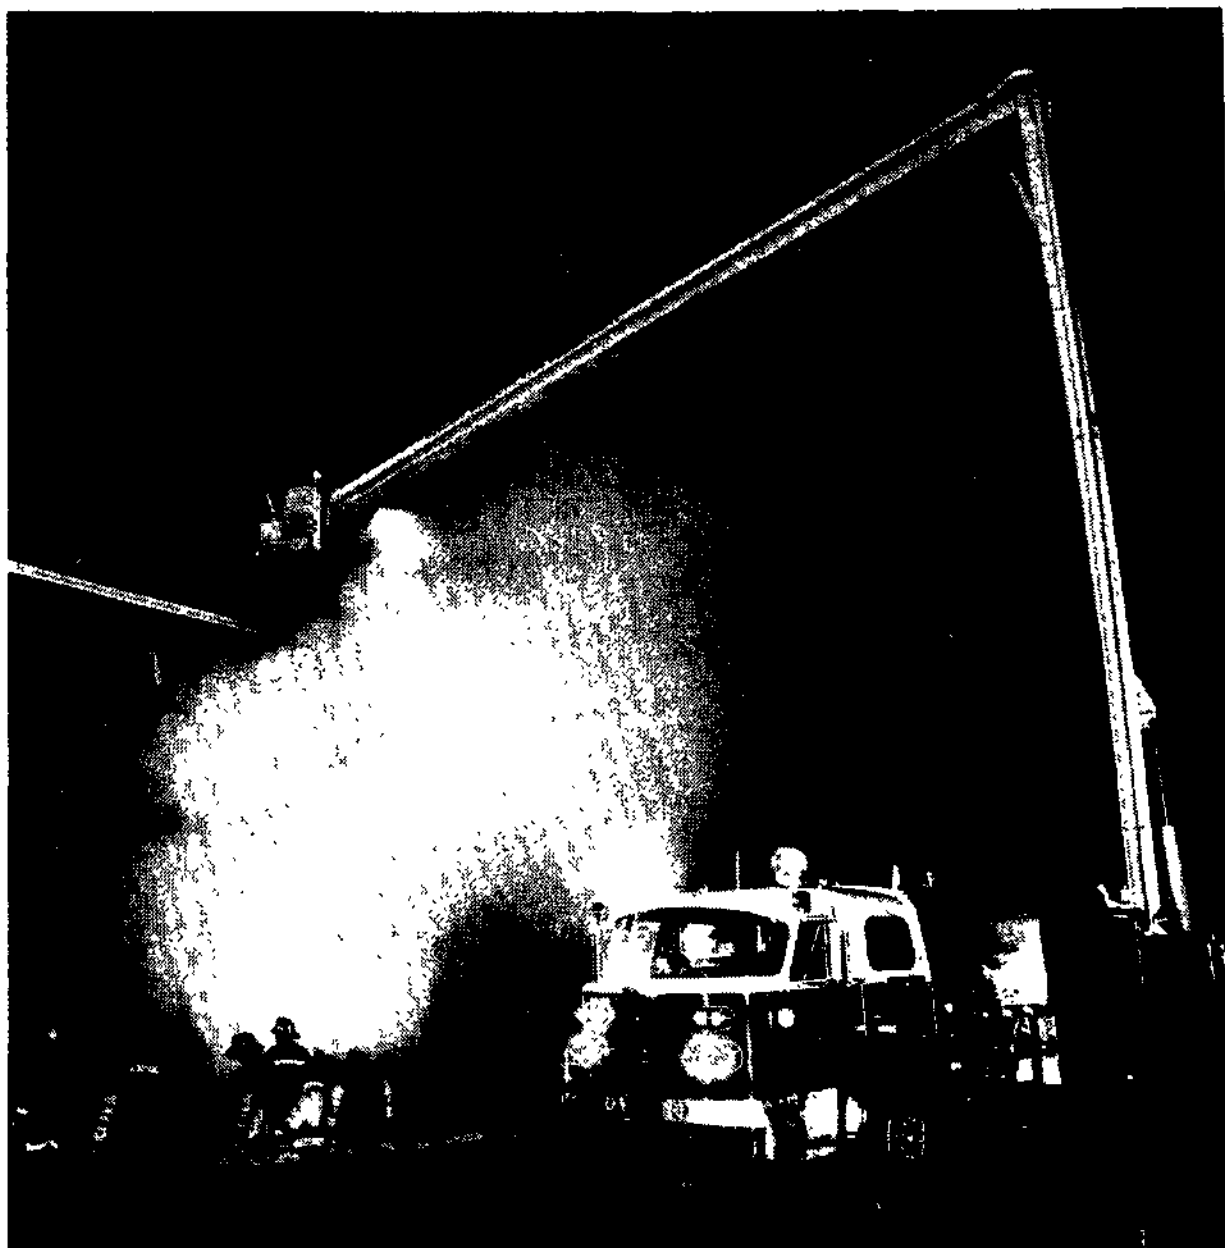

AS SMOKE BELCHED out of the windows on the south side of the burning building — there was little flame to be seen from the street — residents watched. A few cursed, but most just stood silently and watched the building burn.

At about 9 p.m., six or seven firemen broke from the firefighters and dashed to the adjacent building. There were reports of a pregnant woman suffering labor pains. She was taken to Northwest Community Hospital but later released.

Inside one of the unburned buildings was the following sign posted over the mailboxes.

"Due to the problems of the fire we had over the weekend, the fire department has requested that all articles be removed (from the mailboxes) by Saturday. If they are not, the cleaning crew will take them out."

It had apparently been posted after the three weekend fires — and before last night's blaze.

Fire left 24 families homeless last night at Dryden Apartments.

Two groups to screen school board hopefuls

The Arlington Teachers Assn. and its Illinois Political Action Committee for Education will screen and endorse candidates for the spring school Dist. 25 election on Wednesday at Thomas Junior High School, 303 E. Thomas, Arlington Heights.

The interviewing of candidates will begin at 7 p.m.

The ATA will endorse those whom the screening committee feels are qualified to run for the two seats on the school board. Although there are two board positions open, the ATA will recommend as few or as many persons who qualify, according to Dave Robinson, a member of the screening committee.

Persons who wish to be screened for candidacy are urged to attend this meeting. The public is also invited.

Harper may get site here

An 11th-hour scramble has kept alive the possibility that Harper College may some day have a second campus in Arlington Heights.

The college was given a 60-day extension last night on its request to have a 146-acre site at the northwest corner of Palatine and Schoenbeck roads reserved for a second campus in Arlington Heights' master plan.

Robert Lahti, Harper College president, told the Arlington Heights village board that up until 5 p.m. yesterday, he was prepared to drop the site from consideration because Harper had not received approval for a second campus from the state board of higher education.

However, a last-minute telephone call from the state board's office assured him that the entire matter of a second campus for Harper would be taken up at a meeting March 5.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS Village Pres. Jack Walsh said he had talked with attorneys for the Mayo Foundation in Rochester, Minn., which owns the property, and learned that they were agreeable to a 60-day extension.

Mayo officials have objected to the site designation, especially without state approval of a second campus, because, they say, it would tie up development of the land.

The property is variously estimated as being worth $25,000 to $50,000 an acre, depending on how it is zoned.

"This doesn't mean that even if we get the site, we're going to start construction of a campus right away. But it is something we'll hold in reserve," Lahti said.

A committee of the Harper College board of trustees apparently had worked feverishly all weekend to convince the state board to consider Harper's bid for a second campus.

THE COLLEGE'S request for state authorization to proceed in developing a satellite campus at Schoenbeck and Palatine roads had gone unanswered since first proposed last July, Lahti said. There was no evidence until last night the state would ever approve a second site.

Lahti had gone so far as to spell out his reasons for having to drop the site in a letter to members of the village board.

The Mayo Foundation, which supports the work of the world-famous Mayo Clinic, wants to sell the land for development and is worried by a state law that says, once designated for educational purposes in the village's master plan, the property could not be developed for another purpose for at least one year.

When contacted by telephone, however, the Mayo officials agreed to a 60-day continuance, Walsh said.

In the meantime, Lahti said, the state board would give the second campus request a "serious review."

Area hospitals snub abortions

by KURT BAER

A year after the U.S. Supreme Court's decision legalizing abortion, the doors of Northwest area hospitals remain closed to women seeking their Constitutional right.

The board of directors of Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights has made no move to reconsider its policy permitting abortions only in cases where the mother's life or health are threatened, said Hospital Pres. Malcolm MacCoun yesterday.

Lutheran General Hospital in Park Ridge reportedly is still studying the issue.

And area Catholic hospitals, Alexian Brothers Medical Center in Elk Grove Village and Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines, of course, remain opposed to abortion on demand.

THE LACK OF abortion facilities in the suburbs is still a matter of concern to State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights.

"We have now a U.S. Supreme Court decision which makes it clear that laws cannot interfere with a woman's right to privacy when hospitals are funded by the public as Northwest Community Hospital was," Mrs. Chapman said yesterday.

"Hospitals that do not permit a woman and her doctor to make a medical decision of this nature are not being responsive to the public they serve," she said.

Every public opinion poll by 3rd District legislators has shown that 75 to 80 per cent of the people in the district think that abortion should be a matter of individual decision between a woman and her doctor, Mrs. Chapman said.

Ultimately the legality of a hospital refusing to perform abortions for other than religious reasons will be decided by the Supreme Court, she said. There are cases in the courts right now to test the hospital policies.

"I WOULD NOT expect a hospital with religious affiliation, or a doctor with personal or religious beliefs that are opposed to abortion to participate," she said.

Some doctors at Northwest Community Hospital voted in favor of performing abortions there last April. However, the hospital's board of directors in June agreed not to alter their previous policy.

MacCoun said yesterday there probably have been fewer abortion inquiries at Northwest Community since the Supreme Court decision was announced a year ago than before the highly-publicized ruling.

A special study committee at Lutheran General Hospital has submitted its secret report to the hospital's president, a spokesman there said.

The recommendations will be submitted to the hospital's board for consideration soon, the spokesman said.

The local scene

Beef dinner benefit

The Coronets Color Guard and Drill Team will sponsor its annual beef dinner from 2 to 6 p.m. Sunday at the VFW Hall, 811 N. Yale, Arlington Heights.

Tickets for the dinner are $3.50 each for adults and $2 each for children under 12. Tickets are available from members of the Coronets or by calling Mrs. Jerry Vesceky at 255-2548.

Gospel singer to perform

Andrew Culverwell, a young gospel singer from England, will present a special program at 3 p.m. Sunday at the First Presbyterian Church of Arlington Heights, 302 N. Dunton.

All religious groups in the Arlington Heights area are invited to attend the event sponsored by the church's youth groups.

In his performance, Culverwell will be singing songs he has composed. He made his debut in England less than three years ago.

Volleyball marathon

A volleyball marathon will be held Thursday through Saturday at the First Presbyterian Church of Arlington Heights, 302 N. Dunton.

The marathon will start at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in the gymnasium. Last year approximately $1,000 was raised for charitable organizations. This year funds will go to the Cabin Fund in Saginaw, Mich.

Family ed unit meeting

The parent-discussion group of the Family Education Assn. will hold its first meeting Jan. 29 at John Hersey High School, 1900 E. Thomas St., Arlington Heights.

The sessions will begin at 8 p.m. Jan. 29 and will continue for the next 12 weeks at the high school. Robert Jopp will lead the discussions, based on the book, "Children: The Challenge," by Rudolph Dreikurs, professor of psychiatry at the Chicago Medical School.

Parents interested in attending the sessions must join the Family Education Assn. Membership is $7 for individual and $10 per couple. For more information, call Kaye Burton at 299-1374 or Bob Jopp at 381-8425 or 398-0220.

Plans to keep acreage undeveloped hit

The Arlington Heights Park District's attempt to keep nine undeveloped tracts of land as "open space" has run into strong opposition from property owners.

The property owners, including representatives of Rolling Green Country Club, Magnus Farm Nursing Home and the Lutheran Home for the Aged, contended at plan commission hearings last week that designation of their land as possible future park sites would put "a cloud over the land." They said the action, if approved, would make their property less valuable if it ever went on the market.

The plan commission deferred any action on the nine sites pending a report from a special committee appointed to study the situation and make recommendations to the full commission. The study group's report is due Feb. 20.

THE LANDOWNERS said this mandatory year negotiations period would make their land less salable. They said a potential buyer would be hesitant about entering into a contract if at least a year would elapse before he could acquire the land.

The park district has maintained it is in a poor park acreage-population ratio. They have said developments on the sites in question would place them in a deeper hole.

Kay Muller, park vice president and plan commissioner, said earlier, she did not expect the present owners to sell within the foreseeable future, but the designation was necessary because unforeseen situations can develop quickly.

She pointed out the recent closing of a convent in Arlington Heights as an example of "safe open land" unexpectedly becoming available.

THE COMMISSION, after more than four hours of testimony from land owners and representatives of the park district, voted to establish a four-man study commission. The commission is to meet with owners and the parks prior to submitting its recommendation to the commission on Feb. 20.

The Arlington Heights Village Board of Trustees would make the final decision on whether to place the sites on the reserve map.

Spokesmen for the Lutheran Home for the Aged and the Magnus Farm, a nursing home, declined comment on the commission action pending meetings with the study group. They represented two of the larger sites in question.

OTHER SITES under consideration are:

- Rolling Green Country Club (120 acres).
- Southern section of the First United Methodist Church property (10 acres).
- Three acres south of Dryden School.
- Five acres adjoining Flentie Park.
- A 10-acre section between the Commonwealth Edison right-of-way and Palatine Road, along Schoenbeck Road.
- 20 acres along McDonald Creek.

Three other sites, all in floodplains, were designated by the commission as open land. The recommendations, which were not opposed, were forwarded to the village board for final ratification.

I'll meet deadline, vows trade center promoter

by KURT BAER

The promoter of the Chicago-O'Hare International Trade Center says he will meet an April deadline on financing the $45 million complex.

Groundbreaking for the trade center is expected about mid-April, with completion of the first construction phase planned for September, 1975, said Anthony R. Finocchio, president and general manager of the trade center.

Previously, the trade center had been scheduled to open about January, 1975.

Finocchio said he has "one solid, concrete financing proposal" pending right now, and is negotiating several others.

A lease agreement with the late Carl Klehm for the use of a 65-acre site at the southeast corner of Arlington Heights Road and the Northwest Tollway requires that proof of financing be established by April.

Zoning and annexation of the property still is pending before the Arlington Heights Village Board.

FREDERICK CAPPETTA, attorney for the Klehm family, said he still plans to pursue the annexation and zoning petition. The last village board meeting on the proposed annexation was Aug. 20, 1973.

Details of settling Klehm's estate, which was valued in probate court at $21 million, have kept him from following up on the annexation matter, Cappetta said.

Financing for the trade center complex, which initially will include a 400,000 square foot convention center and a 500-room hotel, has been delayed by fluctuating money market conditions, Finocchio said. But since Jan. 1, the situation has improved dramatically, he added.

"Where before we couldn't talk to more than one person at a time, we're now in the unique position where they all want to get on the band wagon," Finocchio said.

"We definitely have to get into the ground by mid-April."

A NUMBER OF unanswered questions still surround the development. Included are:

- Whether the remaining 55 acres of undeveloped property at the site will be annexed and zoned for commercial use without a requirement for a specific development plan.

- A request from the trade center builder, D. J. Rintz & Co., Elk Grove Village, for variations in the village building code relating to fire protection.

- The possibility that Elk Grove Village will file a lawsuit to block the land annexation and trade center development. The village already has filed its objection with the Arlington Heights Village Board.

Plans for an additional 500 hotel rooms and the possibility of a suburban merchandise mart also have been discussed in connection with the Chicago-O'Hare International Trade Center.
